ROCK HALL

Oyster season here opened on a very small scale. Quite a number of tongers were out in Chester river but there were neither buyers nor tongers out on the bayside. Active operations are not expected ere the latter part of the month. Crabbers have been doing well during the season and are still in a good harvest. Consequently the greater number will continue the business until after the middle of the month. Many of the colored contingency of the oystering force prefer staying on their job over the bay where they have been employed all summer. Others of their race are doing farm work.

This town was greatly enlivened the past week by the band concerts of the Floating Theatre company. The night performances in the theatre during the week were not as largely attended as was hoped until Saturday evening when there was a record breaking crowd present. The theatre left here midnight Saturday. Those who witnessed the performances are loud in their praise of the exhibitions of the company.

The snappy Fall spurt in the weather of Sunday failed to bring out the usual throng of church goers. The congregation at the M. E. Church was far short of the average. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Prettyman, however, was about at his best with a splendid sermon on the Gospel as a proof of the power of God. The Sunday school was also slimly attended.

Mr. Granville Ashley, of the city, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Ashley.

Mr. C. H. Smith, who has been employed at a munition plant at Chester, Pa., since July 1st, took advantage of Sunday and Labor Day to visit his home here. He is highly pleased with his job and hopes his health will permit him to stick to it. He says he has helped to produce munitions enough to kill all the Teutons that were ever born or ever will be born.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hague, of Lynch, spent the week end at their old homes here.

Mr. N. G. Ryan, of near Chestertown, and Mr. C. M. Ryan, of Fairlee, were Sunday visitors to their homes here.

Mr. Leroy R. Crosby, of Hartford, Conn., has been on a two weeks visit to his mother, Mrs. S. M. Crosby, and other relatives of Rock Hall. He was accompanied by his friend, Mr. John P Bowers, of Pittsburg, Pa., who had never been in this section before and pronounced it great.

Miss Margaret Burgess is assisting Mr. Charles Judefind in the Rock Hall postoffice.

Mr. Charles Coleman, son of Mr. Wm. H. Coleman, is crically ill of tuberculosis of the throat.

Mrs. Vernon A. Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., with her little son, Richard, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Thos. E. Joyner. Mrs. Hunter still finds Rock Hall the one place in the world in which to spend the summer months.

Master Rulon Levy, of Baltimore, is dodging the infantile paralysis. He is now at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Crew, near Worton.

Mrs. A. Alexander, who recently returned from the city, reports a thrilling experience of an automobile accident in which she and her daughter's family were victims. All were badly shaken up. Her grand-daughter, Miss Freda Kramer, was painfully injured but not seriously.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm J. Hudson spent he week-end among relatives in this section.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lambert, of Norfolk, Va., are guests of Mrs. L's sister, Miss Daisy Ryan, for a week's sojourn.

The season at Tolchester having closed, our hustling friend, C. F. Wheatley, will be at the old stand next week in the meat and provision business.

The rain of Wednesday was a most welcome visitor to this section.

A REACTIONARY storm period is central on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th, according to Hicks. The Moon is in perigee on the 9th, being at full Moon, or in opposition with Earth and Sun and on the celestial equator on the 11th. It must also be remembered that the 11th day of September, like the 11th day of March, is the centre of an annual crisis of magnetic unrest and violence. A regular storm period is central on the 16th, extending from the 14th to 19th.

CARE OF THE FARM CAR

To keep an auto in good running order there are several things that require special atttention. The carburetor should be kept properly adjusted. During changeable weather, that is when one day is some what cold and the next warm, it is not easy to keep the carburetor perfectly adjusted and it is best not to do too much changing until one knows his carburetor so well that he knows almost without testing how much of a change to make.

When making a change I keep in mind the number of half turns given the thumb adjustment. Then I know the kind of a change needed for cold and warm weather. I watch the oiling system carefully, always using the best grade of oil obtainable. I use only one make of oil, never changing to another. I once changed to a different brand, thinking it would make no difference, but soon found the oiling system not working right.

The cooling system comes in for a good deal of attention. When the weather is warm the engine must be kept cool enough so that everything works well. The water in a water-cooled engine is supposed to be always at the boiling point around the cylinder to be certain of best results. It is not supposed to boil in the radiator, of course, but no damage is done if it does boil, providing the radiator is kept reasonably full and enough lubricating oil is being used to prevent the pistons from sticking. I use nothing but soft water in the radiator, as scale will not form from soft water; changing the water quite often and thoroughly flushing out the water system when changing water. I exercise care to see that the circulation is not obstructed.

Of course, all gear cases are kept as full as they should be with transmission grease Besides keeping the oiling and cooling systems working right and the engine up in trim there is always the tires to look after. Tires should be kept fully inflated at all times, but the fact that heat produces a greater pressure must not be lost sight of.

THOMPSON'S GARAGE
CHESTERTOWN, MD.

I have found that a tire that registered a pressure of seventy pounds when starting out will register a pressure of eighty pounds after an eight mile run over a hot road on a hot day.

When the weather is hot and the road is hot, I cut down from five to eight pounds on air carried in the tires, as the heat will soon put that much in a tire. If a tube is patched there is almost certain to be trouble for the simple reason that the heat will burn the patches off.

For use during warm weather a thorough job of vulcanizing makes the only permanent repair on a tube. Small vulcanizers will do this at very little expense and their operation can be quickly learned, but those who do not care to do this should by all means let a cement patch on a tube be only a temporary repair, having the rent vulcanized as soon as possible. That is the only way to be free from tire going flat in hot weather, causing delay and disgust with the whole tire proposition.

Dust and dirt should be kept off an auto as much as possible, as the more cleanly it is kept the better it looks, the easier it will run, and the longer it will last.

My car receives a good brushing and rubbing with a woolen cloth after coming from a drive, all worn grease and oil being removed. In running the car I never drive very fast, and in turning corners and going over bad places in the road I go very slowly. I do not like to drive the machine in mud and do so only when I am away from home and it rains before I can get back. The upkeep of a car is not very great if the machine is well cared for and run properly.
