KENT COUNTY, MARYLAND

WRITTEN FOR KENT NEWS BY FRANK H. RUTH, GALENA.

With the dawning of creation when the earth began to roll,
Through the maze of countless planets with the Master in control;
When its broad expanse of verdure turned its face first toward the sun,
There was just one little corner that He straight pronounced well done.

There, the undulating acres spread themselves in vast array,
With their sparkling streams of nectar lost in clouds of silver spray;
There, the sleepy knoll and dingle were the essence of delight,
And the murmur of the breezes crooned the glory of His might.

'Twas a pleasing land ecstatic—just where heaven touched the heath;
Where the green and gold of nature intermingled in a wreath
Thro' the woodlands bold and stately—where they crowned the vernant shore
Of dark meandering rivers now replete with mystic lore.

It was just the spot ideal—where the son of man might roam
With thrills of wild abandon 'neath the blue empyreal dome;
Where he saw in rich profusion all the earth had to display,
In one gorgeous panorama like the charms of Mosellay.

'Twas the masterpiece primeval, of the great Creative God;
Once the rendezvous of angels—when its heather was untrod
"The hidden soul of harmony" where the lotus brewed its spice,
In lordly, proud magnificence, stood the world's lone paradise.

Now, that favored land elysian to our vision yet appears,
As the ages turn their pages after twice ten thousand years;
'Tis the same to-day as ever—still a land of sweet content,
Still the pearl to which man's pleasure has affixed the name of Kent.

Ah, those perfumes so delicious where the living roses blow,
Where the moons are more effulgent, where the suns more kindly glow;
Where Her solitudes will lull you into dreams of Eden's bow'r,
And a world of wonders greet you in the cycle of an hour.

Yes, she blooms to-day as ever in Her robes of green and gold,
Whilst the splendors of her raiment will remain for aye untold;
'Tis to see this "Isle of Beauty," feel her ozone in your veins,
Feel the tingle of enchantment as you scan her fair domain.

Then you'll realize what blessings are about you to enjoy,
Not a shadow of disquiet to discourage or annoy:—
Here, you'll see man's art has failed him to enhance one single charm,
And the dream of Life has centered 'bout "an Old Kent County farm."

'Bout Her bayous—coves and meadows—'bout each pebble on Her strand—
'Bout the wind scarped bluffs and headlands where the Chester laves Her sand:
Where the moonglades are idyllic—where the loveleis entrance—
Where the whole is an Oasis, and a perfect necromance.

'Tis the scene of joys exquisite, lulling Life's sojourn away,
Blissful rhapsodies of pleasure in an endless roundelay
Lull the soul to dreamy fancy—into reverie and muse—
Oh ye gods, what have you better to enthrall man—to enthuse.

Seek sequestered vale and mountain, tread the globe from pole to pole,
Not one spot like "Old Kent County" has the charm to reach the soul:—
'Tis the bourne at which men marvel, 'tis the one supremely blest—
'Tis the "fairest of ten thousand," and of God's creation—BEST.

FARMERS MEETING

The Still Pond Farmers Club met at the home of C W Harris Feb 24th. It was a stormy day and the members were a little late in arriving so the first thing on the program after their long rides in the wind was dinner. The hostess was fully "prepared" and the guests showed no signs of "unpreparedness" to do their part.

Mr. Nichols addressed the meeting telling of his experience as a pioneer preacher in the West. Mr. E. A. Corey opened the discussion "How can the farmer meet the present high price of fertilizer?" He said the present price is about the same as it was forty years ago when he was a young man. A 2-9-3 fertilizer called "Tip Top" was very popular at that time and sold for forty dollars a ton. Corn was then worth 50c and wheat 80c He recommended the more liberal use of lime, straw and manure. Mr E. A. Corey, J. L. Price and Mrs A L Herris were named as a committee for farm inspection and are to report at the next meeting. A new inspection committee will be named at each future meeting The school system was next discussed and the Maryland report of the National Education Survey was endorsed. A letter from Mrs. Shafer was read by the Secretary.

The report of the resolution committee expressing the sympathy of the Still Pond Farmers Club for the family of Mr. Tilghman Shafer was adopted After a discussion about the County Farm Agent the club adjourned to meet at Mr Cornelius' the last Thursday in March.

TO ASK DELAY ON BAY BOATS

Appointment Made by Local Commercial Organization With Interstate Commerce Commission For Thursday Afternoon, at Which Request Will Be Made to Delay Divorcing of Bay Lines One Year at Least.

A delegation of representative Baltimore business men, headed by Charles E. Falconer, president of the Merchants Association as chairman of the executive committee of that body, will present a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission asking that the divorcing of the Bay lines from the Pennsylvania Railroad, to take effect April 1, be postponed one year. This committee will point out the injustice that is being done the city and the Eastern Shore by the sudden suspension of the schedule and will present statistics showing what the loss to both city and Easter Shore points will amount to.

In discussing the trip to Philadelphia for the purpose of asking President Myers, of the B. C. & A. and the M. D. & V. railway companies, to request a rehearing of the case, Mr. Falconer declared that the committee was given practically no satisfaction, President Myers making it plain that the Pennsylvania Railroad is desirous of selling its lines.

Not only this, but it was intimated that the sale of the lines touching points on the Western shore of the Bay would also be offered at an early date, which would complete the severance of the connection between the railroad and the Bay lines.

"President Myers practically told us that an attempt would be made to sell all the lines, with the exception of the ferries, that is the Claiborne and Love Point boats," said President Falconer. "It was also given us to understand that if these lines could not be sold as they stand each would be divided into a number of units and the units would be offered."
