Nathaniel T. Meginniss died at Mercy Hospital Friday after a brief illness aged 81. The funeral was held Monday at the home 4103 Garrison avenue, Baltimore, Monday.

Mr. Meginniss' death terminated a career of unusual activity and diversified interests. He was born in Kent county in 1845 and held a position in the clerk's office. After a course in the Kent county schools, he entered Washington College.

After graduating there, he went to Baltimore and entered the employ of the Gas and Electric Company. For twenty-five years, Mr. Meginniss served as secretary for the company. When changes and reorganizations took place in utility activities Mr. Meginniss became interested in law.

At that time he was appointed trust clerk of the Supreme Bench and undertook the study of law at the University of Maryland. At the age of 67 he received his degree in law. Evidence of his unusual mental vigor was revealed on his graduation when he was awarded a prize for the most excellent thesis submitted by the class of that year.

He continued, however, as trust clerk for the Supreme Bench, a position he held for eighteen years. In this position Mr. Meginniss became a familiar figure to lawyers and others who found occasion to visit the Baltimore courts.

Always interested in religious work, Mr. Meginniss was one of the most prominent figures in the Methodist Protesant Church in Baltimore. In the course of his religious activities he was ordained a minister.

And although interested in law and business enterprises, which precluded his acceptance of a ministry, Mr. Meginniss figured prominently in the organization of several Methodist Protesant Churches in the city. After organizing a church and serving as minister until a new congregation was organized, it was his custom to withdraw in favor of a regular minister and turn his attention to new fields.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hattie L. Meginniss; a son, Edward B. Meginniss, of New York city, and a granddaughter, Miss Mildred E. Eley, of Baltimore.
