REAL BATTLE FILMS ARE NOT DRAMATIC

Can't Photograph Bursting Shells, Says Movie Man.

LONDON. — The correspondent of the Daily News at Antwerp gives an interesting interview with Cherry Kearton, describing some of his experiences in filming the war. He was in Alost during the German bombardment. He said:

"I tried to get pictures of shells exploding, but it is next to useless, for they hardly show on the film. In the trenches, too, it is useless and rather brutal, it seems to me, to try to get pictures. For instance, we who have seen men die from bullets and shrapnel know quite well that they simply slip forward a little, and the whole thing is finished. They do not fling their rifles in the air, and die in a dramatic posture. Pictures that show that can be known at once as faked."
