FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 387, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Her Luncheon

He met her by chance and as he was on his way to luncheon he asked her if she would not go with him, so they could talk over old times together.

"I've had my luncheon," she replied, "but I'll be glad to sit down with you so that we can talk while you eat."

In the restaurant, after a few minutes' conversation, she admitted that she would rather like a glass of iced tea, and while she was sipping that she remarked: "That sandwich of yours looks pretty good. I rather think I could eat one like it." Later she allowed him to order another glass of iced tea for her and another sandwich, and then an order of mocha pie and another glass of tea.

But she had had her luncheon.—Boston Globe.

Warrior's Paradise

The word "Valhalla" means "hall of the slain." In old Norse mythology, it was the abode of Odin in Asgard. It was originally the home of the dead, meaning something like the heaven of Christian peoples, but in the viking age it became known as the home of those who were slain in battle, a sort of warriors' paradise. It was situated in the region of joy. It contained many halls hung with spears and shields, and it was roofed with gold and supplied with food served by the Valkyries, a company of beautiful maidens. The warriors spent their days delighting themselves in battle, and their evenings eating and drinking.

Telephonetic Impasse

A telephone operator was at one end of the wire and a little girl, who had answered her ring, at the other. The operator, obeying one of the rules laid down by the company, was trying to get the child to call an older person. She began, according to the rule, by asking:

"Is your mama there?"

"No."

"Is your sister there?"

"No. There's no one here but grandma and me and the cat. Grandma can't hear and the cat can't talk."

Weight of Words

The domestic efficiency expert will have to invent a new set of scales for the weighing of words. If a husband talks too little a wife may get a divorce, was a ruling in a court of domestic relations a few days ago. If a wife talks incessantly she is also guilty of mental cruelty, was a verdict rendered by another judge. Is it not too much for anyone to say just what is the balanced ration?—Los Angeles Times.

Character Shown by "Five-Minutes" Test

Many things—the "placing" of one's eyes, shape of the chin, manner of walking, and so on—indicate character, but surest of all is the revelation made by "the-happiest-five-minutes-in-the day" test.

Those who, when they go to bed, get a book, make themselves comfortable, sigh with content, stretch themselves, and can say, "This is my happiest five minutes," have mental power, imagination, foresight and self-reliance. They often have some outstanding gift, such as music, or painting skill.

Those whose happiest five minutes are the last possible five in bed in the morning are of strong character, but selfish and domineering. Those who confess that their happiest five minutes are spent when they sit down to their principal meal and let their appetite have full sway are, as a rule, "hard," but just. They are the "big" men of the world of business, with no nerves, and very loyal to their friends.

Men whose happiest five minutes are the ones given to a stroll around the garden and a pipe, before going to business, are of the nonambitious type. They are honest, loyal, generous, but not among the big-brained. They will follow, but not lead.

Rules That Govern Kinship of Cousins

In answering a correspondent's query, "What relation are the children of first cousins to each other? What relation to me is my first cousin's child?" the Pathfinder Magazine says:

"Reckoning cousin relationships is simple if you start out right. A cousin is one collaterally related by descent from a common ancestor, but not a brother or sister. Children of brothers and sisters are first cousins to one another; sometimes they are called cousins-german, own cousins, or full cousins. The children of first cousins are 'second cousins' to one another; children of second cousins are third cousins to one another, and so on. The child of one's first cousin is a first cousin once removed; the grandchild of one's first cousin is a first cousin twice removed, and so on. Confusion sometimes arises from the custom of some people who speak of the children and grandchildren of their first cousins as second and third cousins, respectively, but the practice is only local. The correct and almost universal rule for reckoning cousins is as we have given it."

Paris' Last Oak

Paris, which contains more than 100,000 trees, has only one oak tree. The commonest ones are platanes, chestnuts, elms and maples.

Sad Indication

Some one had told the woman that he was a backward boy. But as she watched him playing in the sunny nursery and listened to him chatting he seemed to her quite normal—the usual child of four and one-half years.

It was only later when she accompanied him across the hall into his mother's room that he made a queer remark.

His mother's room was a spacious one done in old blue, and as they entered it, his tall, bronze-haired mother was standing before a full-length mirror trying on a chiffon negligee in old gold.

The baby boy looked at the lovely vision in the full-length mirror. "Oh, dear," he sighed. "Two mothers. One's enough."—New York Sun.

Shoe-Making Statistics

The Boot and Shoe Recorder says that no one man makes an entire pair of shoes. There are about 150 different operations on a shoe before it is finished. Each operator works on a machine or process, which contributes to the complete shoe. The number of parts turned out daily by any factory depends upon the size of the plant, machinery, equipment and quality of the product. Such outputs range from a few hundred to 10,000 or more pairs a day. A factory making high-grade shoes and employing 300 men and women might produce, at full capacity, 800 or 900 pairs daily. The same number of people working on cheap shoes might produce 3,000 pairs daily.

Lofty Sanctuary Safe

Hawksmoor Nature reserve, near Enheadle, has been made permanent for birds, animals and flowers. Public subscriptions raised funds for its purchase by Staffordshire. It is 600 feet above the sea, and commands one of the most beautiful views in that county. Nearly every one of the 95 species of birds found in Staffordshire have homes there, and foxes, badges, deer, squirrels and shrews also make it their headquarters.—London Mail.

Rich British Island

Jamaica is the largest of the British West Indian islands. It has an area of about 4,000 square miles and is, therefore, a little more than twice the size of Prince Edward island. The population numbers 650,000, three-fourths of whom are blacks. Kingston, the capital, has a good harbor. Jamaica exports sugar, coffee, rum, dyewood, bananas, and other fruits.
