Plans For W. C. Endowment

Plans for the Washington College Endowment Fund Campaign for $250,000 or more are going forward splendidly. James W. Chapman, Jr., Esq., of Baltimore, has accepted the chairmanship and will direct the appeal to be made to the citizens of Maryland, particularly the Eastern Shore and Alumni. Senator Dudley is vice-chairman of the committee. Plans are under way to organize every one of the nine counties. The following chairman have already been secured:

Kent county, Allan A. Harris.
Cecil county, I. T. Kepler.
Caroline county, E. M. Noble.
Wicomico county, Mrs. George A. Bounds.

Mr. Chapman in accepting the chairmanship, said he believed Washington College was facing its greatest era of usefulness to the State. That in recent years, it had shown splendid vigor. The attendance of the students increasing 50 per cent in the last three years and the enrollment in the college department doubling in the same period.

To make of Washington College all it can and should be, will require that our citizens, particularly on the Eastern Shore, where the greatest profits of the college are received, shall come forward in sacrificial giving that shall provide a permanent endowment. Too long has Washington College held out its hands for State appropriation as a main dependence for support. We must assert our public spirit and do for Washington College what citizens elsewhere have for years been doing for their colleges. We cannot retain our self-respect and do otherwise. Governor Ritchie and his associates in the State administration are earnestly endeavoring to reduce taxes. This means pruning all along the line. We must begin preparations now to provide a permanent endowment that shall take the place of previous appropriations. A bill has been introduced in the Senate, carrying an appropriation of $100,000 for Washington College upon a condition that the college raise $200,000 additional. It is squarely up to us. We appeal to the natural pride of Marylanders, especially the Eastern Shore. In several respects, our college is below standard. This means that our boys and girls graduated from Washington College are at a disadvantage. The purpose of this endowment is to change this situation and send our boys and girls out on a par with the graduates of other colleges.

The general plan of the campaign is to conduct the intensive solicitation in Kent county from March 27th to April 8th, and in the other eight counties beginning April 3rd, completing the Eastern Shore solicitation before the middle of April.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

By HORACE B. DERRICK

Dairymen To Meet.

One of the biggest problems of the Kent County Dairymen is the dairy ration. The importance of raising protein feeds on the farm is not fully realized. Likewise, what to buy to balance the feeds grown is a problem to many.

What we raise on the farm should be the basis for computing our dairy rations. What we buy should fit in with what we raise so as to make the most economical balanced ration.

Looking toward the solution of the above problems, I have arranged with the Extension Dairy Specialist and Agronomy Specialist to be present at a series of meetings which I have arranged with Kent County Dairymen. These meetings are in accordance with the "Program of Work" of the Farm Bureau Locals and should prove very profitable to every Kent County Dairymen. Meetings are as follows:

Tuesday, March 25th, 9.30 a. m., Massey Hall.

Tuesday, March 25. 1.30 p. m., at Millington High School.

Wednesday, March 26th, 9.30 a. m., Kennedyville School.

Thursday, March 27th. 9.30 a. m., Worton Grange Hall.

Thursday, March 27th, 7.30 p. m., Chestertown Court House.

Friday, March 28th. 9.30 a. m., at Rock Hall School.

Friday, March 28th. 7.30 p. m., at Fairlee School.

Mr. Dairyman, these will be blackboard talks, so bring your note-book and pencil and figure out the best rations for your conditions.

Tomato Plant Beds.

Meetings of tomato growers and canners were held last Monday and Tuesday at Betterton. Chestertown and Fairlee, to discuss the growing of tomato plants in central plant beds instead of each grower having his own plant bed.

County Agent H. B. Derrick spoke of the good results of the central tomato plant bed at Betterton last year and in other counties where tried. Mr. Ballard, Tomato Specialist of the Extension Service and A. D. Radebaugh, County Agent, Cecil County, spoke on the methods used in the central plant beds, the good results of last year, and showed stereopticon slides of the different operations, some of which were of the bed at Betterton.

It was unanimously decided at Betterton to have another central plant bed at Harry Willis', provided a suitable contract for tomatoes was signed. Arthur Brice, Harry Willis and Mr. Stokes were appointed the committee on plant bed.

Likewise. Chestertown voted to have a central plant bed on the farm of L. A. Sutton, to be operated by Stanley Sutton. A committee on plant bed was appointed as follows: L. A. Sutton, Thomas Bryan and D. W. Ingersoll.

Fairlee voted unanimously for a plant bed, but did not decide where it should be located. A committee on plant bed was appointed to consist of W. P. Graves, George Hendrickson and Dane E. Rianhard.

County Agent Derrick agreed to supervise these beds and give as much time as practical to them. An average of over 2 tons per acre were grown from plants out of central beds in Maryland last year than other plants. Farmers must give their orders to one of the committees promptly in order to get plants from the beds.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear mother, Mary Elizabeth, who departed this life four years ago, March 24, 1920.

Often when the day is brightest,
There's a gloom steals in my heart,
And it brings back sad memories
Of the day God did us part.
For the Lord who gave has called you,
To His will we all must bow;
You are free from pain and suffering
Not a care can reach you now.
By Her Daughter.

In loving memory of my dear husband, John Legg, who died March 18, 1921.

Only a few lines dear husband,
To say I will never forget,
The happy years we spent together,
For the memory lives with me yet,
And if you were only here,
My heart would be more light
For you would always seem to cheer me up,
And make things seem more bright.
But our lives are only parting,
And its hard to bear the grief,
But I will put my trust in God
And I am sure will find relief,
But my heart is ever aching.
Although I smile each day,
For my thoughts are with my loved one,
That God has taken away.
By His wife and Daughter.
