SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1926

Queen Anne's politics was stirred this week by the withdrawal of J. H. C. Legg as a candidate for Senator. Wm. R. Wilson is to take his place in the fight against Senator Roe. Miss Helen Dudley, of Church Hill, has been put on the ticket for State Central Committee.

That oystermen, in their effort to prevent the leasing of natural oyster bars, will have the full protection of State laws, whenever they are able to prove that leased arears are not barren bottoms, was demonstrated last Saturday, when Judges of the Second Judicial Circuit, in Centreville, ruled that oyster grounds in the vicinity of Johnson's Island, adjoining Kent Island, could not be leased by the Conservation Commission. The verdict for the plaintiffs was delivered in the first of several similar cases which are docketed, but which probably will not be tried until Fall.

MILK REDUCED 23C BEGINNING MAY 1ST

Beginning May 1st the farmers of Kent county received a reduction in their milk checks for the next two months at least. Word was passed along the line this month that a cut of 23 cents on the hundred pounds would go into effect May 1st. The price has been 2.31 a hundred pounds for 3 per cent milk. The cut reduces it to $2.08. Most of the milk at the Chestertown Cooling Station tests 4 per cent which means $2.48 per hundred pounds.

When questioned about the cut in price at time when grass is burned up nearly, and feed high, the manager of the Chestertown plant stated that few months ago the dairy people advanced milk 23 cents, bringing the price up to $2.81. This lasted for two months, when it was found that the retail price could not be increased, and the price dropped back to $2.59.

To recuperate this loss, it is said the dairy people have cut the price to $2.31 for two months to regain their losses of last fall. At the end of June, it is said, the price will advance again to $2.59. Superintendent Cooper, however, said he had no authority for this statement.

Dairymen are experimenting some trouble these days with their milk. As much as a ton a day is turned down in some stations. During the cool weather, it is said, the dairymen have little or no trouble in handling their milk. When the warm weather starts in, however, and the garlic begins to sprout, the dairymen continue to handle it like they did in cold weather. The hot sun does the trick and as a result some of the milk carried to the cooling station is carried back home again. At least these are the conditions at some plants.

Chestertown is shipping from 28,000 to 30,000 pounds per day.

There is a ray of hope for the dairymen when the Centennial at Philadelphia opens. It is believed that with the thousands of visitors flocking to the Quaker City the consumption of milk will be increased to such an extent that the local dairymen will reap the benefit.

In spite of this the proper handling of milk must be studied if the dairymen are to get all there is to be had in their line of work. Garlic must be fought, the hot weather conditions must be met by properly cooling the milk before bringing it to the railroad, and clean containers must be used if the best possible results are to be obtained. As a man at the plant stated, what profit is there for a farmer to milk his cows haul his milk many miles and then have to take it back home again. And yet this is what happens every day.

The dairymen themselves have been paying their share of the expense of educating the dairymen in the proper handling of milk. Men have come here from Philadelphia, visited the farms and pointed out the defects. New buildings, have been erected and other requirements met, but in spite of this much milk is turned down and carried back home.

Now the price has been cut 23 cents, the checks will be still smaller. The farmers are feeling the cut and it is demoralizing some to a certain extent. They claim there is no money in milk at this price, especially when there is no pasture. And the cut will last for two months at least.
