DEATHS

Charles B. Warren, born in Kennedyville, Kent County, Md., in 1868, died July 10th after several months illness. Interment was made in the Warren lot, Easton, Talbot County, Md. He leaves a widow who was Miss Olive Turpin, of Mexico, Mo., and a daughter, wife of Lieut. Carl Brewington, of the Navy, and one granddaughter.

William T. Seward, for many years a resident of Church Hill, died at Cambridge Hospital Thursday from paralysis.

The deceased suffered a severe stroke several years ago and had never completely recovered. He is survived by one son, William G. Seward.

The remains were taken to the home of Mrs. Frank C. Green, of Church Hill, where the funeral services were held Saturday afternoon, interment in Church Hill Cemetery.

LLOYD E. WILKINSON DIES ON VACATION

Lloyd E. Wilkinson, sixty-nine, a lawyer and active in Maryland political circles for more than 20 years, died suddenly at 10 o'clock Tuesday night at Seaside Park, New Jersey, where he had gone for a vacation with his family.

A candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress last spring from the second district, Mr. Wilkinson was defeated by E. Ridgely Simpson.

He served several terms in the House of Delegates as member from Worcester county and was Democratic speaker for four sessions. He also has served Maryland as secretary of the Board of State Aid and Charities and as State Insurance Commissioner.

Burial was from his home, 3032 Walbrook avenue.

Mr. Wilkinson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie F. Wilkinson, and two sons, Paul J. and Walter Wilkinson, all of Baltimore.

A CORRECTION

The statement in last Saturday's issue of the Kent News that "W. F. Russell, Jr., reports a member of the Ku Klux Klan on his premises Tuesday night" is altogether erroneous. In no way have I suggested, stated or hinted to any one that a member of the Klan was present on that occasion or had the slightest connection with the affair. I trust, therefore, that no member of this organization will take offense at the item referred to.

WM. FRAZIER RUSSELL, JR.

The News is always glad to set right any errors that creep into our columns, and the above correction is cheerfully published. That it was an error is unquestionably a fact. It proves, however, how the masked person in the eyes of some are associated with the Klan, but not in Mr. Russell's report of the incident, and that they are many times unjustly charged with crimes they never commit. He says the man had a handkerchief over his face, etc., and that he does not know who it was.

Church Directory

Early empires, systems of philosophy have their day, human institutions decay, all things of this world bloom and fade away like the grass of the field; but the Christian religion has the dew of perennial youth, survives all changes, makes steady progress from age to age, overcomes all persecution from without and corruption from within, is now stronger and more widely spread than ever before, directs the course of civilization, and bears the hopes of the human race. The history of the world is governed in the interest and for the ultilmate triumph of Christian truth and righteousness.

The church teaches Christianity and is the great moral, restraining, ennobling and stimulating influence which works like a leaven from within upon all the ramifications of society.

The future progress and happiness of the world will depend upon the support and development of the church. Are you helping by your presence or support in any way? Do you ever ask yourself the question, "What kind of a church would all churches be, if no one did for them any more than me."

FIND GERMS IN CONTAINERS

Average Dairyman Handles Milk With Care in Milking and in Barn—Avoid Damp Cans.

Experiments conducted by the New York and Illinois experiment stations show that a very small percentage of the germs found in milk on delivery come from the barn. The average dairyman of today handles his milk with care in milking and while in the barn. Further investigations showed that most of the germs came from the containers that had been previously used for milk. Milk placed in cans that had been sterilized, but remained damp was found to contain many times more bacteria than milk placed in cans that had been thoroughly dried. A damp can is an ideal breeding place for germs.

PREPARATION OF COW FEEDS

Dairyman Should Give Special Attention to Curing of Forage—Grain Is Needed.

Special attention should be given by the dairyman to the preparation and combination of his feeds and especially to the curing of his forage. When giving a large flow of milk on dry feed, cows generally require considerable grain to maintain the milk yield. The amount of grain given with the ration should be gauged by the milk flow.

SCALD VESSELS WITH STEAM

Best for Use When Obtainable, but Boiling Water Does Well, Though Cools Quickly.

In scalding cans and vessels, steam is best when obtainable, but boiling water does very well. However, it should be borne in mind that water cools very rapidly when poured into a cold can and loses almost all of its effectiveness when poured from one can to another.
