HOSIERY

We are, as we have always been headquarters for hose. We have children's hose, the best that money can buy, for 15c per pair, or 2 pairs for 25c. They are hard to tell from the regular 25c a pair quality. We have a special grade of ladies hose, medium weight and great wearers, at 3 pairs for $1.00.

CORSETS

The best advertisement on earth that a man can have is a satisfied customer. A lady whoever puts on a pair of Bon Ton or Royal Worcester Corsets is certainly satisfied and comfortable and she tells her friends and neighbors. That's the cause of our immense sale.

GROCERIES

This is the season of the year for parties and when giving one you always want nice things to eat. We have the best at all times. Why pay a high price for second grade goods when you can get the best here.

We use coffee as our leader. We have a special grade of coffee which are selling at 20c a pound and which cannot be duplicated at any other store for less than 25c a pound. Our 28c quality, our customers say, is as good as they are used to paying 35c a pound for. Try a pound, and if not satisfied no charge will be made for it.

Soliciting a trial to convince you I am yours for business.

Lizzie Dorsey, Rachel Wright, Mary Wright, infant, Mary Wright, Kate Hayes, Rosie Chambers, Ella Dorsey, George Chaney, Jim Clayton, Grant Pearson, Al Pearson, Carson Dorsey, infant, Emma Dorsey, infant, Alec Wilson, Louis Oakley, John Fletcher Oakley, Carry Oakley, infant, Mary Rebecca Oakley, infant, Charile Wright, Harry Wright, West Wright, William Brooks, Anthony Brooks, Alexander Brooks, Edward Brooks, Berta Wilmer, Araminta Sampson, Maggie Dorsey, Ada Dorsey, Perry Chambers, Howard Chambers, Preston Ford, infant, Robert Bratcher, Jim Bratcher, infant, Mary Lizzie Bratcher, infant.

In the Circuit Court for Kent County, Maryland, in Equity. No. 1942.

THE object of the Bill is to procure a decree for the partition or sale of the Real Estate of James A. Wilson late of Kent county, deceased. The Bill states:

1. That James A. Wilson, late of Kent county, deceased, was during his life time, seized and possessed of a certain tract of land, situate lying and being in the Third Election District of Kent county aforesaid, containing about three and one half acres of land, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to the said James A. Wilson by William M. Slay, Trustee, by deed dated May 9th, 1881, and recorded among the Land Records of Kent County aforesaid, in Liber S. B. No. 2. folios 397, saving and excepting therefrom, however, all those three tracts of land which the said James A. Wilson, in his life time, conveyed to Robert E. Taylor, R. Emmett Taylor and Mary I. Krusen by deeds dated respectively June 10th, 1889, October 24th, 1882, and December 1st, 1913. all three of which deeds are respectively recorded among the Land Records of Kent county aforesaid in Libers S. B. No. 12 folio 258; S. B. No. 12 folio 260 and J. T. D. No. 28 folio 573, as will more fully appear by reference to said deeds, certified copies of which are filed herewith and marked Plaintiffs' Exhibits Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

2. That the said James A. Wilson being so seized and possessed of said real estate as aforesaid, departed this life intestate on June the 25th, 1915, leaving the following heirs at law him surviving:

A.

Children or descendants of children of Mary Jane Wright, a sister of James A. Wilson, who married Philip Wright. The said Mary Jane Wright having died intestate about 20 years ago, and the said Philip Wright having died about 26 years ago.

1. Lizzie (Wright) Dorsey, a daughter who lives in Kent County, Maryland.
2. Robert T. Wright, a son and who lives in Kent County, Maryland.
3. Philip Wright, a son and who lives in Kent County, Maryland.
4. Harry Wright, a son who died intestate about 7 years ago, leaving no children, but a widow, Rachel Wright, who lives in Kent County aforesaid, surviving him.
5. John Wright, a son, who died intestate sometime during the year 1915, but after the death of James A. Wilson, and left surviving him one child, Mary Wright, who is about 11 years old and a widow, Mary Wright: both of whom live in Kent County aforesaid.

B.

Children or descendants of children of Louisa Pearson, a sister of James A. Wilson, who married Isaac Pearson. The said Louisa Pearson having died intestate about twenty years ago and the said Isaac Pearson having died about 5 or 6 years ago.

