BOLGIANO'S
Perfect Seed Potatoes

The United States Agricultural Department places their Tag of Inspection and Approval on every sack of SEED POTATOES Purchased From J. BOLGIANO & SON.

CERTIFICATE OF QUALITY.

This is to certify that I have had charge of all the Seed Potatoes grown for J. Bolgiano & Son, during this growing season. I have been with them since April 15th; looked after the selecting of their seed and the treating of the same, have also had charge of the spraying during the growing season. There was nothing planted but the very best selected seed, and nothing has been left undone to have them right. The crop is now being harvested, and the results of my work are most satisfactory. We are harvesting one of the largest crops ever grown in Aroostock County, Maine, and of the finest quality, free from any disease and true to name. I spent some time in Washington, D. C., with the Horticultural Board before coming here and their ideas of producing FIRST CLASS SEED have been carried out to the letter for J. Bolgiano & Son.

WM. G. SMYTH,

COTTONSEED MEAL IS ECONOMICAL DAIRY FOOD

Market Conditions Favorable To Use Of Cottonseed At This Time.

G. E. WOLCOTT,
Maryland Agricultural Extension Service.

Owing to the conditions brought about by the war in Europe, a large part of the cottonseed cake hitherto shipped to foreign countries will be placed on the American market this winter. The large supply available has already reduced the price several dollars per ton.

Cottonseed meal is one of the richest protein feeds offered to the dairyman, containing as it does, 45 per cent of protein and 84 therms of energy. Ordinarily it is not advisable to feed more than 2 to 2.5 pounds per day.

As it is constipating, some laxative feed should be used in the ration with cotton seed meal, such as bran, linseed meal, or the legume hays. Since cottonseed is rich in protein, it will be economy to supply a large part of the protein needed in the ration from this feed.

The following grain mixtures are suggested for grain production:

300 lbs. corn or hominy chop
100 lbs. wheat bran
100 lbs. cottonseed meal.

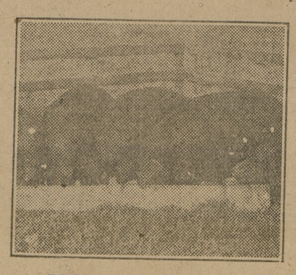

The above ration is calculated to be fed when the roughage is made up of silage and alfalfa or some other legume hay such as clover, cow peas, or soy beans. A part of the silage may be replaced by cut fodder. In case no legume hay can be had the following mixture will more nearly fill the requirements:

200 lbs. corn or hominy chop
100 lbs. bran
100 lbs. cottonseed meal.

The grain mixtures should be fed at the rate of one pound of grain to three pounds of milk produced. The cow should be given all the roughage she will consume without waste.

MARYLAND EXPERIMENT STATION ISSUES VALUABLE FREE BULLETIN ON THE HOG INDUSTRY.

It is common knowledge that the swine industry of Maryland is and has been for a number of years at a very low ebb in so far as the production of pork is concerned. Instead of raising on our farms enough hogs to supply the citizens of our towns and cities, we are actually importing every year from sister States vast quantities of pork and pork products to meet their demands. Yet in the face of this evidence practically every hog breeder within our borders will tell you that for the money invested there is no other animal on the farm which will yield so large a profit. If he merits this reputation, why is it that our farmers pay so little attention to him? To answer the question is difficult, but it is quite probable that the extension and spread of hog cholera and diseases generally are largely responsible for existing conditions. Then again it is obvious that there are any number of farmers who actually do not realize the monetary possibilities of swine production, for even in localities where hog cholera has not been at all prevalent, there are many farmers that produce barely enough pork for home consumption. In many other instances not even this quantity is home grown.

It is the purpose of this bulletin to show that substantial improvement can be made in this industry in our State and to offer suggestions and plans for bringing about this desired end. Copies may be secured by writing to the Experiment Station, College, Park, Md.

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Economy is one word that the average poultry keeper hasn't had much use for. I am glad, however, to note that he is beginning to have more use for it. One of the most flagrant violations of economy has been in house construction. Elaborate and expensive buildings have been built for housing poultry and unnecessary capital tied up. Expensive feeds have been used when much more simple ones would be just as efficacious. Plants have been so planned and laid out that a lot of extra labor has been expended in caring for the birds.

Nor has the violation of economical principles been all on the side of unnecessary expenditure. Houses have been too cheaply and ill-constructed or too many birds placed in them. Too simple feeds have often been used. A maintenance ration fed to a flock that should be laying is very poor economy. Many farmers feed their hens all winter and get no returns from them, when by simply adding perhaps a little protein feed they would turn a loss into a profit. I often hear this statement from persons whose hens are idle: "I can't afford to buy meat scraps," but the great question is: "How can they afford not to buy them?"
