IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear parents, Mary E. Walbert, who departed this life 11 years ago February 15th, 1925, George W. Walbert, who departed this life one year ago July 15th, 1926.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection,
And a heartache still for you.
Just a sigh for the olden moments,
Just a smile of love anew,
Just a tear in silence falling,
And a yearning just for you.

JOHN D. MAKOSKY,

New Assistant Professor of Mathematics At Washington.

Washington College has secured as the second additional instructor, lately authorized by the Board of Visitors and Governors, John D. Makoskey, of Baltimore, Maryland, to be assistant professor of mathematics and instructor in history.

Mr. Makoskey, who is a son of Rev. E. C. Makoskey, the present President of the Maryland Annual Conference in the Methodist Protestant Church, comes to Washington with the finest kind of testimonials as to his ability and character.

After finishing high school at South Side High in Newark, N. J., where he captained the track team for two years and played foot ball and basket ball, he attended for one year the Webb Institute of Naval Architecture in New York City, where he thought to prepare himself as a marine architect. Then, his plans changing, he matriculated at Western Maryland College from which he was graduated at Western Maryland he was decidedly a student leader organizing there the first fraternal organization on the campus, conducting a profitable student newspaper, helped carry out a successful campaign for students for his Alma Mater, taking part in numerous successful debates, managing the debating team, and winning his letter in basket ball and in track.

Mr. Makoskey has received his Master of Arts degree from Columbia University. Although he majored in English, he has always shown a particular fondness and aptitude for mathematics which qualities admirably adapt him for his position on the Washington faculty.

His coming to Washington College fits in splendidly with the purpose of the college to strengthen particularly the freshman and sophomore years of work.

SUMMER SCHOOL FOR MINISTERS

Plans Being Made For Session At Washington College.

Ministers of all denominations from Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia will attend the first Delmarvia Summer School for Rural Ministers to be held at Washington College the week beginning September 6. Aside from the cost of meals and a $2.00 registration fee there will be no charge for the course of instruction and other features of the session, according to a statement given out by President Paul E. Titsworth, of Washington College. Visiting students will be housed in the College dormitories and the new cafeteria of the college will be opened by the time the school starts its sessions.

Members of the faculty will be President Titsworth; Mark A. Dawber, of Philadelphia, superintendent of the department of rural work of the Board of Home Missions. Methodist Episcopal Church; Ralph A. Fenton, professor of social organization, Cornell University Extension Service; Dr. Albertus Perry, vice-president of Washington College; and Dr. Frederick G. Livingood, professor of education in Washington College. Dr. Dawber, formerly professor of rural religious education in Boston University, will act as dean of the school.

The daily schedule of courses, from September 6 to 10, will be as follows: 8 o'clock, Bible Study, Dr. Mark A. Dawber and Prof. Ralph A. Felton; 9, Elementary Psychology, Dr. Frederick G. Livingood; Economic and Social Problems, Prof. W. R. Howell; 10, The Town and Country Church, Dr. Dawber and Prof. Felton; Community and Church Survey, Prof. Wm. R. Howell; 11, Principles of Religious Education, Dr. Frederick G. Livingood; Organization and Administration of Religious Education, Dr. Albertus Perry, 2; denominational group meetings; 3, recreation hour; 7.30, The Church and World Enterprise, Dr. J. Nelson Norwood; 8.15 p. m. Open forum discussion of address 9 p. m., social hour with music.

Eash night an address will be delivered by a visiting expert on rural church work and an open forum discussion of the address will be taken up by the ministerial students of the school. Speaking of the forthcoming summer session Profesident Titsworth, of Washington College said today, "The present rural crisis constitutes a challenge to the farmer stands in need of constructive leadership and statesmanship today as never before. One of his greatest needs is a vital rural church functioning to point the way to a better rural life; economically, socially and religiously. The future of the town and country church depends largely upon the vision and technical skill of its pastors. The projected summer school to be held in Chestertown will be held for the purpose of giving technical training and fellowship to the pastors who are engaged in this most strategic work. The best trained men are constantly taking time off for further study and preparation. The rural pastor cannot afford not to do likewise. The welfare of rural America and the success of the church demands it.

"Cow Capacity" Key to Success

"Cow Capacity" is what causes a cow getting ten pounds of grain a day to produce 35 pounds of milk, and another cow, under the same conditions and on exactly the same kind and amount of feed, to give only 20 pounds of milk, says the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics.

"Producing milk is not much different than producing shoes or any other commodity except that we have to deal with a living animal with a milk-producing ability that is more or less inherited," according to the Institute. "One shoemaker can turn out a pair of shoes to sell at five dollars while another cannot afford to sell them for less than seven dollars. There is a big difference in the production costs. Similar differences hold true in dairying. The breed of the animals, their feed, the quality of the animals, and their management, all have their effect on the cost of their milk production. A good dairyman may be able to produce milk at a price that would financially cripple another dairyman.

"Feed is the largest single item in milk production. It takes about the same amount of feed to keep a high producing dairy cow alive as it does to maintain a cow of limited production. A cow cannot turn out nutrients in the form of milk which she does not receive in her feed, and the big difference in the production of milk from individual cows lies in the kind of feed they are fed and the amount they are able to consume and convert into milk. A heavy producing cow can utilize a large amount of feed, while the small producer wastes it. It is this cow capacity that makes the large producer a more economical producer than the low producer.

"Many dairymen are misled by a false economy into buying 'cheap' feed for their herds," according to the Institute. "In most instances the cheap feed is not really worth as much at its price as another feed at a higher price. A group of cows on feed selling at $54 a ton, averaged 81 cents worth of grain for every 100 pounds of milk produced. A similar herd on $52 feed averaged 87 cents of feed for each hundred pounds of milk. This means that on the basis of milk produced on the higher priced feed, the $52 feed was really worth only $48.40 a ton, or $3.60 less than the price asked for it."

Don't Let Your Profits Out with Your Cows

Cows simply can't keep on producing to the limit of their capacity on pasture alone. Grass, at its best, is over half water. No cow can eat enough to keep herself in good condition and produce milk in satisfactory quantity at the same time. They require a regular and substantial grain ration, too. Dairymen who feed Larro with pasture get more milk than those who don't—and more profit at the end of the year.
