SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1927

"ALL ON BOARD"

Messrs. Editors of News:

The gate was opened. At once the seething mass of humanity that had gathered for over an hour in the high enclosure, began to move toward that gate. Mothers, who were tired from the day's outing, held their offspring high over their shoulders in order to protect them. Many carried lunch baskets in one hand, and with the other desperately clung to their children whose invisible bodies were being crushed until their frantic cries rose above the tumult of it all.

Young men with sun-burnt faces that showed signs of over-fatigue and buxom young women dressed in gay colors of every hue were all pushing or being pushed through the long narrow aisle leading on to the pier. Old men and women tried in vain to turn around, but were carried along with the crowd. The fat and the lean, the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the intelligent and the ignorant, all came out at the other end of this gangway like so many sausages ground thru a mill.

Long before this gate had been opened officers had been kept busy keeping the mob intact. Occasionally some young adventurer who thought he could climb the fence without being observed, or some young flapper who thought her smile would carry her thru were brought back into the fold.

Hot and tired after standing under the sweltering rays of the evening's sun, this weary throng had waited for the arrival of the "Express." Shouts of joy greeted her appearance, when, as a great white swan she came nearer and nearer.

To the left was another gate thru which automobiles were leisurely allowed to enter and take their places on the pier. On rare occasions, an extra passenger "thundered" his way on to the pier protected by the owner of the car.

At last, after much excitement and confusion the boat was loaded to the guards, and once again families were gathered in circles discussing their narrow escapes, while young men and women were settled peaceful and contented looked wistfully into each other's eyes, suffered none-the-less from their terrible experiences. Many however, vowed never to take the trip again. While babes were nestled close to their mother's breasts, business men sat back in their chairs with cigars between their teeth, and reassured themselves that something must be done—and the ship sailed on toward the Western Shore.

MOTOR BOATS FEATURE MILES RIVER REGATTA

The sixth and probably the greatest annual regatta of the Miles River Yacht Club passed into history on Saturday night with a dinner given the visiting yachtmen at the club. Prizes were awarded the winners. Kent won one, second prize.

In contrast to the depressing calm which prevailed Friday a sail wind blew most of the time Saturday. It was rather weak during the first part of the program, but it increased steadily toward night.

Twelve contests were held. Among these was one for the star yachts from Gibson Island, Norfolk and Eastern Maryland. Two Easternshoremen, G. Graham Johnson and J. Lowndes Johnson brothers, of Easton, won the race with Undine, a craft which they built themselves last winter.

The race for the Chesapeake Bay sailing canoes was perhaps the center of the greatest local interest. With the exception of one canoe from Chestertown, the Island Blossom, all the entrants in this event hailed from St. Michael's or nearby points.

This race, which was run for a silver cup sponsored by Gov. Ritchie in an effort to revive popular interest in the typical craft of the bay, was won by the Magic. The winning canoe started at 10.17 a. m. and finished at 2,35 p. m. Her skipper is George H. Wilson.
