GRANGE NOTES.

The Still Pond Farmer's Club met at the home of S. G. Roseberry's Jan. 4th. Mr. Hepbron expressed the opinion that the Granges, Farmer's Clubs and other farmers organizations do not accomplish as much for the benefit of the farmer as they should and urged them to take positive action in matters o importance to agriculture.

He asked for immediate action on the labor question. The subject was thoroughly discussed by the club and some surprising statements were made in regard to the deplorable labor conditions in our country. A resolution was passed without a dissenting vote recommending that—"Every farmer in Kent county employ at least one man from outside the county in order to increase the supply of labor."

Hog raising was then considered. Alfalfa, Scarlet Clover, Rye, Sugar Corn and Rape were regarded as very important pasture crops for hogs. Pumpkins were also mentioned as good hog feed.

The next meeting will be at Mr. W. H. Bonwill's 28th.

Mr. Cornelius will open the discussion on "What change in our method o farming could be made profitably that would decrease the quantity of labor needed?"

One of the largest attended meetings of Still Pond Grange was held in the Grange hall on Saturday afternoon last. After the business meeting an interesting literary and musical program was conducted by Mrs. Lillie Kelley, lecturer. The Pomona Grange will be entertained at Still Poud January 16 The meeting will be called promptly at 10.30.

CORN CLUB BOYS, AS FARMERS, BEAT "DAD."

Results of the development since 1908 of corn clubs among boys, especially in the South, are summarized in a report issued by the General Education Board in dealing with intelligent money-producing farming methods.

Since the movement started agricultural colleges and other school agencies have become interested in it, and the enrollment of 10,343 in 1908 increased to 91,000 in 1913.

Boys from the age of 10 to 16, in groups of from 25 to 100, compose the clubs. The condition of membership is that each boy shall plant one acre in corn on his farther's farm. Printed instructions from the Department of Agriculture were distributed through County Superintendent of Schools.

Prizes for efficiency were given and boys with top records were sent to Washington to meet the Secretary of Agriculture and the President.

In 1910, the boys' clubs of Holmes county, Mississippi, averaged 76 bushels corn per acre, while their fathers averaged in the same season 133.7 bushels and one boy produced over 200 bushels.

In 1911 100 boys averaged 137.48 bushels, seven boys raised over 100 bushels; in 1912, 471 raised over 100 bushels, and 493 accomplished that feat in 1913.
