Ancient Needlework

The earliest example of needlework known to exist comes from the tomb of a Pharaoh 1,500 years before the Christian era, and there are specimens of Greek work dating from twelve centuries later.

Cutting Glass Under Water

Submerging glass under water does not necessarily mean that it will cut easier, but it is much less likely to crack than when cut in air. The cutting sets up vibrations in the glass which have a tendency to crack it. These vibrations are greatly reduced if the glass is placed under water during the cutting process.

Famous Organization

The Vestal Virgins were a group of well-born Roman maidens appointed to watch the sacred flame of the goddess Vesta and see that it never went out. One of them, Tuccia, was falsely accused of a want of chastity, but the goddess Vesta permitted her to carry water in a sieve as a sign of her innocence. Lerous' picture depicts that episode.
