AN OMEN OF SUCCESS

Twenty-Seven Young Men Enter The Chestertown Night School at Preliminary Meeting—A Splendid Opportunity.

The preliminary meeting of students who desire to attend the night school being instituted in Chestertown was held Monday evening in the High School Building. There were twenty seven young men present, besides the teachers, Prof. J. S. W. Jones, Dr. E. J. Clarke the committee in charge, and several visitors.

These young men are busy every day and feel the need of more learning. They are from the ranks of industry and realize what an education means. The professors took their names, grades in school when they left, what they most desired to learn, etc., from which a curriculum will be arranged and the work begun at 7.30 next Tuesday evening.

Hon. James A. Peace spoke in a most hopeful manner to the students as did others and the night school starts with most encouraging signs of appreciation.

NEW SCHOOL DEDICATED

Splendid Exercises on Friday at Betterton—Fine Addresses By Eloquent Speakers.

The dreams of an age have at last materialized and the fruits of laborious hours have at last matured. Years ago the boys of Betterton dreamed of a new school building—nobody told me—but they must have needed it long eaough. But to-day those same boys have seen their dreams come true and have silently thanked a merciful Father for His kindness to His children, as they listened to the dedicatory exercises in the auditorium of the new High School Building. With the abandonment of the old structure it seems that even the mind of the community is inspired anew to do the better and nobler things.

The exercises were opened by the procession of the scholars. The processional was played by Mrs. Charles H. Brice and consisted of a medley of national airs. "How Firm a Foundation" was then echoed through the halls by the joyous and thankful school children. Rev. Mr. Nichols, pastor of the local M. E. Church, then offered the invocation. The school and audience then joined in singing "America."

The first address of the afternoon was by the Rev. Dr. L. E. Barrett, of Chestertown. Dr. Barrett dwelt at length on the three powerful institutions influential in the character building of the youth — home, church and Sunday-school and public school. Dr. Barrett also pointed to the fact that while many books are used in the schools the greatest of all books is sadly neglected. This failure to early acquaint the children with the wholesome truths of the Bible has resulted in a wave of crime and immorality. America is not entirely free. Banks are looted daily, thefts are reported and the courts are kept busy trying those who are charged with such evils. Yes, the sad fate of America is pitiful, but from across the roaring waters there comes the sounds of bloody strife. To guard our nation against such shameful actions Dr. Barrett urged the national guard of well trained children—children who are strong physically, mentally and morally.

Another forceful address was delivered by Dr. Thomas Hamilton Lewis, President of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. Dr. Lewis explained that the word "dedication" was usually reserved for sacred buildings, but then showed how it was not misused in this case, for as he said, "This business of education is most sacred." He also gave Betterton people credit for building an entirely new structure on a new site, rather than trying to patch up the old house upon the old foundation. Then he showed the comparison between the business of the builder and the teacher, following which was the reason why teachers teach: Surely not for the meagre pecuniary reward, however attractive that might be to some; surely not for immediate personal pleasure, and hardly for the glory of the thing; but most especially do we teach because we are building. Every day we see new possibilities in those children over whom we toil, and every day brings new dreams for their future. So plainly we see that the only thing that makes the life of the teacher possible, make the torture of a child's will bearable and that creates a patience equal to the task of daily meeting with "that awful stupidity," is the love the teachers cherish for the ripening fruits in their garners.

The story of the old German professor, who stood at his gate every morning and raised his hat to every boy, was full of interest. Many in the community thought the old feliow "slightly gone," and thought to taunt him by asking why he was so over polite to his scholars. But his reply explained fully the sincerity of his actions. He replied that he was "Saluting the Future." He saw in these small minds possibilities which might ripen into a golden harvest. It so happened that Martin Luther was one of those boys in whom the old master had seen more than a dirty face and tattered clothing. How many teachers of to-day can see the faces of Presidents, Governors, statesmen and even Martin Luthers turned toward them daily as they view the upturned countenances of the school room?

So this business of education is so important it is sacred and while the teacher is the leader and directing power the schools of our land should be under the constant supervision of their respective patrons. Consequently in the bulk of his speech Dr. Lewis dealt with the duties and opportunities of a cooperative patron's club. He said there were three ways the parents could aid the teacher. First—by a little encouragement of the right thing. Second—by discouragement of the wrong method or action. He was also very careful to call attention to the difficulty of distinction between the proper criticism which is always very helpful and the false criticism or nagging and meddlesomeness which is just as destructive to good methods as the right action is wholesome. But after Encouragement and Criticism which are the smaller weapons in this war for the uplift of the children the noble army of teachers must have the heavy artillery of Co-operation. It is here that the main duty of the Patron's Club falls. Dr. Lewis explained the possibilities of the co-operative plan and urged the Betterton people to adopt the plan as a crowning action to the noble efforts so gloriously rewarded by the handsome new High School Building.

The exercises were then closed by music and the benediction after a few remarks by the chairman of the building committee and a representative of the school board. The first musical number was a piano duet, beautifully rendered by Mrs. Chas. Brice and Miss Grace M. Tull. The closing number was a song by the school entitled, "I'm Proud of My School."

Announcements.

Betterton High School is always open to visitors and extends a cordial welcome to all.

Our entertainments during the winter will be frequent and highly interesting to the public. We will engage none but the best entertainers.

The first Music and Elocution Recital was given Friday, Nov. 12th at 8 15 p. m. in the new auditorium. Admission 25 cents.

Our Patron's Club will organize at the school house Friday afternoon, November 19th. Refreshments will be served and all interested are asked to be present.

SIXTY PETITIONS and letters, signed by upward of 250 members of the Maryland State Grange, as individuals, were presented last week to Representative David J. Lewis by a committee headed by J. Bentley Thomas, of Montgomery county, calling upon the Sixth district Congressman to enter the primaries next year for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Blair Lee. Besides Mr. Thomas the delegation was composed of Western Starr, of Westover; J. T. Anthony and Charles H. Jefferson, of Chestertown, and J. Andrew Cohill and Karol Eisenhardt, of Hancock. Mr. Thomas, in presenting the petitions, declared that thousands of farmers of Maryland, benefited by the parcel post legislation, wanted to see Mr. Lewis in the United States Senate in the belief that the larger field would give him a better opportunity to accomplish more for the people. The politicans will now have a chance to see what the farmers can do when they get behind a candidate. Messrs. Jefferson and Anthony are representative farmers in this section.

THE tomato pack of 1915 for the States of New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland, including Baltimore, was only about one-half of what it was last year. A report to this effect was submitted at a meeting of the Tri-State Packers' Association held in Wilmington Saturday, and the shortage is due to weather conditions. In the State of New Jersey 320 282 cases were packed; in Delaware 783,811 cases, and in Maryland 2,863,375 cases, a total of 3,967,468 cases. These same states packed 5,850,000 cases in 1914. The pack of this year was only 40 per cent. of that for the year 1913.
