A WORD OF CAUTION

There has come to the News office all kinds of rumors of the failure of a finance companyin which many Kent countians have invested hundreds and some thousands of dollars. We have tried to find out whether the investors will lose much or little but only see a big sign over the door "closed." This leads us to send out a word of caution, hoping to prevent further losses of har-earned savings.

Withdrawing the family's savings account at the bank where it is safe, and losing it is a serious matter. It may bring great hardship, especially to the mistress of the home. It may mean that the children will have to go to work before they complete their education. The loss of the family accumulations may even result in physical breakdown on the part of the wife through worry over the loss of savings which she helped to accumulate at the sacrifice of home comforts but was not consulted when it came to investigating them. The making of investments by men who are heads of families and inexperienced in finance should not be undertaken without consulting her. But even if both agree the venture should be talked over with the local banker. If this is done a lot of trouble and quite likely many regrets and heartaches will be avoided.

There is one point in the activities of the inexperienced investor where he should have above all a red-light stop signal to cause him to pause and investigate and that is just before he reaches the decision to "sign on the dotted line." Before you part with your savings in the bank by signing a contract placed before you by sharp promoters, stop, examine and investigate! It will pay to read the contract several times, even reading it aloud, all the while weighing every term. It wil pay to be on guard against the deadly fine prine usually incorporated in most contracts,—so small that it strains your eyes and causes you to skim over it superficially. Do not sign blindfolded.

Terms stated orally but not incorporated in a contract are not binding. Glowing promises, wild exagerations and gross misstatements of facts are seldom reduced to writing or made in the presence of your witnesses. Your failure to read and to understand a contract before signing is not a legal excuse.

Don't sign just because some high-pressure salesman tells you that you are a wonder, or that you show good judgment, or that you have a lot of sense. Sign only when you are fully convinced that your interests are fully protected.

Prominent Men Used As Scenery

A number of slick promoters recently organized in a certain city an "automobile club" with the assurance that it would soon erect a number of downtown garages where busy business men could park their cars. As an inducement for business men to take out memberships, charges to them for storage were to be nominal, much less than a like service could be obtained elsewhere. A Board of Governors was organized with the names of prominent local citizens, among them two eminent judges. No sooner was the organization of the board complete than the promoters, armed with the endorsement of these outstanding men, went forth to reap a great harvest by selling memberships. They got the members—but the building of the garages remained an idle dream.

When the members of the Board of Governors were later interviewed as to how they came to consent to the use of their names they stated that they thought the additional storage facilities were needed in the downtown district and they signed up without looking into the proposition carefully. Imagine their chagrin when told that a reading of the by-laws of the organization showed that the Board of Governors had no powers but had been used merely as scenery in order to sell memberships in a fake proposition!

Because these prominent citizens were careless with their names and failed to read and to investigate the enterprise, hundreds of business men bought memberships only to lose their money. Signing without reading is about the most dangerous act of financial carelessness that can be committed.

Lucretius Far Ahead of Minds of His Time

Lucretius was an illustrious poet but he did not believe his service to the world should stop with the penning of a lilting measure. The great Italian frequently turned from his muse to speak a word for science, and since in his day (he was born 95 B. C.) mental slavery and intolerance predominated in his native land, he acquired many enemies.

In some of his scientific works he discussed the porosity of matter, ascertained that light travels faster than sound and asserted that heat is motion and the concussion of atoms. He demonstrated that echoes are the reflection of sound waves from hard upright surfaces and not the voices of fauns and satyrs.

He showed that the causes and spread of diseases were to be attributed to air and contact rather then to the vengeance of angry gods. He taught that all things are made of individual atoms and that the mind is influenced by the body in its well-being, sickness, intoxication and danger.

In one of his poems can be read with no distortion the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. But these profound propositions of the poet-philosopher were too much for the comprehension and acceptance of his contemporaries and lay dormant until caught up by European thought centuries later.—Kansas City Times.

Relics Recall Early Days of Golden West

A gold pen that was used by Gen. George A. Custer to write the first account of the discovery of gold in the Black hills is in the possession of the city of Chicago, with a number of other relics on exhibition there. The pen was presented by Custer to Col. W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," who later presented it to Mrs. Michael Russell of Deadwood.

Among other valuable relics in the Russell collection are a highly decorated buckskin coat and a rim-fire revolver that was carried by "Wild Bill" Hickok. The coat was given to "Buffalo Bill" by a squaw on the Pine Ridge reservation, and was worn by the famous scout during the European tours of his Wild West show when he appeared before many kings and queens. Other articles listed are the ox yoke used on the first "bull team" that came to the Black hills, a buffalo skull picked up on Custer's trail in the hills in 1874, and a hatband worn by Sitting Bull.

First "By-Laws"

Islands are wonderfully interesting places—but why is it that they always have to stick them away out in the water somewhere where they are so hard to get to? On the map it is only a short jump from Kamar, on the Swedish coast, to the island of Gothland, in the Baltic sea. The ancient city of Visby, on this island, is a point of rare interest. "By" means "town," and the laws of this town were accepted so widely at one time that they came to be known in the world of trade as "by-laws," and the term is now a fixture in the English language.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Periodic Health Survey

"Every family should view the physician not as a last resort for cure but as medical counselor whose function is to make periodic surveys and to aid in maintaining a state of health," Hygeia Magazine quotes from Henry S. Nollen, president of one of the large insurance companies.

Regulation of diet and personal hygiene and proper direction of the use of leisure and wholesome recreation should be included in this advisory function. In such a regimen is seen the only hope of improvement in the average ratio of premature deaths due to degenerative diseases.

Oldest Known Book

"The Book of the Dead," the oldest known book—a fine copy of which is in the British buseum—was written 2,000 years before the days of Moses. A sort of ritual, this book was usually placed in the tomb as a safe conduct for the soul on its journey to the other world. There was a ready sale for it, because the priests were wont to add special pages, or a supplement, which gave an account of the good deeds and virtues of the deceased person.

His Recipe

They had one of those dual divorce cases recently, where both parties are eager to secure the divorce and for no very good reasons except that they didn't seem to get along very well. The woman seemed to be rather catty and did not make nearly as good an impression as her husband, who finally remarked:

"It's this way, your honor. I like women all right, and especially my wife, but like toast and coffee, I'll be darned if I like 'em cold."

Cat Commits Suicide

A constable patrolling his beat at Blackburn recently saw through the window of a room at the side of a confectioner's shop a cat, apparently dying.

The constable forced an entrance, and found the cat had turned on the tap of a gas main. Artificial respiration was applied to the cat, and it revived. A new tap was put on the gas main, but a few days later the cat again turned on the tap and was dead when found.—London Mail.
