AMONG BEST OF HIS DISCIPLES

Mary of Magdala an Early Follower of the Savior.

There is a quite common opinion that Mary Magdalene was "the woman who was a sinner" mentioned in St. Luke 7:36-50. That woman was evidently notorious for her sinful life, and on account of that opinion the Magdalene has come to be considered a kind of patron saint of depraved womanhood. Even the clergy sometimes use her as an example of the possibility of repentance bringing the vilest of the vile into the company of the blessed.

For this opinion there is not a vestige of proof in the Scriptures, nor does the most ancient tradition support it. We have not the faintest reason for thinking that Mary Magdalene was ever an abandoned woman! To every careful reader of the New Testament it must be a matter to regret that the honorable name of the thankful, good woman, who was the first witness of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, should have been besmirched carelessly.

No doubt the mention of Mary Magdalene in the chapter next to the one that tells us of the sinful woman at the house of Simon the Leper (Luke 8) has had something to do with the forming of this wrong opinion. Certain authorities were in some cases inclined to identify that woman with Mary the sister of Lazarus, but that is not a popular opinion now with the commentators.

No doubt Mary was known as the Magdalene to distinguish her from the many other Marys, because she came from the town or village of Magdala, now el-Mejdel, on the west side of the Sea of Galilee. It may be that, as a lady of means, the title showed her local importance.

Mary's Call.

When encountered by our Lord, Mary was one of those afflicted with that awful and horrible complaint known as "possessed by the devil." Exactly what that was we do not know, for the disease is no longer in existence, but it was probably something resembling epilepsy, caused by a devilish assumption of power over humanity by Satan, at that time when the great conflict for the mastery of the world was at its extreme height.

Mary of Magdala was a sufferer from such possession to an unusual degree. "Seven devils," were cast out of her by Jesus Christ, either successively or at once, and her relief must have been excessive when Satan's power over her suffering body was broken, and she was a normally healthy woman again.

That she became from henceforth a disciple or follower of her Savior, along with some other women, was not to be wondered at, nor was it strange that in thankfulness, "she ministered to him of her substance."

Whether she proclaimed the good news of the Savior's presence to the mothers of Salem we are not informed, but so devoted a disciple, and thankful a believer, could hardly be expected to keep silence about Him in general conversation.

At any rate she followed after Jesus with faithfulness, and if on that dark betrayal night she was unaware of the treachery against Him, she followed along the way of sorrows to Calvary with His mother, and stood in anguish with her beside the cross of suffering.

At the Grave Side.

When Joseph of Arimathea had rescued the sacred body from ignominy, and with Nicodemus laid it decently in his new, rock-hewn tomb, the evangelists especially tell us Mary of Magdala was there, and witnessed the hasty entombment.

For a time she and another Mary sat and wept beside the tomb as loving, mourning women will, until the duties of that last of the old Sabbaths called them away.

They had made their plans, however, and as soon as the Sabbath had passed—at sunset—hastened to buy, mix and prepare a great amount of spices, and no doubt more fine linen, to preserve, attire and do all honor to their Master's body.

Morning found them still at their task, and very early, before it was yet light, they stole out with their burdens to Joseph's garden in which was the sepulcher.

That the Roman governor's seal had been impressed upon wax over the sides and lintel of the doorway, a seal not to be broken with impunity, they would not know. Nor could they be aware of the guard of soldiers, Pilate, at the solicitations of the sanhedrin, had placed about the sepulcher!

To their horror and surprise they found the stone rolled away, the sepulcher wide open, and timidly peeping in they saw no sign of the sacred body of their Lord!

Fearful that still further indignity had been offered Him, they hurried back, fast as their feet would carry them, to the house where Peter and John were lodging, breathlessly announcing "They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher!"

With headlong haste the two ran through the streets in the early dawn, dashed through the garden, and, Peter now in the lead, entered the tomb, to find grave clothes and head wrap all neatly folded, as though there had been no untimely haste about that departure from the grave. To the disciples came remembrances of His talk of "rising from the dead," and wonder as to what marvel might have occurred! The others must be told at once, and they hasten back to them with their news and surmises.

The Risen Lord.

The women had followed the two disciples to the sepulcher, and accompanied them back to the city. But not Mary Magdalene. Pondering, fearing, weeping, she stood in Joseph's garden, not knowing which way to turn in her grief.

A voice inquiries "Why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?" only aroused a trifling interest. Without raising her head she made answer: "They have taken away my Master out of the sepulcher. If thou hast borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, that I may take away that sacred body!"

"Mary!" came the reply. The old familiar accent of tender care, of gentle sympathy, of command, which she had such good reason to remember, was in the word! In a very agony of joy and amazement the woman was prostrate at His feet in adoration, while all she could make her lips to utter was the one word "Rabboni;" My Master! My Master!

The Resurrection
Matthew 28

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulcher.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning and his raiment was white as snow.

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.

He is not here: for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead: and, behold, He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him; lo, I have told you

Dairy Facts

During winter months cows, to do well, need plenty of water.

* * *

Cream of different ages should not be mixed until just before delivering it to a creamery.

* * *

The calves should not be put on a full ration of skim milk until they are at least a month old.

* * *

Grooming has proved to be good for horses, and it is reasonable to suppose that dairy cows react in the same way.

* * *

The proper selection of feed for dairy cows is much more important than realized by many farmers.

* * *

There is no excuse for a dairy farmer who cannot raise clover, alfalfa, and silage, for in these a great step in cow feeding is gained and here is where the profit comes in.

* * *

When working with cows, follow a system to feed, milk and water, also turning them out, which should be done at the same time each day.
