CHAMPION CORN RAISER TELLS OF HIS WORK

By A. R. TWINING, Forest Hill, Md. (Maryland Week Corn Champion.)

The 10 ears of corn which won the prize are of the Yellow Dent variety grown the second year in the East from seed purchased in Illinois the spring of 1912.

It was high-grade pure-bred seed, and I believe that, as in livestock, so in corn, "blood will tell." Last spring seeds was carefully selected out of my 1912 crop, and I think I had improved it. At any rate, I had more and better corn in 1913 than in 1912, and it should do still better this year, not only from selecton but from acclimation. Nine of these 10 ears were in the exhibit that won Sweepstakes for Yellow Corn from Maryland at the Maryland Week Exhibition in Baltimore, in November, and at the Interstate Corn Contest in Philadelphia, in December.

The corn was planted on an old alfalfa sod plowed last spring and fertilized with 400 pounds of 2-9-5 mixture per acre. It was planted in rows three feet two inches apart, and hill dropped about 30 inches apart in the row and thinned to two stalks to the hill. Though making a very good yield, I think it would have done better if it had had the attention it should have received. Owing to the press of work at that time it was not thinned until entirely too large and was worked but three times. The ground planted to this corn measured three and two-third acres and produced 85 barrels of corn, as we measure or weigh 350 pounds ears to a barrel, so the yield was 116 bushels shelled corn to the acre.

For several years I have been raising both white and yellow corn, and as it is hard to decide which I like best I continue to raise both, planting on widely separated parts of the farm.

White Corn Yielded Well.

The parent stock of my white corn (Boone County Special) also came from Illinois about eight years ago. The last season I had 11 acres of white corn check planted three feet two inches by three feet four inches, and the field averaged 18½ barrels to the acre, but as there were about three acres on a sandy slope that did but poorly on account of dry weather, I think that under equal conditions the white would have yielded as well as the yellow.

Heretofore I have not made as much of a study of the exhibitor's fine points in white as I have in yellow, or I might have had more success in point of premiums than I had last fall. On white corn I won second premium at the Maryland Week Exhibition, and third for Maryland in Philadelphia, in December. I shipped 10 ears of white corn to the National Corn Show at Dallas, Texas, that I think would have compared favorably with the samples that topped me at the former shows.

Some farmers and feeders think that the yellow corn is richer than the white in protein and fat content, but there is practically no difference, as a few years ago I had an analysis made of the Boone County White, Yellow Dent and the mixed kind formerly largely planted here. The White and Yellow Dent were about the same, and both beat the old mixed stock.

And as to damaged corn and barren stalks, I find much less than in the old style cob varieties I used to raise.

QUEEN ANNE'S DEBT $62,000

County Commissioners' Special Auditor, Mr. M. B. Bordley, Submits His Report—Board Wants Tax-payers to Decide How This Sum Shall Be Paid—Must Increase Tax Rate.

Queen Anne's county is to-day facing a shortage of $62,000 in round figures. The County Commissioners in order to dispose of it to the satisfaction of the taxpayers of the county have asked the local press to submit the matter to the voters in ballot form and ask them to vote their sentiments as to how to best dispose of the debt.

A word of explanation. Some time ago the Commissioners became aware that the levy was not sufficient to meet the demands upon the County Treasury, and they appointed Mr. Madison B. Bordley as special auditor to examine the county's condition. Mr. Bordley's report was submitted to the Commissioners Tuesday. It shows that there is a shortage of about $57,000, and since the audit, Superintendent B. J. Grimes has presented a claim of about $5,000.

In the beginning it should be understood that this shortage has not been caused by any dishonesty on the part of public officials; it is not due to any unwarranted expenditure of money—the whole shortage is due to the fact that for the last six or eight years the tax rate has not been sufficiently high to pay the actual running expenses of the county. At the time of the last general assessment the county's taxable basis was increased only about five hundred thousand dollars and since that time four hundred thousand dollars of that amount in bonds has been removed to Baltimore.

Thus the county has about the same taxable basis as before the assessment, with all the expenses of assessment, and the increasing running expenses year by year. The $62,000 is not a shortage of one or two years, but it is an accumulation of shortages covering a period of nearly a decade.

In order to determine just how this debt shall be cancelled the Commissioners have asked the people to decide.

It can be wiped out in three ways:

First—By a bond issue to cover the entire amount.

Second—By increasiug the tax rate to probably $1.75 for one year and meeting the county's obligations.

Third—By increasing the tax rate to $1.25 to $1.35 for several years and thus distributing the burden of meeting the debt over a period of years.

A TRIBUTE TO MRS. L. M. COREY.
