Think What It Means
One man or boy can do in two days with a Fordson as much as a man can do in 6 days with three mules. Fuel cost per day $2.25. Overhead cost per year—for fuel, repairs and depreciation—not to exceed overhead cost of 2 mules.

Are The Results Worth Comparing?
COST OF 3 MULES, $600
Operating Cost of 3 Mules per Year
Feed and medicine 40c per day each
365 days (not including attention) $438.00
Depreciation, 10% 60.00

Fuel and oil—25 days $62.50
Depreciation 50.00
Repairs for year 50.00
Interest 24.00

Operating costs for the next 12 months will determine the profit made by you. The fellow who realizes greater production at reduced costs will make some money, and the one who follows the lines of grandfathers will begin to think.

Over $200,000 Fordsons are in the field to-day. Ask any owner which is cheaper—mules or Fordson. A $395 Fordson against 9 mules and three men per day. Is there any real comparison for economy?
