GARBAGE FEEDING RESPONSIBLE FOR HOG CHOLERA

Federal Authorities Find Large Percentage Of Disease Due To This Practice.

Interesting statistics have been compiled by Dr. I. K. Atherson, Federal Inspector in charge of hog cholera control in Maryland, relative to the manner in which hog cholera infection is introduced in primary outbreaks of this disease. Of the 458 cases in the State last year, 365 were found to be primary or orginal infections and the records of these outbreaks show that 80 per cent were attributable to feeding garbage or table scraps to the affected hogs.

This is a factor in the spread of the disease which is often overlooked by the farmer and swine raiser as attested by the almost universal practice of feeding unsterilized garbage to swine. Of course the contaminating elements in garbage are scraps of pork, trimmings and bones which were a part of the carcass of an animal killed while suffering with the disease.

Interesting experiments conducted in the laboratories of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry have proven conclusively that the disease can be transmitted by this means. The investigators found that not only was fresh pork capable of carrying the germs of cholera but that parts of carcasses put through the ordinary curing and smoking process of the packing house were capable of transmitting the disease to healthy hogs after an interval as late as six months.

The fact that apparently 80 per cent of all hog cholera in the State of Maryland is due to this practice, is of sufficient importance to warrant extreme care on the part of swine raisers in the feeding of garbage. Either the garbage should be sterialized by cooking or else care taken to exclude therefrom all pork scraps, trimmings and bones.

The U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry is conducting in co-operation with the State Board of Agriculture and the Extension Service of the University of Maryland, a campaign to control hog cholera in Maryland. This campaign in order to be a success must have the co-operation of farmers and swine raisers in general and one of the most effective ways in which assistance can be rendered the authorities is in the reporting of all cases of sickness among hogs. These cases are promptly investigated by Federal veterinarians and where early information is had of outbreaks not the slightest difficulty has been experienced in preventing the spread of infection. In order that assistance may therefore be given them, farmers and others are urged to make a prompt report of all cases of sick hogs, either to their county agricultural agent or Dr. W. H. Wright, Elkton, Md., Federal Veterinarian in this district.

BIRTH OF A NATION

It seems probable that the question will have to be left to a jury of experts, which might also, while it is sitting determine who wrote "Dixie."

The question of who was the founder of the Ku Klux Klan and where the organization originated that swept away the carpet-baggers and their credulous tools during the Reconstruction period has again become the subject of a live debate with the invasion of "The Birth of a Nation" into the ancient strongholds of the Ku Kluxers.

When Griffith's spectacle was first exhibited in Memphis, the little city of Pulaski in Giles county, Tenn., put forward its claims to the honor of being the cradle of the band of heroes so splendidly pictured by Mr. Griffith. A few days later, Shreveport, La., declared itself the proud possessor of the man in whose brain originated the idea of the Clan, and declared this man had died only a few months ago. South Carolina, the home of the semi-mythical hero of the Griffith spectacle and Thomas Dixon's story on which it is based, also asserts its claims, and declares that history bears out the theories of Griffith and Dixon.
