GALE—FAULKNER

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening, Dec. 9th, at Ford's Landing, near Millington, the home of Mrs. Alice Moore, nee Faulkner, when her popular daughter, Ella Osborne Faulkner, became the bride of Mr Hurlock Hurst Gale, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gale, of near Galena. To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, skilfully rendered by Miss Anna May Gale, sister of the groom, the bridal party entered the room, where, before an altar of evergreen and cut flowers, they were met by Rev. A. E. Owens, of Baltimore, who, assisted by Rev. G. P. Smith, of Millington, pronounced the happy couple man and wife.

The bride's gown was of heavily embroidered net over white ratine; her veil was arranged cap effect held in place with a wreath of lillies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of chrysanthemums and ferns. Her maid of honor, Miss Myrtle Wolfe, of West Collingswood, N. J, was becomingly attired in pale yellow crepe meteor, trimmed in monkey fur, and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The groom wore the conventional black, as did his best man, Mr. Clifton Sutton, of Galena.

Following the ceremony, at which only the immediate members of the family were present, a wedding dinner was served, after which the guests took their departure, wishing Mr. and Mrs Gale a long and happy life. They will reside near Millington, where the groom will engage in farming.

SANTA CLAUS' MAIL

Mrs. Santa Advises Her Husband To Stop Eating Candy Else He'll Bust—Will Visit Kent Thursday Night.

"Pop, if you don't stop eating candy you'll actually 'bust' before Christmas."

It was Mrs. Santa Claus speaking just as the NEWS man entered headquarters this morning.

"Don't say 'bust,' ma," exclaimed Santa, as he laid his hand tenderly on her arm and impressed a great big hearty kiss on her cheek. "Say 'burst.'"

"No, pop," answered Mrs. Santa good naturedly, "'bust' is the only word that will describe the performance if you blow up."

And even the helpers had to laugh.

"Well, I've got to taste every lot of candy before it is stuffed into the stockings," said Santa. "I don't intend that the dear children shall have anything but the best and most wholesome. And as far as bursting or 'busting' is concerned, I guess I've stood it all these years, and there isn't any danger of my getting sick now."

Then the mail-carrier dumped the usual morning collection of letters on the platform at the far end of the room.

"Read 'em all loud so I'll hear them," said Santa, as he kept on working, and the helper with the big eyeglasses began to read.

Clara Skeggs, Worton—Dear Santa Claus, I am a little girl 8 years old, and please bring me a sewing box, a doll, candy, nuts and oranges, and don't forget mama and papa.

George Skeggs, Worton—Dear Santa Claus, I am a little boy 7 years old and go to school every day. I love to study my lessons. Please bring me a necktie, a cap, a ball, some jacks, candy, nuts, oranges and everything that's nice, and don't forget grandma and grandpa and my teacher.
