SATURDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1914.

MERRY XMAS and Happy New-Year.

OLD KRISS visited the KENT NEWS yesterday and treated all of us to fine candies, nuts, fruit, &c. Messrs. Wm. Medders & Co., Still Pond, was our Old Kriss.

THE Ridgely Sun celebrated Xmas with a 24-page edition. It was quite a feat in country journalism and proves that Mr. Wilkinson's efforts in Caroline are appreciated.

IN another column will be found the report of the Auditors for Kent county for 1914. It gives at a glance the condition of the county commissioners' office, school commissioners' and also county treasurer's office.

A RECEIPT has been received from Mr. Robert Garrett acknowledging the $272.53 check sent by Kent county for relief of Belgiums. Another check for $19 42 collected on Sunday at Sacred Heart Church has been forwarded.

THE citizens of Upper Kent have again started to get action on building permanent road from Galena to Lambson. It is hoped to take advantage of the Shoemaker road law. It is thought that it will cost $25,000 to build this road and of this amount the state will furnish $12,500; the county $10,000 and property owners $2,500 One property owner has promised $500 toward this road and it is thought that the other property owners will also willingly make up the amount to get the road.

THERE is a higher duty than to build almshouses for the poor, and that is to save men from being degraded to the blighting influence of an almshouse. Man has a right to something more than bread to keep him from starving. He has a right to the aids and encouragements and culture by which he may fulfill the destiny of a man, and until society is brought to recognize and reverence this it will continue to groan under its present miseries.—Channing.

A SWEEPING program of reform in the methods of conducting State Government in Oklahoma will be recommended in the message to the 1915 session of the State Legislature, which is now being prepared by Governor-elect R. L. Williams. A program of "cruel economy" will be outlined. One of the principal reforms is the repeal of laws by which unnecessary boards and officials were created. There are 22 State Boards and commissions, all of which draw per diem and expenses when in session. He also will urge the Legislature to cut down the number of employes allowed different departments. He vetoed plans for an expensive inauguration.

RESOLUTIONS FOR NEW YEAR

Don't be a knocker about your town. The truth is good enough for the booster, and the knocker is soon found out.

Protect the healthfulness of your town. The fly is the product of filth, and the mosquito must be cradled in stagnant water; still, it is fatally easy to raise a good crop of either.

Increase the beauty of your town. It is a great thing to make a flower bed where an ash heap grew before. Beauty is its own excuse.

Improve the moral tone of your town. By so doing you keep down the taxes, for a good citizen is easier to control than a bad one.

Support the educational institutions and pay the school tax gladly. Educate your people and attract the educated. A trained mind is the world's most potent force.

Take the newspapers, advertise in them, and do anything else you can to help in their support or improvement. The press is the mirror of the town.

Support the churches. They have faults, like all other organizations composed of human beings, but they are the only institutions in the community that stand primarily for righteousness and spirituality.

Don't blame the results of your own short comings on the town. The success of your neighbor will prove you a falsefier.

Advertise your town. People, like moths, fly toward the light.

COSTS STATE $21,313.91

A report has been made by Chas. W. Melville, secretary of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board, which shows that cattle slaughtered recently because of the foot-and-mouth disease will cost the State $21 313.91. That is the sum which will be paid farmers, and the Federal Government will pay an equal amount, the arrangement being that the cost of slaughtered animals shall be borne half and half. The outlay for suppression will be extra.

The development of the foot-and-mouth disease in Maryland has caused slaughtering of 327 steers, 293 cows, 46 heifers, 197 sheep, 420 hogs, 29 shoats and 37 calves. The disease appeared in Washington, Frederick, Carroll, Montgomery, Howard, Prince, George's, Baltimore, Harford, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Caroline counties, the first case appearing in Washington county on November 2nd and the last in the same county just a week ago.

XMAS AND NEW YEAR GREETINGS

TO BRO. EDITORS, PATRONS, READERS AND ALL:

Now at this season when Good Will abounds, when the desire to be Helpful pervades, when Gratitude is deep and sincere, and when Forbearance seems easy; we want to express the wish that this New-Year Spirit may continue all through the coming year and surround you and us in all our relations with one another. And this we offer as our New-Year Greeting.

LIQUOR WINS BUT LOSES

A Great Victory For Prohibition In The National Congress.

The proposal to permit the states of the Union to determine whether absolute Prohibition of the liquor traffic should be established forever throughout the American Union failed of adoption in the House of Representatives Tuesday after a memorable day of debate and balloting. But the "Drys" in the House found encouragement in the fact that while they were unable to muster the two-thirds vote necessary to enable the resolution to be submitted to the states for ratification there were actually a majority of votes cast in favor of national Prohibition. The final vote was 197 for the resolution to 189 against.

The action of the House kills for the time being, at least, the effort to bring the prohibition issue squarely before the nation with the object of determining whether the manufacture, sale, transportation and exportation of intoxicating beverages shall be prohibited by an amendment to the Federal Constitution and thus become part of the fundamental supreme law of the land. Had two-thirds of the House members present voted for the resolution it would have gone to the Senate for action, and had that body adopted it by a two-thirds vote the 48 states, through their legislatures, would have been called upon to determine whether the amendment should be added to the constitution.

