HIGH IDEALS PLEA

The public schools of Kent county and Washington College opened their doors to the youth of our county and union this week. We are glad to be able to present for their consideration and for the serious thought of parents the ideals as set forth in an address by the President of these United States.

Journeying toward Washington from the Agricultural northwest, President Coolidge stopped off in Brookings, S. D., Saturday to dedicate the Lincoln Memorial Library at the South Dakota State College with an address devoted almost wholly to education and marked by the absence of any reference to the farm relief fight or any other controversial problem.

The President swung the trend of his speech around toward the spiritual value of education and a eulogy of the part played by Abraham Lincoln in this direction.

"We have been excessively busy seeking for information that could be turned to practical advantage in the matter of dollars and cents, rather than for that wisdom which would guide us through eternity," Mr. Coolidge said. "Our higher educational institutions have turned thier thoughts especially to the sciences, and our secondary schools to vocational training. * * * * How poor and weak and generally ineffective we should be without these advantages can be at once seen by the most casual observation of those nations among which they have been neglected.

"This is by no means all that is to be expected from American education and American institutions. I can not conceive that the object of Abraham Lincoln was merely to instruct men how to raise more corn, to feed more hogs, to get more money, to buy more land, and so on in the expanding circle, as the story goes. Of course, he wanted to teach men to raise more corn, but his main object must have been to raise better men. We come back to the quality that is contained in the concentrated wisdom of the ages, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

"All of our science and all of our arts will never be the means for the true advancement of our nation, will never remove us from the sphere of the superfical and the cynical, will never give us a civilization and a culture of any worthy and lasting importance unless we are able to see in them the outward manifestation of a spiritual reality. Unless our halls of learning are real temples which are to be approached by our youth in an attitude of reverence, consecrated by worship of the truith, they will all end in a delusion. The information that is acquired in them will simply provide a greater capacity for evil. Our institutions of learning must be dedicated to a higher purpose. The life of our nation must rise to a higher realm.

"There is something more in learning and something more in life than a mere knowledge of science, a mere acquisition of wealth, a mere striving for place and power. Our colleges will fail in their duty to their students unless they are able to inspire them with a broader understanding of the spiritual meaning of science, of literature, and of the arts. Their graduates will go out into life poorly equipped to meet the problems of existence, to fall an easy prey to dissatisfaction and despair.

"Many of our older universities were founded by pious hands at great sacrifice for the express purpose of training men for the ministry to carry light to the people on the problems of life. Unless our college graduates are inspired with these ideals, our colleges have failed in their most important function and our people will be lacking in true culture. Abraham Lincoln, who was the most spiritual of our Presidents, had a true appreciation of this principle."

The President paid high tribute to the pioneering spirit that had developed the state of South Dakota and the west generally.

"We cannot fail to stand in respectful admiration for a people whose courage and ability have been crowned with such remarkable accomplishments," he said in speaking of South Dakota, adding: "But this is only typical of the growth and progress of the west, and the west is only typical of the growth and progress of America."

BETTERTON

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society was entertained at the home of the president, Mrs. Harvey Moore last Monday evening. The Ladies' Aid Society held their first meeting since the summer adjournment at the home of their president, Mrs. Archie Crew on Friday evening.

The temporary summer schedule of the Methodist Church has passed and the regular order is now in effect: Sunday school at two o'clock; divine worship at 3 o'clock, and Epworth League service at 7.30.

There will be no service at St. John's-By-The-Bay next Sunday, the congregation will worship with those of I. U. Church, the occasion being Home Coming Day at I. U. Parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Adley and son, of Philadelphia, have been spending several days with the parents of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, of Wilmington, who are well known here were week-end visitors in town and attended the Workman-Clark nuptials.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Touchton, who have been spending several months at Jewell Cottage, have returned to their home in Hartford Conn.

Quite a number from our vicinity paid their last respects to Dr. Wm. Maxwell at Still Pond last Saturday afternoon. The faithful Doctor's name will long be cherished here and passed along as one who has left behind "Footprints on the Sands of Time."

The Acacia Club of Philadelphia with relatives numbering over 100 people were week-end guests at the Hotel Chesapeake.

Dr. and Mrs. Workman have the best wishes of our people for a happy married life. They are at present spending their honeymoon in Maine.

Horace Wheeler, of Baltimore county, and Miss Catherine Wheeler, of Maryland State Normal School, spent the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moore, who have been spending the summer months at their bungalow on Bayside have moved to Baltimore. Miss Naudain Moore has gone back to Washington College where she is in the Freshman Class.

The Betterton Troup of Boy Scouts have resumed their weekly meetings in the Betterton School. The Scouts took part in the Firemen's Parade on Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Arthur Elliott and son, Bobby, of Eagle Heights, Pa., are spending the week with Miss Ethel Clark. Mr. Elliott and aonther son, Arthur, were week-end guests.

The dance which was scheduled to take place last Monday evening in the Betterton Casino was postponed on account of stormy weather. The weather also interferred with the regular moonlight excursion which did not arrive.

New York Canning Factory operated day and night last week in order to take care of the excess tomatoes. This week the supply has not been so great.

Mrs. Caroline Luike has been quite a sufferer of late with lumbago.

Mrs. Bryan and grand-daughter Miss Eleanor Monson, who have been spending several months at the Betterton House have returned to the home of the latter in Cleveland, Ohio both have made many friends here during their stay.

Mrs. J. A. Barr, of Hagerstown, is visiting her sister, Mrs. FrankYoung.

A unique entertainment was held in the school auditorium the past Wednesday evening. Oil paintings of familiar subjects and landscape scenes were exhibited and tableaus presented with the school children posing in the foreground of the picture. Proceeds for the school fund Mrs. Garr rendered a beautiful solo and home talent was assisted by friends from Still Pond.

FROM BANK CASHIER TO MOVIE HERO

Motion pictures draw their talent from most unexpected places.

Lawrence Gray, who plays opposite Norma Shearer in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "After Midnight." which will show Wednesday and Thursday of next week at the Lyceum Theatre, ceased being a newspaper reporter to become a banker.

A film director saw him in a teller's cage and gave him a contract as an actor. "I'd rather be a picture actor and put my money in the bank than be a banker and only be custodian of actor's money," says Gray.

Miss Shearer has the role of a cigarette girl in "After Midnight," while Gray has the role of a thug who is reformed (to a certain extent) and becomes a taxi driver. Gwyn Lee plays the role of Miss Shearer's wild sister and the picture was directed by Monta Bell.
