New Light On Canse of Asthma and Hay Fever

The medical world has been grouping about in the dark for years in an effort to find a "cure" for Asthma and Hay Fever.

These two ailments are undoubtedly among the most annoying and troublesome ailments man or woman can have.

During recent years, however, clinical experience has proven the fact that Asthma and Hay Fever have their seat of origin in the nerves that emanate from the spine, and the cure of course lies in correcting the trouble from its source.

For every effect (ailment) there must be a cause, and chiropractic is most successful because it strikes at the very source of trouble and removes the cause, so that the effect (ailment) disappears.

William Bright, of Worton, Kent county, suffered with Asthma for a long time. Medicine only seemed to aggravate the trouble, and he found himself on the decline. A friend who hal just been cured of a similar ailment took him to Dr. Dill, the Chiropractor, and after a series of Special Adjustments, he was completely restored to health and is now well and strong and advises all who are sick to try Chiropractic.

If you have been ailing talk to someone who has given Chiropractic a fair trial, and you will hear a story of wonderful recovery.

GASOLINE TRAIN RUNS ON M. D. C.

Residents of Denton and other towns along the line turned out Saturday to see the first gasoline train of the Maryland and Delaware Coast Railway between West Denton and Lewes start out to "resurrect" the route abandoned by the defunct Maryland, Delaware and Virginia Railroad Company.

Jesse Rosenfield, president of the company and other officials left on the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic steamer from pier 8 Light St., Saturday morning at 7 o'clock to inaugurate the service. There were 18 Baltimore passengers turned over to the gasoline train by the B. C. & A., at Denton Junction, a point near Hillsboro, where the gasoline train was waiting. Several other passengers were picked up by the train from there on to Lewes.

The new service will provide transportation between Baltimore and Rehoboth Beach with two trains a day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. Baltimore passengers leaving on the 7 a. m. boat will make connections with the gasoline train service at Denton Junction, while those taking the 4.05 p. m. boat will take the gasoline trains at Love Point.

BRYAN'S PRAYER STILLS TUMULT

Invokes God's Guidance In Shaping Issues As Fifty-four Are Near Blows On Klan

William Jennings Bryan was the central figure in one of the most amazing incidents ever recorded in the history of political conventions as dawn broke over New York Saturday morning.

As the early mists lifted above the Metropolitan Life Insurance building, letting the early sun reflect its brilliance against the golden torch atop the tower, when the freshness of a new day filled the air, Bryan arose in a stifling room in Madison Square Hotel and called upon God to guide the spirits of 54 men, huddled about him, toward the right. One by one, these men, members of the resolutions committee, composed of Congressmen, Senators, former Cabinet officers and leaders of the various delegations, coatless and perspiring, wearied and torn, fell to their knees.

Bryan's voice ran clear:

"Oh, Lord, in this hour of extremity, when the future of the party and even our Government seems to rest in the balance, look down upon us in thine all-understanding.

"Calm our passions, free us of our prejudices, restore harmony in our councils.

"Give us wisdom to see the right and the courage to do the right. Help us, we humbly beseech thee, to solve this problem for the good of our party and our country. In Jesus' name. Amen."

With his coat half off, his face streaming with perspiration and his eyes swollen through lack of sleep, Judge John H. McCann, of Ebensburgh, Pa., a Catholic and a resident of the same Ebensburg which last week went through the drama attendant to the trying of 18 Klansmen for murder on charges growing out of the Lilly riots, begged the assembly to join him in the Lord's Prayer.

Every one of the 54 arose and bowed his head as, led by this Catholic jurist, they repeated after him the words, beginning: "Our Father, who are in heaven."

The Commoner's invocation was the climax of 20 hours of perhaps the most gruelling session ever held by the resolution committee of any political faith. It was the calm after the storm and, paradoxically, the calm before the storm. The issue was religious liberty, the fundamental principle of the Constitution of the United States as well as a Jeffersonian shibboleth. It was the lull in the battle over the Ku Klux Klan plank. which today is the predominant issue before the Democratic convention.

From 12.45 a. m. these 54 men have been fighting each other to find a solution to the problem which threatens to split their party and to bring ruin on the chances of the party's candidates next November. Along toward 4.45 a. m. the debate became acrimonious. Men removed their coats, others, inflamed with a religious passion, saw in that action a threat and a challenge. Other coats were removed and violence was at hand.

Then Chairman Homer S. Cummins. of Connecticut. arose, arose steadied himself at a table, and looking full into the faces of those before him, said:

"Gentlemen, the time has come to think. not of our disputes, but of the Democratic party. If the scenes enacted here were to be transferred to the floors of this convention it is impossible to imagine what might happen."

The chairman's plea had an almost unprecedented effect.

As the last amen died on the lips of the haggard group the cathedral chimes in the Metropolitan Tower began tolling the hour of 6. A beam of sunlight sifted through the white stiff curtains of that little hotel room. In the silence it seemed to feel its way across the green beige table covering, and it trickled over the hand of William Jennings Bryan. The Commoner's hour again had struck. It was then he invoked the help of God to set himself and his colleagues right.

Hydrangeas are now in their glory on the lawns about Chestertown. Mrs. J. H. Sides, Mrs. P. A. M. Brooks, Mrs. J. W. Kirby, Mrs. William F. Russell, Mrs. Hope H. Barroll. and others have beautiful blooms. Western visitors marvel at these flowers as they cannot be grown there except in pots.