1. Kate (Garrison) Hayes, who lives in Kent County aforesaid and is the illegitimate child of Louisa Wilson and John Garrison.
2. Rosie (Garrison) Chambers, who lives in Kent County aforesaid, and is the illegitimate child of Louisa Wilson and John Garrison.
3. Ella (Chaney) Dorsey, who lives in Kent County aforesaid, and is the illegitimate child of Louisa Wilson and Thomas Chaney.
4. George Chaney who lives in Kent County, aforesaid, and is the illegitimate child of Louisa Wilson and Thomas Chaney.
5. Bertha Clayton, daughter of Louisa Wilson Pearson and Isaac Pearson. She died in testate about 5 years ago, leaving no children but a husband, Jim Clayton, who is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, surviving her.
6. Grant Pearson, son of Louisa Pearson and Isaac Pearson, who is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and resides in the State of Pennsylvania.
7. Al Pearson, son of Louisa Wilson Pearson and Isaac Pearson, who is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and resides in the State of New Jersey.
8. Emma Pearson, daughter of Louisa Wilson Pearson and Isaac Pearson, and who died intestate about 6 or 7 years ago, without having been married but leaving two illegitimate children surviving her, viz., Carson Dorsey 18 years old, and Emma Dorsey, 11 years old, both of whom are residents of Kent County aforesaid.

C.

Children or descendants of children of Dave Wilson, a brother of James A Wilson who married —— Wilson, both of whom died intestate many years ago.

1. Alec Wilson, a son, who is a non resident of the State of Maryland, but resides in the State of New York.
2. Annie Wilson, a daughter, who married Louis Oakley, and who died intestate about 9 years ago, leaving her husband and the following children surviving her:
   a. John Fletcher Oakley, adult.
   b. Carrie Oakley, infant.
   c. Mary Rebecca Oakley, infant, all of whom live in Kent County, Maryland.

D.

Children or descendants of children of Sarah Wilson, a sister of James A. Wilson, who died intestate a number of years ago, after having been married twice, the first time to Alexander Wright, who died about 30 years ago, and the second time to Jim Brooks, who died sometime during the year 1914.

1. Jerry Wright, who married Henrietta Wright, both of whom died intestate, about 15 years ago, leaving one child, Charlie Wright, adult, who does not reside in the State of Maryland.
2. Harry Wright, adult, whose place of residence is unknown.
3. West Wright, adult, whose place of residence is unknown.
4. Frances Brooks who married John Brooks, both of whom died intestate about 4 or 5 years ago, leaving the following children surviving them: a. William Brooks. b. Anthony Brooks. c. Alexander Brooks. d. Edward Brooks. e. Berta Wilmer. f. Araminta Sampson. g. Maggie Dorsey. h. Ada Dorsey. All of whom are adults, and live in Kent County, Maryland, with the exception of Edward Brooks and Anthony Brooks, who are non-residents of this State.
5. Laura Brooks, who died intestate during the year 1915, having been married twice; the first time to Perry Chambers, who lives in Kent County, Maryland, by whom she left the following children: a. Howard Chambers, adult, who lives in Kent County, Marvland. b. Levina Chambers, who died intestate about 8 years ago, leaving an illegitimate child, Preston Ford. infant, whose place of residence is unknown.

Laura Brooks afterwards married Robert Bratcher, who lives in Kent County, Maryland. and by whom she left the following children: c. Jim Bratcher, infant. d. Mary Lizzie Bratcher, infant, both of whom live in Kent County, Maryland.

3. That the said James A. Wilson at the time of his death was possessed of personal property of insufficient value to pay his just debts and funeral expenses, but that letters of administration on his personal estate have been granted to Philip Wright, as will appear by reference to the Certificate of Letters filed herewith, and marked Plaintiff's Exhibit No 5

4. That the above described real estate is not susceptible of division among the parties aforesaid, who have an interest therein without loss and injury to them, and your Orators are advised that it is right and proper for this Honorable Court to pass a decree authorizing and directing the above described real estate to be sold and the proceeds thereof to be distributed among the persons entitled, according to their respective interests, and they suggest and recommend that S. Scott Beck, of Chestertown, Maryland, be appointed Trustee to make said sale.

It is thereupon, this 6th day of March, 1916, ordered by the Circuit Court of Kent County in Equity, that the Plaintiffs by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Kent County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of April next, giving notice to the said Jim Clayton, Grant Pearson Al Pearson, Alec Wilson, Charlie Wright, Harry Wright West Wright, Anthony Brooks, Edward Brooks and Preston Ford, infant, non-resident defendants, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 28th day of April next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

WHEN IT'S MARDI GRAS TIME IN NEW ORLEANS

BY W. MACK REICHE

Jean Lafitte

It is my wish that anyone who enters the Crescent City will be lucky enough to get under the guidance of a clever lecturer or a companion familiar with things traditional. Either would be apt to hit upon the prowess, wealth and valor of the once-upon-a-time "patriot-pirate" Jean Lafittte (Szhon Lah-feet.) And he'll begin by pointing out Old Absinthe House, which was once the headquarters of this audacious smuggler. Then he will go on to say that Lafitte was born in 1780, that no one seems to know anything of when or where he died, that he held a commission as French privateer, which service he permitted to degenerate into piracy. But—and much emphasis is put upon that "but"—he and his brother rendered such loyal service to America, in the war against England, that they were accorded full pardon for all past misdeeds.