To make the amendment part of the Constitution would require the ratification of three-fourths of the 48 states. Thirteen states voting against it would cause the rejection of the proposed amendment.

That the advocates of nationwide prohibition will make the most of the fact that the proposal to do away with the liquor traffic was indorsed by a majority of the people's representatives Tuesday goes without saying.

Representative J. Charles Linthicum, a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, and Representatives Talbot, Price and Coady voted voted against the amendment, while Representatives Frank O. Smith and David J. Lewis voted for it. At the last minute Representative Talbot left his sick bed and went to Washington and cast his vote against the amendment.

$15,000 Insurance Paid Mrs. Jarrell Fifteen Days After Fire, by Continental Insurance Co.

CHESTERTOWN, MD., Dec. 10, 1914.

To James G. Beck, Agent
Continental Fire Insuance Co.,
Chestertown, Md.

Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge the receipt of four drafts, aggregating fifteen thousand dollars drawn on the Continental Fire Insurance Co. of New York, which is in full payment of all Continental policies on my home, which was destroyed by fire on the morning of November 25th.

I also wish to thank you and the adjuster of the Continental Insurance Co. for the prompt and satisfactory manner in which you have handled this insurance, adjusted same and paid the loss.

Just two days after the fire you had the Continental adjuster, Mr. Rogers, on the scene, and just 15 days after the fire I received the full insurance of fifteen thousand dollars held by the Continental Fire Insurance Company of New York.

It is very evident to me that where you can caused to be adjusted and paid so promptly a loss of this size, that the insuring public may feel more than satisfied when the insurance is placed in your hands and the property covered by Continental policies.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) MRS. E. F. S. JARRELL.

EXTRAVAGANT OFFSPRING

By GRACE LEACH.

"Do you know what I wish to do today?" said the nice looking elderly woman. "I should like to indulge in some perfectly reckless extravagance, just to get even with my son."

"Your son!" said the other woman. "You surely don't mean to insinuate that your son doesn't like to spend money! I've always thought Benson Thorndike one of the most generous men I ever knew."

"He is. Why, my dear, that boy simply loves to spend money. And the worst of it is, he wants me to be extravagant, too, and somehow I just can't.

"Yes, I'll tell you about it," she went on. "You see, Maisie Greene, the daughter of some very old friends of mine in Toledo, was married last spring, and Ben wished me to send her something elegant for a wedding present. He suggested all sorts of handsome silver and cut glass, and I took a whole day to look for something suitable, but everything that he had spoken of cost so frightfully that they seemed wickedly extravagant and I finally decided on a pretty pair of vases that were in good taste even if not awfully expensive.

"When I told Ben what I had bought he said 'Umph,' but after Maisie wrote the most enthusiastic thanks for what she called the 'exquisite and generous gifts,' I felt that I had made a wise choice. She urged me in her note to visit her, as she longed, she said, to have me see her new home which I had helped to make beautiful. So, on my way back from my summer trip East, I stopped over for a day in Toledo.

"Maisie and Mr. Gilmore, her husband, gave me such a heart-warming welcome that I was really touched. I was in a mood to admire everything about their modest little home, but when I saw the rich oriental rug as I entered I was astonished.

"'What a perfectly beautiful rug this is!' I couldn't help exclaiming as Maisie proudly took me into the living room, where there was a rug even handsomer than that in the hall.

"'Yes,' she said, 'it's one of our greatest treasures. We didn't receive any presents we prize more.'

"It's colors are extremely pleasing, and I like the design very much,' added Mr. Gilmore, 'and, as Maisie told you, we consider it one of our choicest possessions.'

"'Well,' I remarked, 'I should think you would. I'm glad you haven't the little pottery vases in this room. They would be quite outshone by this magnificence.'

"'Oh,' Maisie hastened to say, 'we like the vases awfully well, too. They're in the little study where they just fit. But you must see the other rug. I don't believe you noticed it as we came in.' We all went back into the hall. 'Isn't that a beauty?' she asked. 'I can hardly tell, dear Mrs. Thorndike, which one I like the better of the two.'

"'Oh, the other is richer,' I said. 'Though they're both really wonderful antiques. I assure you, Mr. Gilmore, that I don't believe you young people realize how grand you are with such beautiful examples of oriental art. When I began housekeeping I was thankful for ingrain carpets."

"'I hope,' he said, with a surprising gravity, 'that you don't think we show lack of gratitude or appreciation. Surely you received Maisie's letter thanking you.'

"'Oh, for the vases? Yes, indeed. I'm awfully glad you liked them. But I was speaking of these marvelous rugs, for I really think it would be too bad for you not to fully realize what a little fortune is locked up in them. I don't suppose you've had much experience yet in buying rugs, but I have.'

"'Of course we knew you were a connoisseur,' he answered, with a strangely embarrassed expression, 'or you never would have made such a fine selection.'

"'I make a selection? I don't understand,' I murmured.

"'Why, didn't you select them yourself, Mrs. Thorndike?' asked Maisie.

"'I selected these rugs! Certainly not. I never laid eyes upon them until now. I never even heard of them.'

"'Surely you must have—why—they came with your card.' Maisie looked fairly dazed, but suddenly a great light burst in upon me.

"Now, do you wonder that I want to get even with that boy of mine?"—Chicago Daily News
