Fire Conquered By Invention Of A Light Powder

"Marvelous!" This expressive word escaped the lips of Fire Chief Walter Wright last Saturday evening after witnessing a demonstration of a new powder form of fire extinguisher at foot of Cross street. And the word was truly well spoken, as the compound used by the inventor, Elden W. Hanks, and his sales managers, Walker & Tollenger, shows beyond a doubt that it will prove a blessing to mankind.

Several large packing boxes were placed in a row on the vacant lot. These were soaked in tar oil and later saturated with gasoline. A match was applied and in a second they became like raging furnaces, billows of smoke and shafts of flames leaping into the air. To show the merit of his product, Hanks threw a handful of the powder on one of the blazing boxes and the fire was no more. Its effect is really remarkable. Then down the line he went with Mr. Tollenger, tossing the powder on the fires carelessly and in another moment the scene which had been one of intense brilliance was now in darkness.

Not satisfied with this Mr. Hanks saturated one of his trousers' legs with gasoline. A match was applied and directly his clothing was in flames. A handful of the extinguisher was thrown over the blaze. That was out.

A large packing box was set on fire, gasoline added to make it more intense. Then a quantity of carbide was dumped on the blaze. A chemical apparatus from the Fire Company, of Chestertown, a stream played on the flames. It sputtered and seemed to increase, having little effect. A few handfuls of the powder did the trick. Local agents will canvas the county.

Nearly 4,000 acres of valuable Queen Anne's county farming lands will be affected by the legal division of the estate of the late William McKenney, of Centreville, for which preliminary steps were taken last week by the newly appointed partition committee, composed of James Merrick, Jr., of Sudlersville; James P. Brown, of Church Hill, and Chas. M. West, of Centreville. The three men were appointed by the court and took oath of office last Saturday. The heirs of the estate are: William McKenney, Jr., of the firm of McKenney & Price, insurance agents, and director of the Centreville National Bank; John McKenney, who was graduated from Princeton recently and is now studying law in Baltimore, and Miss Maria McKenney, of Centreville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Shawn, of Centreville, entertained the immediate members of the family and a few friends Sunday week at a birthday dinner when Mr. Shawn celebrated his 78th birthday anniversary. The party was also given for Mrs. Shawn who reached her 78th birthday just three days before. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Baxter and Miss Marjorie Clendining, of Millington; Samuel Baxter, of Chestertown; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wesley, Miss Kathleen Wesley and Miss Mary T. Earle, and S. Charles Walls, of Centreville.

Commissioners To Submit Plans For Roads

County Commissioners of Kent county have been notified by John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission, that about 80 miles of new road construction can be started throughout Maryland this year, with funds made available last week when Governor Ritchie signed the bill providing for a road bond issue.

Letters were sent from his office to all county commisisoners informing them that $600,000 would be spent this year on lateral roads and asking them to make recommendations immediately as to which roads in their respective counties should be improved first.

The commissioners were also asked what highways of the post road system they would suggest be improved this year. On these roads, the State pays half the expense and the Federal Government the other. There is also available $600,000 in this State for the work, Mr. Mackall said.

As soon as Mr. Mackall hears from the commissioners of the various counties, he will prepare an improvement program for this year and will begin as soon as possible to let contracts.

TOMATO SEED

The first important step to insure a good crop of Tomatoes is to get good seed.

Experts tell us the best Tomato Seed grown in this country are grown in Michigan, because there is less "wilt" in Michigan than in any other State.

For a number of years now w have been selling this "Michigan" grown seed and we and our customers are fully convinced of their quality. They produce better CROPS, they run TRUE TO NAME, and they cost no more money than many of the seed that are offered whose origin is unknown.

All the standard varieties in this Michigan Seed are offered while they last at $2.50 per pound.

We can refer you to many of our customers who can tell you the value of this particular seed.

If you want cheaper seed we have some good Delaware grown seed in Greater Baltimore and New Stone that we can sell you at $1.50 per pound. These are good seed for native grown stock and run very true to name.

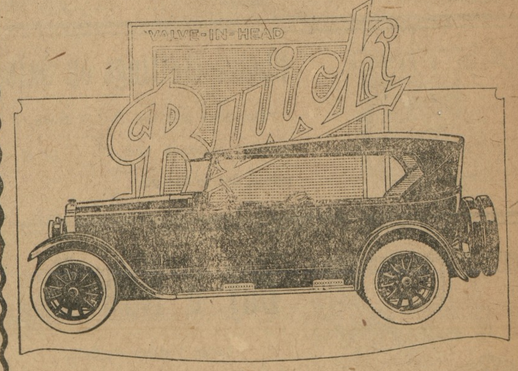

Our Garden Seed stock is very large and our prices are lower than present market would afford. Come see us when you want seed of any kind.
