Exceptionally accurate marksmanship, such as seldom is seen in this State, was exhibited in the third annual Betterton trapshooting tournament, conducted at the local traps under the auspices of the Betterton Gun Club last week. Two perfect scores were registered. W. B. Cochran, of Kennett Square, Pa., clicked off 100 consecutive clay pigeons to win the Betterton championship trophy. This event was shot in six events of 20, 15, 15, 20, 15, and 15 yards. F. S. Tomlin, of Glassboro, N. J., a professional, then smashed 150 birds without a miss to lead the way in the special 150 target event. W. L. Wolstencroft, of Frankford, Pa., carried off the honors in the Betterton handicap shoot, bringing down a string of 96 birds. Wolstencroft made this clever tally from a handicap of 22 yards, shooting down 15 pairs and then 10 pairs. Marylanders failed to score any of the major laurels, but several figured in the prize money under the Lewis classification system.

Dating from July 16th the railroad station at Millington becomes a one man station with no public service after 4.30 p. m.
