Starr Church was dedicated last November and is one of the handsomest church edifices in Baltimore, and the entire Conference district. It was erected at a cost of about $60,000 and is modern in all its appointments and is admirably suited for the Conference session. With the parsonage and Sunday school rooms and the desirable corner lot on which the property stands it represents a real estate value of nearly $100,000.

THE home of Mrs. Mary Neal, of Reliance, has been invaded by a large black snake. Its skin, found on a chair in the parlor, was the first indication of the visitor. The snake was located on a shelf, coiled up on the winter's supply of canned fruit. Before it could be killed the reptile disappeared down a rat hole. The snake, which is an unusually large one, has frequently been seen since in various parts of the house but so far has managed to escape.