There is another place of weird, fascinating tradition just a short distance from the pirate's den—The Haunted House, made famous by the writings of George W. Cable.

You may also be persuaded to make a visit to Grand Isle, where all kinds of stirring stories can be heard of the forays and raids of these daring buccaneers, for many of the inhabitants of this isle are descended from Jean Lafitte's pirate crew.

A more conglomerate population—Creoles, Chinese, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Philipinos, etc —would be hard to find; yet many of them are the grand children and great-grand-children of Lafitte's picaroons, and even the recital of these family traditions makes the booming of cannon and the clashing of short arms seem uncomfortably imminent!

The Battle of New Orleans

The scene of this battle, not far from the city, is a rendezvous of all travelers, and oft is the tale told of how General Jackson and his little following of 2,131 men, January 8, 1815, met and defeated the British Army of Invasion, led by General Pakenham, composed of 14,450 men.

Oranges, Sugar and Cotton

You who have gone thru those Louisiana cotton fields, seen those orange groves, and enjoyed that sugar cane; you who have stepped in front of an "old cabin home" to listen to those darkies singing, to hear those banjos ringing—now really, haven't you already begun to whistle:

I am going far away, far away to leave you now,
To the Mississippi Valley I am going?

"Gwan man, you-all hursh yo' mouf,
I jis gotta git back in Loozyann to pick me uh cotton ball an' chaw dat suguh cane!"

"A Pictorial Wonder Book"

If there is anything in hereditary habits—healthful habits—I'll wager a peck of picayunes that the bunch of students who organized the first street procession of masqueraders in New Orleans, in 1827, was a live one!

Whether or not their names still adorn (?) the register of their Parisian Alma Mater is of little import. It goes without saying that they are not without honor in their own, for, without them, the New Orleans Carnival Season might never have been originated. Why these festivities ever lapsed into oblivion until about 1852 is only conjecture; however, from that time until the present, there has not been much of a respite. The year 1857 ushered a new idea—the presentation of scenes on floats. This custom is in vogue today, and every float taking part in this lavish celebration is the culmination of artistic skill. New Orleans is the domicile of the four Carnival Deities: Momus, Proteus, Comus and Rex—the Merry King of the Carnival, each vieing with the other in the creation of beautiful, brilliant, original floats. For instance: In the Momus pagent, presenting tableaux of "Just-So-Stories" or "Tales of the How and Why," Car No. 5 seemed most original and unique. It bore this title:

How The Camel Got His Hump

In the beginning of the years, when the world so-new-and-all, and the animals just commencing to work for man—so the explanation runs— there was a Camel who lived in a Howling Desert, because he did not wish to work, besides he was a howler himself. Whenever anyone suggested work to him, he was even too lazy to answer, but would say "Humph!" just "Humph!" When it came to the ears of the Djinn how scruciating idle the Camel was and he heard him say "Humph!" just "Humph!" and nothing more; "Humph! indeed," said said the Djinn, "Humph it shall be for him!" So he made great magic on the Camel, and when he came out of the spell, sure enough the Camel had a Hump on him, and a Hump he has to this day, and he has had to hump himself ever since to keep up with the work that has been put on him.

"The Camel's Hump is an ugly lump
Which well you may see at the Zoo.
But uglier yet is the hump we get
From having too little to to."

For an entire year these secret organizations plan and work on these floats, about twenty-five to each procession, the designs and decorations being in the hands of artists and craftsmen, who give of their best. New Orleans claims that, in comparison with her own carnival, those of the Corso of Rome and the canals of Venice are but tame affairs. She also boasts that her Big Show "grows in splendor and magnificence each year." The entertainment is spectacular and the floats a "web of beautiful imaginings," but about it all there is neither the brilliancy of the Los Angeles Electrical Parades nor the elegance and grandeur so characteristic of Philadelphia's Mummers' Parade. And as for "splendor and magnificence:" The New Orleans' floats in their entirety, and the Los Angeles Electric Parades in their entirety, and the Mummers' Parade—well, if you care to see the whole combination eclipsed, be sure to attend the Democratic Inaugural Parade on March 4, 1917. The Mardi Gras festival has grown to be an integrant part of the Carnival City, and is a wonderful source of amusement to folks of all ages, especially the younger generation of each succeeding year, the casual visitor,, and the globe-trotting pleasure-seeker.

While the festivities do not last a whole week, as is generally supposed, there is ample entertainment all the while to justify a week's sojourn. The parade of the Knights of Momus, on Thursday preceeding Ash Wednesday, is the first visible sign of anything showlike. This pageant, like those to follow in its train, later on, is followed by a beautiful tableaux and a Grand Ball.

