ANYWHERE TO ANYWHERE—BY TELEPHONE

"Oh, Dad, it's wonderful to hear your voice! I get so lonesome and homesick. Why don't you call me often?

We Ought to Do This Often

WITH long distance telephone service at your elbow, there is no longer such a thing as separation. The calls are cheap—especially station-to-station calls—and the service is rapid. A station-to-station call for a distance of 150 miles costs only 95c. during the day; between 7.00 and 8.30 p. m. the call costs 70c.; between 8.30 p. m. and 4.30 a. m., 50c. And you can reach almost any place in just a few minutes.

Many improvements in long distance service have been made during the past year. Rates have been generally reduced and the service has been speeded up. Another thing, station-to-station calls (above 20 cents) may now be reversed without extra charge

The Mileage Tax Is Biggest of All

When you buy a car or motor truck, mileage is what you are really paying for.

Rough streets, muddy roads, and narrow pavements cut vehicle mileage. They multiply mileage costs.

Compared to these costs, license fees and gasoline taxes are insignificant.

When your public officials widen and pave your roads and streets with concrete, they are reducing your biggest outlay—the mileage tax.

Portland Cement Concrete is the only paving material capable of retaining indefinitely the smooth, even surface which is built into it by the paving craftsman's skill.

Ask for our booklets about Concrete Pavements—they are free.
