Dr. W. F. Corkran Presented With Silver Service

Members of Asbury M. E. Church this city, tendered a farewell reception to Dr. Wilbur F. Corkran, in the Auditorium of Asbury Church last Friday night, there being more than four hundred persons present. It is believed that if the reception had been announced from the pulpit in time for it to have been generally known the church auditorium would not have held the friends and well-wishers of the departing pastor.

After several musical selections and a fine program of recitations, Chas. W. Goldsborough, President of the Epworth League Society, in a well-prepared speech, presented Dr. Corkran with a beautful silver service from his friends in the Asbury congregation, as a token of the high esteem in which he was held, and in appreciation of his splendid work during his pastorate here.

Dr. Corkran responded most feelingly, and urged the members to stand by the church and his successor here, Rev. T. J. Sard. He told them that their new minister was a man of exceptional ability and would render a valuable service and urged that he be given every co-operation and support by the members and friends of the church. He thanked the members for the manifestation of their esteem, and expressed the hope that Asbury would long continue as one of the biggest, bets and most successful churches in the Wilmington conference.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.—Crisfield Times.

THE RURAL CHAIR

One of the sensible remedies proposed to check the gradually growing drift of population from country to city has been advanced by Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, President of Washington College, Chestertown, Md.

Dr. Titsworth plans to establish a rural chair at his college, with a dean "who has lived in the city but who knows and loves the country."

The new course would include, besides regular cultural subjects, work in chemistry, particularly of soil and fertilizers. Students would not be expected to turn farmers. Rather, the purpose of the agricultural subjects would be to give them a better understanding of the farmer's life. Students would major in "rural sociology" and "rural economics."

Says Dr. Titsworth: "The country needs young medical students far more than the city, and a country doctor, or a country lawyer, can make a good living. After all it is not a matter of how much money a man makes, but how much he can save, and it is much cheaper to live in the country than in the cities."

Progress of this new rural chair will be interesting. And students of sociology, who know the trend from farm to city, are hoping it will serve in some way to send the college-trained country boys and girls back to their own home communities.
