THAT BOASTED COOLIDGE PROSPERITY

The prosperity about which the Coolidge administration has boasted so much has been located. It is in the pockets of twenty-nine one hundredths of one per cent of the people of the country, as shown by the Treasury Department's analysis of income tax returns for the taxable year 1925.

The Treasury Department's analysis shows that twenty-nine one-hundredths of one per cent of the people in the United States paid ninety-five per cent of the income taxes for 1925. It also showed that there were 207 millionaires in the country in 1925, compared with only 75 in 1924. It showed also that one-half of the taxes were paid by persons with incomes in excess of $95,000. In other words, 10,000 persons paid as much in taxes as did the 2,337,000 other individuals who made income tax returns.

The analysis showed that 82 per cent of the population paid no income tax whatever. The distressing thing is not the large amount of taxes paid by the millionaire class but rather that under prevailing economic conditions and policies, 82 per cent of the more than 115,000,000 people in the country were not able to earn enough money to make it necessary for them to pay even five cents in income taxes. While a few millionaires were enjoying incomes sufficient to require them to pay 95 per cent of all the income taxes, eighty-two per cent of the people were earning so little they weren't even required to make out a tax return.

MONEY TO PAY OFF W. C. INDEBTEDNESS

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth writes the News the following interesting letter which explains some important matters:

I was much interested in an article in your issue of Saturday, April 9, entitled "The New Dormitory Now Probable." I appreciate very much the notice which you have taken of the College and of the good appropriations which the State has this year made Washington.

May I, however, correct two or three possible misinterpretations that may arise from your paragraphs?

The $100,000 appropriation will be used by the College, not to erect a dormitory, but to pay off indebtedness.

The additional $15,000 maintenance will be used to take care of the day-by-day expense of running the institution. This additional appropriation will make our total maintenance income from the State $60,000 a year.

Two years hence, if the College continues to prosper, we shall in all probability approach the State for a new dormitory for boys. The Schauber House, given by Col. Clarence Hodson, of New York, is being fitted for girls. With this house the College should have adequate accommodations next year for its girl students.

PASTURES ARE HURT WHEN USED TOO EARLY

The temptation to be relieved of much labor and considerable expense for feed frequently prompts the dairyman to turn his cows on pasture entirely too early in the spring with results unsatisfactory to both pasture and cows, says J. A. Conoyer, dairy specialist for the University of Maryland Extensive Service.

"Cows turned on pasture too soon are likely to become dissatisfied with the customery dry ration and unless there is an abundant supply of grass milk production is likely to be curtailed. Furthermore, the pasture under such conditions may receive a setback from which it will not recover all summer.

"The best plan is to wait until the grass is five or six inches high before turning out the herd. This gives the grass a good start and enables the cow to secure a fill quickly and lie down or stand quietly under the shade of a tree. The cow that is tramping over the field all day searching for grass is not making milk.

"Cows making twenty-five pounds or more of milk daily will need grain in addition to pasture. A good mixture for the early part of the season when grass is abundant may be made up of 600 pounds corn and cob meal and four hundred pounds of wheat bran and 100 pounds cottonseed meal; or 500 pounds ground corn and 500 pounds of ground oats.

"Later on in the season as the grass becomes older, the grain mixture should contain a higher percentage of protein."

ANYWHERE TO ANYWHERE—BY TELEPHONE

Are YOU One of These?
——one of the people who still believe that long distance calls are expensive? For, although it's 1927, there are still some of them left.
Now, long distance calling is not expensive. For instance, on a station-to-station call of 150 miles, the day rate for three minutes is only 95c., and think how much you can say in three minutes. Then, too, the rates are lower during the evening and night hours. The same call of 150 miles between 7 and 8.30 p. m. is but 70c., while between 8.30 p. m. and 4.30 a. m., it is only 50c. Pretty cheap round trip!
Remember, it isn't necessary to wait until midnight to get these discounted rates.
Out-of-town station-to-station rates are lowest after 8.30 p. m.

You can have your private yacht

GIVE me a pipe and Prince Albert, and you can have your cabin-cruiser and your winter vacation. I won't envy you for a minute. In fact, I wouldn't trade places with anybody. I could even be happy on a desert island with a pipe and plenty of P. A.

You'll understand my enthusiasm for this prince of smokes the minute you open the tidy red tin and get a whiff of real tobacco. But that's only a starter. The taste more than lives up to the promise of the aroma. Tuck a load in your jimmy-pipe, light up, and see.

Cool, as a breeze from the forward deck is cool. Sweet, with a sweetness that doesn't tire. Mild as milk, yet with plenty of body to let you know you're smoking. P. A. is neither too heavy nor too light, which makes it the middleweight champ, so far as I'm concerned.

Telling you about Prince Albert is one thing. Trying it in your pipe is another. You'll never know exactly what it is that holds millions of happy jimmy-pipers to this one brand until you make the personal test. When you do, you'll say I did you a favor in tipping you off.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
