SEED WHEAT CERTIFICATION

The Maryland Seed Certification Board recognizes three classes of seed wheat. Certified seed is seed of a variety adapted to Maryland that is 98 per cent pure as to vairety, traceable to an accepted origin, free from garlic and stinking smut, not over .01 per cent corn cockle and cheat, reasonably free from disease. not over .1 per cent weeds and not less than 90 per cent germination. Listed seed is seed of an adapted variety. It does not quite meet the requirements for certification, but is high class seed and usually is purer and cleaner than is ordinarily used on Maryland farms. Rejected seed is seed that is considered unfit for seeding purposes. ,

Inspection in the field before cutting is necessary, therefore, if you are interested in having your seed wheat certified, communicate with your County Agent at once.

Birds Foretell Weather

The bird comes in for its share of weather foresight. Besides seagulls flying low as a sign of rain, birds flying south early in the fall means the early coming of winter.

Poultry Tour

Next Friday, June 24th, is Poultry Day at the University of Maryland, College Park. This is a conference and Field Day for all Maryland Poultry Breeders and Hatcherymen and is held under the auspices of the Maryland State Poultry Association and University of Maryland Extension Service.

Kent poultry raisers and hatcherymen desiring to take advantage of this opportunity will organize an auto party.

All Kent poultrymen or women interested in this tour please notify County Agent Horace B. Derrick or Farm Bureau Secretary William G. Smyth, or have your feed dealer notify us.

This is a very timely opportunity for the increasing poultry interests in Kent and a very profitable day will be spent.

The aphis is causing the maple tree leaves to fall.

Norway Maple Trees

This aphis occurs in large colonies during much of the summer and sucks large quantities of sap from the trees, causing the leaves to develop brown blotches or fall off, littering the ground, disfiguring the tree, besides seriously checking the growth generally.

Remedy—A spray of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate, mixed with soap, and diluted one part to 1200 parts of water will prove quite effective. This should be done as soon as aphis are discovered on the tree. The spray should be directed at the underside of the leaves.

The same spray will destroy plant lice on rose plants or any other flower or plant.
