IT MENACES INFANTS

Tuberculosis In Cattle Should Be Checked—Hog Cholera Alarms Also.

Tuberculosis has been found to be prevalent to the extent of 70 per cent. of the cattle tested in some of the dairy districts of the State, according to the report made to Governor Goldsborough by Dr. Laurence Hickman, chief veterinary inspector.

This condition in dairy cattle, it is stated, presents serious dangers to people who use milk from the cows, and Dr. Hickman recommends drastic efforts to curb the disease.

"It is plain to be seen," says the report, "that the milk obtained from this type will, without doubt, when consumed by the human subjects, produce fatal results, especially in infants.

"The majority of such tests have been made upon herds of which this office has received complaints, yet there are many other herds requiring the same attention and should certainly receive it. In the absence of physical symtoms it is impossible to detect the existence of tuberculosis in cattle unless the tuberculin test be administered. This test is positively accurate in its indications."

RECOMMENDS TUBERCULIN TEST.

Dr. Hickman recommends that native dairy and breeding cattle be given the tuberculin test; that the border of the State be patrolled to prevent invasion of the present regulations, which demand that all dairy and breeding cattle be given the tuberculin test, and that owners of cattle destroyed because of the presence in them of tuberculosis be reimbursed.

"It is evident," the report continued, "that if such legislative measures be adopted, the live stock industry in this State will be benefited. We will be able to combat this particular disease in a more thorough manner, as tubercular cattle can be removed from the various herds and destroyed; healthy herds established in a short time without serious loss of hardship to the owner and the danger of infection to the human race eradicated."

HOG CHOLERA ALARMING.

Hog cholera, Dr. Hickman states, has reached alarming proportions in the state and the annual losses recently from this disease have approximated $200,000.

He recommends that legislation be adopted forbidding the importation of hogs into the State except such as have been examined by a veterinarian and have been given a certificate of freedom from contagious and infectious diseases.

Anti-hog-cholera serum, he says, should be furnished him free by the Md. Agricultural College Experiment station, and, in turn, furnished free to the farmers.

He recommends that to check the spread of glanders among horses the Legislature enact a law forbidding the importation of them into the State unless they have been examined and also have been given the Malleine test to prove them free from transmissible diseases.

LARGER APPROPRIATION ASKED.

The report of the State Livestock Sanitary Board, which accompanies that of the chief veterinary inspector, calls attention to the diseases referred to by Dr. Hickman and says that progress has been made. It points out that it has had a smaller appropriation by $2,000 than its predecessor, which had $5,000. Request is made that its present annual appropriation of $3,000 be doubled.

THAT NEGRO CRIME

TO THE EDITORS KENT NEWS:

Another negro crime has been added in your locality to the nation's record. What are you going to do about it? Prisons, lynchings and scaffolds seem to have no effect.

You see all the political, social and educational favors vouchsafed the negro in the last 40 years have increased rather than diminished the danger from this source. The negro, divested of all educational incitements, should be incited to go quietly and humbly to work in those agricultural and industrial pursuits everywhere yearning for him. With work for the negro, his hands and brains, that have been made idle and excitable by education, or by the example and general cussedness of his educated fellows, would regain their normal activities and he would be a welcomed and valued factor in the nation's prosperity. He could be self-educated, or his education could follow his capacity to pay for it.

The best negroes in the country are those who never saw a school and who picked up work, education and competence for themselves. Cody Bryant, of Mansfield, Ga., is one of these. He has a 2,000 acre farm, earned and paid for without a cent's worth of assistance—there you are!

Thousands of people, both North and South, are also seeing that negro industrial schools are a farce. One of these is Rev. Dr. S. D. McConnell, rector of All Souls' Church, New York. He some time ago came out in a vigorous demand for the negro to be put to work in the fields and kitchens. He ignores the industrial schools. Correct he is!

Leading ministers, lawyers and citizens of Montgomery, Ala., near Booker Washington's Institute, have for years told us the Tuskegee product was worthless. Some say compel the negro to go to work. But let us be just. Let us not try compulsion to work until we have banished that compulsory education—as in Baltimore and some counties—and those popular incitements to education that have led to all this negro demoralization.

Gov. Goldsborough, Dr. Stephens, the Club Women, the Suffragists, the Socialists and faddists generally are at present working for a State-wide, all-embracive compulsory education law in this State, the same as they have sought to obtain for nearly 20 years past. This law will make no distinction between white and black. Republicans like Gov. Goldsborough want it chiefly because of the advantages it will be to their party in rolling up the negro vote.

DEATHS.

After a short illness Miss Lucille Godwin, only child of Prof. and Mrs. R. C. Godwin, of Cleveland, O., died at a hospital in that city Friday, Dec. 26, 1913, from an enlargement of the heart, aged 18 years. Prof. and Mrs. Godwin are former residents of Crumpton, where the greater part of their daughter's life was spent. Two years ago Prof. Godwin was offered the musical directorship of the Y. M. C. A. of Cleveland. He accepted and moved his family there. His daughter at that time was a student of Dover Conference Academy where her high standard of morality caused Prof. Budd to voice the sentiment of all who knew her by the following epithet "Her's was an exemplary life."

Miss Godwin was a musician of unusual skill, a devoted christian and was devoting her time to higher educational pursuits. The remains were brought to Crumpton Sunday and funeral services held at the M. E. Church Monday, Dec. 29th. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Wm. Woodall, Lambert Ware, Earl Chandler, Thomas Bishop, Walter Chandler and Alday Walls. Interment was made in Crumpton cemetery.

Iris, the 17 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tilden Hadaway, of Chestertown, died at the home of her parents, on High and Kent streets Monday afternoon at about 2 o'clock, after a lingering illness, Undertaker Chas. L. Dodd. Dr. L. E. Barrett officiated. Interment was made in Chester cemetery Tuesday, at 2 P. M. The bearers were: Messrs Horace Stoops, Clark Davis, Edgar Chaires and Allie Blyman.

A BIG GATHERING.

Preparations are now being made for the exhibition of the Peninsula Horticultural Society which is to be held in Easton on Jan. 13, 14 and 15. This society embraces the State of Delaware, nine counties in Maryland, and two in Virginia, and is what is known as the Maryland Delaware Peninsula, and is widely known as the "market garden" of the East.

The society is composed of an active body of up-to-date farmers and horticulturists. The annual meeting last year was held at Wilmington, Del., and the exhibition was a noted one.

The list of premiums is large and generous and the exhibition will be from an educational point of view, an exceedingly interesting one; beside this there will be lectures each day, and in the evenings by practical horticulturists. Mr. William E. Sanger is the president of the society and Mr. Edwin G. Cover, vice-president, both of whom are working hard for a big exhibition.

Demonstrations in pruning will be held daily at the Mulberry Hill orchards by experts and a big apple display will be held in the auto wareroom of Shanahan & Wrightson Hardware Company, which will be open day and night. The premium list comprises fruit, vegetables, nuts, and canned products put up at home. The booklet issued gives full details and can be had for the asking.