Then there is a lapse of three days—Friday. Saturday and Sunday—before another sign of the times.

On Monday morning, long before the appointed time, the dense, but orderly, crowd throng the house-tops, streets and docks to witness the arrival of the King of the Carnival—Rex.

This sovereign comes up the river on his private yacht, is greeted by his Knights and retinue, enters the Royal Chariot, and, after parading the streets, is ceremoniously proffered the Key to the City.

While the physique, the facial make-up, and the robes of the make-believe monarch lent an "every-inch a King" appearance, yet, on the occasion of which this is written, A. D. 18—, had His Majesty not accepted the physical support of several of his Knights, while walking down the gang-plank, it is quite probable that he would have received a ducking before he received his crown.

A monarch reserves the right to wine and dine both before and after his coronation—a piece of information gained quicker—sometimes—thru the eye than the ear.

The incident, while amusing, served to disclose the tin beneath the tinsel, and one could not help but feel sorry for the uninitiated, credulous spectators, for obviously they wanted to see His Majesty make the triumphal entry en dignite

On the night of this day—Monday—the Krewe of Proteus hold their parade, tableaux and Grand Ball.

Shrove Tuesday—Mardi Gras Day—ushers in the climax, as well as the end, of Carnival Season.

At earliest dawn maskers in garish costumes begin to appear from everywhere in every conceivable disguise. Just as many devils in yellow, green or purple as in red. Myriads of clowns, ghosts, Teddy-bears, jockeys, monkeys, harlequins, cowboys, Spanish dancers, Colonial gents, ballet girls—and all the et ceteras imaginable! Some arm in arm, doing the serpentine thru the crowds; some dancing, others singing; some frisky, others demure; some swaggering, others sedate; frolicsome pranks, tricks, stunts—anything to divert the bystanders.

An ever ebbing-flowing crowd, the gayest and best-humored in the world! And why not? Rex enforces but one law: "Let all pure, lovely joy be unrestrained!" And since he holds the key to the city, the streets belong to the masqueraders and the visitors!

But at high noon the streets are cleared to make way for the official parade. It is then that the policeman's fingers must be mighty deft to retard the omnipresent "kid," prospecting for the first glimpse of the parade, or a clutch at the souvenirs (strings of beads and trinkets) flung to the spectators by the attendants upon the passing floats.

After the King, in his Royal Chariot, and the shining line of Royal Floats pass thru and disappear, the maskers and the kaleidoscopic crowd again take possession of the streets, where high revelry obtains until the setting of the sun.

The night of this day—Tuesday—is the night of all!

The Mystic Krewe of Comus follow up their brilliant night procession with a more brilliant ball at the old French Opera House; at the same hour, members and the invited of Rex are equally jubilant, in the same pastime, in other quarters equally resplendent.

On Shrove Tuesday night, there isn't a lonely soul or a lonely spot thruout the Carnival City; yet, ere the dawn of the morrow, Ash Wednesday, every vestige of festal revelry will have vanished—like the things of yester-year.

GOV. HARRINGTON WRITES TO MARYLAND CHILDREN

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND.
March 17th, 1916.

TO THE CHILDREN OF MARYLAND.

My Dear Young Friends:—

I am sure that you know that Friday, April 7th will be "Arbor Day" and, that you know also that while it is not a legal holiday in Maryland, the day has been especially set apart by proclamation as a day for planting shade trees about our homes and along our public roads.

Most work of public interest in the State must of necessity be done by your parents and your grown up relatives, but the work which the General Assembly of Maryland thought important enough to direct the Governor to call to the attention of our people by proclamation each year, setting apart a special day for it, is a work which little boys and little girls, can do, and I am writing you this letter, requesting you to help us do the work.

If I could see each one of you in person and ask you to do something for the welfare of our State, I am sure you would do it if you could, but as I cannot do that, I want you to regard this letter as a personal request from the Governor and I believe you will grant it. Our State is a beautiful State and we all love it. We love its trees and flowers, its farms and rivers, and loving it, we want to do all we can to make it even more beautiful than it is.

Nothing contributes more to the beauty of our yards and roads than pretty trees, and if each girl and boy in our State will carefully plant a shade tree, in a place where one is needed, along a public highway, you will be helping to beautify our State and helping to make it a more pleasant place to live in. I request you to do this, and I hope that after it is planted you will take pride in that tree, and that you will watch it as the years go by, and protect it from harm, and that you will do all you can to make it thrive and grow.

I send a special greeting to you all, and I ask you to help us in this work to beautify the State.

Sincerely yours,
[Signed] EMERSON C. HARRINGTON,
Governor of Marvland.
