ALFALFA
The Profitable Hay Crop

Yields Four to Six Cuttings a Year of Easily Cured and Most Nutritious Hay Wonderful Increases in Yield Each Successive Year.

ALFALFA "GOLD" BRAND

"Its long, branching roots penetrate far down, push and crowd the earth this way and that, and thus constitute a gigantic subsoiler. These become an immense magazine of fertility. As soon as cut, they begin to decay and liberate the vast reservoir of fertilizing matter below the plow, to be drawn upon by other crops for years to come."

Alfalfa seed sown during August or September will yield four to six cuttings next season. Frequent cuttings thicken out the stalk and makes it stool out and grow off better.

Alfalfa ranks higher than Timothy in feeding value. In fact, it might be termed both corn and hay, as it is almost a complete food. Experiment stations place the feeding value of Alfalfa hay at $20 per ton, as against Timothy hay at $12 per ton. This, with the fact that Alfalfa will easily yield, on good land, 6 to 16 tons of splendid hay pear year, shows what a valuable crop it is. Lands in the Western States that are well set in Alfalfa sell readily at from $100 to $200 per acre. The acreage of Alfalfa is increasing very largely all over the Middle and Southern States; our farmers are fast beginning to realize what a valuable crop it is. Alfalfa will succeed and do well on any good loamy, well-drained soil, but the land must be well and thoroughly prepared for best results.

It should never be used for pasture; it is too valuable as a hay producer to risk injury from stock. A heavy application of lime is of decided benefit—2,000 to 5,000 pounds per acre. Alfalfa is usually sown broadcast at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds to the acre. Our Alfalfa seed is the highest grade, strong germinating seed of the best and cleanest quality possible to procure.

BAKER BACK ON LACONIA

"Home Is Healthiest," Says Liquor Board President.—He Was Ordered Out of Hotel—Tells of Caillaux Trial and Mobilization.

J. Henry Baker, of Kent, president of the Board of Liquor License Commissioners, who, with Mrs. Baker and their son, John Tull Baker, spent the summer in Europe, arrived in New York Monday aboard the Laconia.

Despite his experience, Mr. Baker looked well and, like the rest of the party, was bronzed by the voyage. His baggage was intact, which he said was an extraordinary circumstance, in view of the fact that he had to pass the German, Austrian and French custom officials.

"My trip was not shortened by the declaration of war, as was the case with many other tourists," said Mr Baker. "It was exciting, but enjoyed every minute of it. To properly appreciate his own country, I might add, a man shauld go abroad. Home is the healthiest place after all during the painful process of mobilization. In Germany it is soldiers, soldiers. I am not surprised that war has brozen out, as it seemed to be the only outlet for the country's military energy.

"I was in Dresden when the Archduke Francis Ferdinand was assassinated, which is claimed by some to have been the cause of the war. A few days later we arrived in Innsbruck, Austria, where all the buildings were draped in black in honor of the Crown Prince and his wife. Everywhere there were the soldiers.

Paris In A Turmoil.

"Paris was in a great state of excitement. The day I arrived President Poincare came to town. It seemed as if everyone was on the streets. The next day I heard the verdict of 'not guilty' in the murder trial of Mme. Caillaux. It did not arouse much enthusiasm, as the populace expected it. They did not seem to approve of the court's decision very strongly. The French idea of self-defense differs from ours materially. At that time it seemed to me that everybody was talking of mobilizing or fighting. The last thing I heard was that the judges were to fight a duel because of a quarrel over the trial.

"Then followed the murder of M. Jaures, the French Socialist, further exciting the Parisians. When war was declared I had great difficulty in getting a check cashed. I am sure that the line of people waiting to get money from the Bank of France was a half mile long. Stores refused to accept my checks. Nothing could be purchased, as they were completely out of small change and unable to procure any. Sometimes we were in actual want for the necessities of life.

"On Aug. 1 the hotel porter came to me and said: 'Get out at once. The Government will need all the trains for the soldiers.' Then he left for the war. When we reached the station all was confusion. Many Americans were glad to leave without their baggage. On the same train with us there were many soldiers on their way to the front. Their wives and children were there to say 'Good-bye.' The women were crying—young and old—as only French women in their sorrow can cry. The expression on their faces haunts me now. They realized what the separation meant.

Wireless Ordered Down.

"Traveling by way of Havre and Southampton we started for London. As we entered Southampton, an English torpedo boat stopped us, ordering the captain to take down his wireless. 'The port is closed,' they wigwagged, 'anchor where you are.' Then a pilot of the Admiralty came aboard and took us to Southampton.

"Conditions in London were better than in the Continental countries. Every American was doing his level best to get there. I was inconvenienced by not being able to cash my checks from Saturday of one week to Friday of the next.

"Change was as scarce as a bear with a tail. That has been remedied now since the Bank of England started to issue one-pound notes. They must be used as legal tender.

"It is estimated that there are 30,000 Americans in London at present, all eager to get home, and many of them are scantily supplied with money. I am sure that the American Citizens' Association will look after them. Few of them will be in want. I attended several meetings of the association. The men in charge know what to do and how to do it. Baltimoreans having friends in Europe need not be alarmed."

Referring to his trip home, Mr. Baker said: "It was not known until several hours before leaving time whether the Laconia would sail. We left Liverpool on Saturday afternoon in the face of possible hidden mines and with all kinds of dreadful rumors current. It was reported, for instance, that there were three German cruisers near and that we had a single British cruiser as a convoy Our vessel was said to be under the protection of the Admiralty. Whether this is true I cannot say.

"Soon after we were on the open sea, the sides and bow of the boat were painted black and brown. The protective coloring was applied to her funnels later. Several days out we sighted a speck on the horizon. 'A German warship,' some one cried. Others were equally positive it was the missing convoy. It came no nearer and never was identified.

"The wireless was used for receiving messages only. No messages could be sent by the anxious passengers. Strict orders were issued by the captain for all the portholes to be covered with blankets. The windows of the saloon were carefully curtained. The only illumination visible from the outside was the red and green lights essential to navigation."

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

Clarence Holden, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Holden, of near Church Hill, met with a fatal accident on Friday morning, August 7th, which resulted in his death. While riding on a wagon loaded with manure, young Holden lost his balance and fell to the ground, coming in contact with the rear wheels of the wagon which passed over his body and crushed his chest. Dr F. N. Sheppard, of Church Hill, was immediately summoned and after a thorough examination of the boy, rushed him off to the Emergency Hospital Easton, but he expired soon after reaching there. His remains were carried to his late home on Sunday morning and interred in the Church Hill cemetery in the afternoon. Rev. Mr. Corkran, of Sudlersville, officiated.

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her try a trial. She has taken five bottles of Vegetable Compound according to directions and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
