ROCK HALL STATE ROAD

DEAR KENT NEWS:

Tapping again for entrance anent the much-discussed, problematical, projected Rock Hall-Chestertown State Road.

About ten years ago, when Uncle Sam began to awaken to the centuries old knowledge that good roads are one of a country's best assets, his many state children followed suit.

Things in Maryland progressed until Rock Hall saw a ripening plum on the State roads tree which was destined for it. It was not a specially large plum but it was good, sound fruit and bade fair to be a delicious morsel.

Having made what preparations were deemed needful to do it full justice, Rock Hall went about its everyday affairs until such time as the plum should ripen and fall.

But it didn't fall! Eager hands grasped it and we saw it borne away. There were no wry faces at the banquet. Oh, no! It was a luscious plum. And we were told specifically, 'Oh, we have the big laugh on Rock Hall" because "you elected your delegate and sent him to Annapolis and we got the benefit of it. We got the State Road."

Rock Hall has used the available part of that road, and when our busy people—those of us who could reach it—could find time, they have even taken a joy run over the other half to get a better idea of what it is like to travel on a decent road.

It is sweet. If there was ever a hint of bitterness in it, it disappeared.

And now there is another plum on the tree. We have every reason to believe it is labeled "Rock Hall through to Chestertown by the route which thousands of voters have petitioned for."

If those signatures do not mean that the State Roads Commission erred in appropriating one-half of the "three miles" for the special benefit of Fairlee, in so-far as "a road to connect Chestertown and Rock Hall" is concerned, what do they mean?

We do not begrudge Fairlee that extra mile and half to connect it with our town. We will be glad to see West End and all the friends he will bring with him, at any time; but we are asking for our road to benefit the many.

If there is a piece of road to straighten, or a few extra dollars to expend on a bridge, has not the Fifth District already paid for it? Or suppose it is deemed that it has not, and the tax is raised a fraction higher, will it not be saved in time—the equivalent of money,—in lessened wear on vehicles, and in the reduced cost of getting produce and products to markets? Are we not paying a share on other people's roads and bridges? Are not other places asking for what they want?

Mr. Elmer E. Leary and all who, like you, "will be perfectly satisfied to get a road either route," join forces with the majority and help to pull, strong and hard. United efforts may secure a full road instead of another scrap.

People of Rock Hall, let no hands outreach yours this time. Surround that tree and clamor until all the State of Maryland is interested in that one particular plum. When it ripens may it be big enough to include Chestertown and Gratitude at the feast.

With you in anticipation,
R. H. TAPPER.

HOG CHOLERA APPEARS

Hog cholera has appeared in the herd of thoroughbreds at Delaware College experiment farm. Seven hogs already have died and six or seven are sick. The entire herd of from 50 to 60, is valued at about $2,500, while the loss sustained by the death of the seven is probably $300.

Dr. Raymond C. Reed, veterinarian at Delaware College, is looking after the herd and treating those that are sick. All of the herd have been inoculated by Dr. Reed.

The source of the disease is unknown. There is practically a quarantine at the college farm as no outside swine are allowed to come in or any of the college herd to leave. The matter has been reported to the State Live Stock Sanitary Board and Dr. H. P. Eves, state veterinarian.
