Vail Medals

Silver Vail medals with cash prizes of $250 each, have been awarded five employees of the Bell system, for noteworthy public service, during 1925.

The recipients include Miss Ruby LaVerne Wilson, operator of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Washington, Ark., who with cool-headedness and ingenuity frustrated a bank robbery; Mrs. Mary Regina Smith, of the Fabens Telephone Company, Fabens, Texas, remained at her switchboard during a severe flood, warning people in the high-water zone of the approaching danger. When the switchboard was flooded, she connected a telephone to a long distance line and called neighboring cities and towns for help.

Mrs. Josephine L. August, night operator of the Dowagiac Telephone Company, Cassopolis, Mich., also frustrated a bank robbery. She called for help from neighboring cities in an effort to capture the robbers.

Everett C. Nelson, repairman of the New York Telephone Company at Niagara Falls saved the life of a fellow employee, Frank E. Bryam, who had come in contact with high voltage current, while Everett D. Stine, lineman of the Bell Telephone Company of York, Pa., restored service, under hazardous conditions, to the city pumping station. In making the repairs, he worked at night in the swift, icy flood waters with great danger to himself.

VAIL MEDAL

Vail medal awards are made annually as a memorial to Theodore N. Vail, late president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

THE TELEPHONE--- WHAT IT MEANS TO THE PUBLIC

Charlotte W. Miles

In an essay contest during Telephone Visitation Week in Danville, Va., recently Charlotte Wilson Miles, a high school student, was awarded the prize for the best paper on "What the Telephone Means to Danville." The paper follows:

"No one can fully realize what the telephone means to Danville until he has visited the splendidly equipped local plant of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, which is found complete in every detail and rendering to the city a service which means its very life, from a business, social, and commercial standpoint.

"The telephone system stands as a watchful servant day and night, ready to respond promptly, intelligently, and courteously to every call that is made upon it. The telephone puts Danville in touch with other parts of the country, too.

"Few realize that in their private homes there is a highway which leads to all parts of the world. The telephone plays a vital part in the everyday life of its many users. In any emergency, at any hour, the telephone stands ready to summon whatever assistance is needed.

"The personal contact which telephone communication affords is far superior to any words written, in that it is capable of touching the depths of the human heart, through the sound of the human voice. It serves all classes; high and low, great and small—from the gentle lisp of the little child to another, to the stern voice of the business man, whose interests may extend over thousands of miles and who may converse across the continent.

"The telephone would seem as a great heart in the midst of our city, throbbing and pulsing with life and activity, sending out and receiving again that vital influence and power which means so much to the well being and advancement of our people

"All honor to the memory of that great man—Alexander Graham Bell—whose wonderful intellect brought this blessing to mankind."

POSSESSION OF TELEPHONE DENOTES PROGRESSIVENESS

By the simple act of installing a telephone a family places itself among the list of progressive, enterprising people who are interested in the events that are taking place about them, who keep in touch with the affairs of their neighborhood, of the country and the world.—The Literary Digest.

Speech That Wins

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence, and to speak agreeably to him with whom we deal is more than to speak in good words or in good order.—Bacon.

Animal Species

The biologist, Hunter, estimated that there were 518,000 species in the animal kingdom divided into 18 classes. The different insects are numbered 360,000 or over two-third of the total number of species in the animal world. There are 13,000 fishes, 1,400 amphibians, 3,500 reptiles, 13,00 birds and 2,500 mammals.

DIRECTORIES ARE IMPORTANT PART OF TELEPHONE SERVICE

(Top) She's Found "Daddy's" Number In The Telephone Book
(Bottom) Delivering The Directory

The telephone directory is not merely a book of numbers, but is a very definite part of telephone service. It is "information" at a glance and is used millions of times daily. It is not merely a few pages of paper carrying the alphabetical listings with the telephone numbers of the community it serves, but it is a necessity to the business and social life of every section.

To the printer who makes the book, it is a highly specialized job that must be completed under pressure with the work so scheduled that certain specific dates may be met. To the manager and the delivery force it necessitates accuracy in placing a new directory before every subscriber and the collection of the old one.

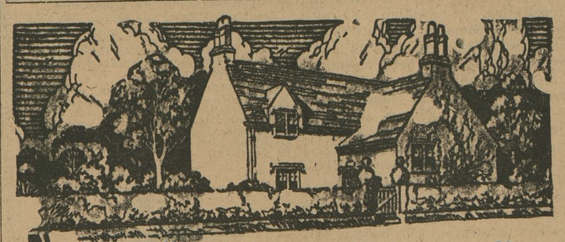

The telephone directory is revised twice annually and the average elapsed time, from the closing of the book to the public, that is, when no further listings can be accepted for that particular issue, to the completion of the delivery to the premises of the subscriber is about fifty days.

In the combined telephone directories issued by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia each year, the printer consumes more than 2,000,000 pounds of paper, 26,000 pounds of ink, 22,000 pounds of glue, and 12,000 yards of linen crash.

After the directories are printed, bound, and crated for shipment to destination, the manager's forces get busy in preparing route lists and addresses so that the delivery of the books may be started as soon as the shipment is received in the city.

As the new directory is delivered the old one is recovered and junked. This is done not so much for the value of the old books as junk paper, as to get them out of the way, so that telephone users will consult the latest issue in making calls. There are always a large number of new listings in the latest telephone directory, and in addition, there are thousands of miscellaneous changes in every issue.

While the delivery of the telephone directory is usually made in a reasonably short length of time, this does not mean that the work of getting out the book is over until the next one is off the press. A large force of clerks is employed continuously in the preparation of "copy" for the new issue, which will be delivered about six months after the present one has been placed in the home or office.

The "Better Home"—Has Arrived!

GOOD HOMES have been built for some time but now a "better home" may be built—a home that sets a new scale of values by which all homes can be measured.

Here's how it happened: The Lehigh Portland Cement Company held a Prize Home Competition. "Give us the perfect home of concrete masonry," they said. Twelve thousand architects were asked, "How would you design a perfectly planned, moderately priced, fire-safe house?" Hundreds of unique plans were received. Twenty-eight Prize Winners were selected by a jury of eminent architects.

No home builder should plan his home until he investigates the permanent satisfaction that concrete masonry provides.

If you plan to build, first send for the book, "28 Better Homes." It contains the floor plans, illustrations, and complete descriptions of each of the 28 prize-winning homes. In addition it contains practical advice, answering almost every problem facing the home builder.

May we send you a copy without cost?
