FOX HUNTERS TO COME TO KENT

The Green Spring Valley Hunt Club of Baltimore may come to Kent county in March for its annual spring frolic on the Eastern Shore. That, at least, is the announcement made today by Howard B. Strong, secretary of the Kent County Horse Show Association, which organization is now negotiating with Valley followers of the hounds for a big event hereabouts, when it is expected they will chase Reynard around the environs of old Kent.

The club usually makes one visit a season to the Eastern Shore. Last year it came to Queen Anne's county, just across the Chester river from Chestertown. At that time some of the local foxhunters joined the chase, along with Baltimore and Queen Anne's huntsmen.

Since there are in this county many lovers of the chase, no doubt the number of hunters will be greatly augmented after Baltimore riders arrive here.

Although it is said no definite decision will be made for the next two weeks, prospects are bright for staging the interesting and colorful event here.

The local association is now making every effort to arrange adequate accommodations for horses, dogs and men against the arrival of the club, should it finally decide to visit Kent.

Foxes are, it is declared by local huntsmen, unusually plentiful this season along the Shore, and the Valley visitors will be assured excellent sport in this county.

Deputy Game Warden Walter J. Elliott, of Easton, caused the arrest last week of Noah Archer for killing wild swan. The State and Federal laws protect these fowls until next year. It is said the Miles River near the Eastern Bay and the Bay itself around McDaniel are covered with ducks and swan, there being acres of them close to the shore. County Commissioner Sewell declares that in front of his home there are hundreds of thousands of them.—Star Democrat.
