THE AUDITORS' REPORT

Elsewhere in the News today is an important statement from the Auditors of Kent County. These gentlemen, consisting of J. Frank Wheatley, Thomas W. Perkins and J. Raymond Simpers, are competent accountants and seem to have been thorough in their work. They have made a number of recommendations, the most important of which is concerning the almshouse farm.

They recommend the sale of this farm and, we learn, they have a purchaser who is willing to pay $10,000 for same. For the last 13 years this farm has shown a net loss from the pockets of the tax-payers of Kent of more than $10,000 over and above the cost of maintaining the Alms House.

The present Board of Trustees are good farmers and it is no reflection on them when we concur with the auditors in recommending the sale of this farm.

This condition in Kent is not an isolated one, because it is the experience of many other counties on the Shore and in other parts of the State.

THE GREAT NEED IN KENT

The plans being made by citizens interested in the Del-Mar-Via Peninsula Association should have the encouragement of everyone. Don't express an opinion until you have heard the proposition. Then, if it does not appeal to you, don't knock, but keep quiet and put yourself in the list of "satisfied."

The News does not put much stock in "booms," especially land booms. They very often turn out to be bombs! But in this organization now forming the object is to carry the Peninsula's charms and advantages to the outside world. To attract worth-while citizens who will buy small farms and do the work themselves. To attract persons who will help develop this Peninsula. Even an increase of a few dollars an acre in land values, would pay the farm owner handsomely. The coming of only a few hundred settlers and their families, would reimburse the average merchant or banker many times over. The establishment of just a few new important enterprises would make the investment a decidedly profitable business venture.

Business men are simply asked to invest in their own business; their own town, their own county. It is ...ing you to help tell the rest of ... world the opportunities that lie in these fertile lands along the bay and river.

Take pride in telling the world in what a fine place we live. Join the association and become a Booster.

A FORCIBLE ADDRESS

In the recent address of President Paul Emerson Titsworth, of Washington College, to the college faculty, is portrayed the sterling character of the speaker and his eminent fitness for the position he occupies. The speaker starts out by saying:

"First of all I am concerned that we emphasize spiritual values over the material. I am reminded here of the words of John Ruskin to be found, I think, in his Seven Lamps of Architecture, "The purpose of education is to acquire the power to bless and redeem human society." The ultimate end of all real education is not to add endurance to the body—important as that is—or deftness to the hand, or facility to the tongue, or quickness to the thought—the ultimate aim is ethical and spiritual, i. e., to add largeness and accuracy to the thought, and sensitiveness, altitude, latitude and, longitude to the emotions. The highest perfection in technique and the most adequate equipment possible are highly desirable as a basis for efficient education but only as a basis. Let us not fail to add the superstructure. After all—speaking without any intention of using cant — education is the impingement of the mind and soul of the instructor upon the mind and soul of the pupil. As teachers we must be infectious personalities."

Then after reminding them that this might be called "primer stuff," says, "Look about you. Note where individual and mass thinking is making a mess of home life, of community life, of church affairs, of national and international matters essential to the welfare of human kind; note where intolerant and shrivelled souls are attempting to reduce the great emotions of religion and patriotism, for example, to the miserable dimensions of their own pettiness, and I believe that you will agree with me that, as teachers, we can not be too conscious of the fundamental obligations of our profession.

I therefore urge all of us to emphasize spiritual values over the material."

Many folks think they have lots of friends. They are wrong. Lots of people have, perhaps, many pleasing acquaintances but it is rare that one has over two or three friends. Many will disagree with us in this but we believe time will tend to bring them to our views. A friend is one who stays on your sinking ship even after the rats leave.
