OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. No alcohol in Scott's.

THE SERVICE OF "JINERS."

The month just past has been a great time for annual meetings. The newspapers are full of lists of officers elected for churches, fraternal and charitable societies, business corporations. It is very noticeable that the work of carrying on all these organizations tends to be concentrated in a few hands. One person may hold office in a dozen societies.

This is an age of "jiners." It is often said that one organization should be formed just to kill off needless societies. Yet all these forms of work are needed. It often seems impossible to get the offices filled. Most people sit still and criticize, while a few get up the suppers and arrange the entertainments.

It is sometimes said that the people who are prominent in a number of organizations, are pushing and aggressive and enjoy leadership and management of others It would be nearer the truth to say what when people are found to have executive ability, they are constantly teased to overload themselves with public tasks.

The organization of civic and social life involves generous, public spirited work. The time required merely for committee meetings is almost interminable. The society officer often finds it easier to decorate a hall himself than to get a committee who will do it. A Sunday school superintendent said the other day that he had asked 21 persons to teach a Sunday school class before he found one who would consent.

The planning of entertainments involves ceaseless labor and endless detail. Sometimes it seems a fruitless waste of energy. Yet the town lacking these social features is dead. People don't like to live there.

It should be recognized that people who accept these offices and perform these tasks perform a real public service. Wherefore, before declining to serve as secretary or committee member of some good organization, think it over well before you flunk on it.—Snow Hill Messenger.
