Elsewhere in the Kent News is the report of the audit of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company. It is a most flattering report on the financial condition of this most admirable fire company and President Wm. G. Smyth and all the officers are to be congratulated. It costs money to run a fire company, but one point that everyone who has contributed to its financial support should know is that less than $20 has been spent personally for the members of the company. They have $5,000 invested in good paying bonds.

CHESAPEAKE BAY BRIDGE

It seems that every big improvement or understanding must meet with obstacles. The movement towards the erection of a bridge across the Chesapeake Bay is having its objectors and some reasons without justice why certain requirements should be met.

The men sponsoring the great undertaking are overcoming all objections as far as human brain and means can do.

But some demands are being made which are so unreasonable that they look like simply "knockers." For instance the Bridge Company is prepared to meet the suggestion of David G. McIntosh, Jr., State Senator from Baltimore County, to furnish bond to guarantee the completion of the structure, was announced this week by Stuart S. Janney, one of the directors of and attorney for the company.

Pointing out in a statement issued by him Saturday that there was a possibility that the company would be unable to complete the bridge and would leave obstructions in the bay, Senator McIntosh asked, "Has anyone suggested a bond for completion?

Mr. Janney said no suggestion for such a bond had reached him, nor had he heard it discussed before.

"But if a bond for completion is required," he asserted, "the company has no objection to furnishing it."

Referring in his statement to tax exemption, Senator McIntosh asked whether, if the uncompleted bridge were to be purchased at a receiver's sale or by other means "for a song" by private interests—a railroad, for instance—the purchaser would get it tax free.

Here again the Company offered to give a guarantee.

So that it is now up to the business interests of Baltimore and the Eastern Shore to get solidly behind the improvement and see that the necessary franchise is passed. It is one of the greatest proposals offered the State in its history.

THE CHESAPEAKE BAY BRIDGE

The idea of bridging the Chesapeake Bay between Baltimore and the Eastern Shore has long been viewed by the people of Maryland as merely a pleasant prospect—something to talk and dream about, but which was not likely to get farther in the near future than an architect's drawing. It comes as a surprise, therefore, to be told that a company has been formed, the money raised and that only the assent of the State and the Federal Government is necessary to embarkation upon the enterprise. The character and responsibility of the men back of the project will be accepted as a guarantee that they mean business and are able to carry it through.

There has been general agreement that Baltimore and the Eastern Shore would never be tied together as they ought to be until a bridge was constructed. But the State has not felt financially able to build it, and private capital, up to this time, has not evinced desire to advance the ten to twelve million dollars which the structure is estimated to cost. It will arouse widespread interest, the circumstances, to hear that prospect of seeing this long-needed span materialize seems to depend on whether the State is going to be asked for concessions it cannot afford to make.

It is hardly necessary to point out the advantages to both the Eastern and Western Shores, particularly to this city, to be so linked. The bay presents an obstacle to business and social intercourse which manifestly is a serious disadvantage. Close, convenient and economical connection would be highly beneficial.

It is indicative of its prospective importance to note that the proposed bridge would not be a profitable venture unless there were a large increase in the total amount of vehicular traffic now passing between Baltimore and the Eastern Shore. The most significant fact about the enterprise is that its promoters, after carefully weighing the situation, are convinced that such a result would follow its completion. Nothing else would seem to be needed to demonstrate its possible value. —Baltimore Sun.

The Delaware Legislature has increased the pay of jurors to $5 per day.

Believing that the teachers of Delaware are underpaid and that they should be placed on an equal basis with those of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the Sussex County Teachers' Association, at its closing session at Georgetown, on Friday, went on record as being desirous that the State Board of Education raise the salaries of teachers.

The raising of salaries is receiving considerable attention. It is to say the least, a commendable act where all the conditions justify. As to the justice of the demands in many cases there is serious question. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," but who is to say what is the limit of the hire?
