WEDDING BELLS

The wedding of Miss Emma Lourene Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Smith, of Chestertown, to Mr. Lee Costen Price, formerly of Centreville, now of Wilmington, is announced to take place at the home of the bride elect on Washington avenue, Saturday, October 23rd, at 8 p. m.

ROBINSON—COOPER.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Cooper, Hight street, was the abode of a happy company at noon on Saturday. Hymen's alter was erected there around which two worshippers heard the charmed words that made them one of twain.

The bride was Miss Mary Etta, the sweet and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, while the groom was Mr. Frederick F. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson, a favorite young man. The bride was tasily gowned in a pretty tailor-made African brown ottoman traveling suit, with hat to match and carried white bride's roses. Miss Hallie Cooper, the petite sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was becomingly attired in a Bulgarian blue crepe de chine, with hat to harmonize and carried pink rosebuds. Mr. Herman Blackway acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Ethel Ringgold, the ceremony being performed by Dr. L. E. Barrett. The parlor was darkened and candles were burning, the color scheme being white and green. After the ceremony the guests were invited into the dining room which was decorated in white and green where refreshments and fruits were served. After which the bridal couple were carried by Mr. Randolph Wadell by automobile to Elkton and took the train for Washington.

Upon their return Wednesday they will reside in their home on High street recently purchased by the groom. The bride received, besides the linen and kitchen shower, many beautiful and useful presents from a basket of potatoes to a silver service and dining room set.

HOW IS MR. WELLER GOING TO DO IT?

Mr. Weller, the Republican candidate for Governor, in his speech of acceptance yesterday declared that the promises made by the Democrats in their platform were for campaign purposes only. He also said this:

"I wish to be at Annapolis solely to endeavor to do something for the State and for my party. If I should be unable to accomplish something in a big constructive way, then to me my administration would be a failure."

Now, in view of the fact that the Republicans have controlled but two Legislatures in Maryland since the Civil War—1896 and 1898—and inasmuch as it has already been publicly conceded by Republican organs supporting Mr. Weller and privately by Republican leaders, that the coming Legislature is practically certain to be Democratic, it is hard to see just how Mr. Weller, if elected Governor, could accomplish these constructive things of which he speaks. These things can only be brought about through legislation. The Governor of the State has no legislative powers or functions of any sort. They are lodged entirely with the Legislature. With the Legislature in the hands of the Democrats—and the chances are overwhelming that it will be—how is the legislation necessary to make his administration constructive, to keep it from being a failure and to redeem the promises made to the public, to be obtained? Does Mr. Weller think he could so arouse public sentiment as to compel the Democrats to abandon their own program and adopt his? According to his speech, he does not even believe the Democrats are sincere or in earnest in their own platform pledges?

If the Democrats in the next Legislature are not honest and sincere in the redemption of their pledges, how is Mr. Weller, if elected Governor, going to accomplish anything for the State? He cannot do it alone. The Republican minority in the Legislature cannot do it for him. It was the Democratic majorities in the Legislatures of 1912 and 1914 that were responsible for the redemption of the pledges and the good legislation enacted in the last four years, and not the Republican Governor, who sat in the executive chair and made the appointments. Mr. Weller's intentions are good and we think he means what he says. The trouble is that if elected he will not be able to make good, and the State would have to look to the Democratic majorities in the House and Senate, and not to Mr. Weller, for the legislation essential to the progress of the State. Mr. Weller, of course, is not in a position to admit publicly that his party has no chance of controlling the Legislature. That is too much to expect of him, but the fact remains that little short of a landslide will alter the complexion of the General Assembly, and every Republican leader in Maryland knows it. The Democrats now have, for instance, eight hold-over State Senators, and it will be necessary for them to elect but six of the entire 14 Senatorial candidates in the field in order to have control of the Senate. Their chances of controlling the House of Delegates are equally good. There are no indications of a landslide in this fight, and under the circumstances it does seem illogical to expect much in the way of accomplishment from a Governor of one party who has to deal with a Legislature controlled by the other, which he has condemned as insincere and not to be trusted to enact the legislation needed.—Baltimore Sun.
