KENT COUNTY CHURCH NOTES

Rev. Carl Yoder, of Cleveland, O., preached at the two Methodist Churches Sunday. His message won his hearers and quite a fine sum was raised for missions.

Christ M. P. Sunday School named Mrs. A. C. Bacon, Mrs. Laurence G. Brown and E. K. Mohr as delegates to the State Sunday School Convention which met in Baltimore this week. Mr. Mohr was on the program as teacher in adult department.

The third quarterly conference of the Chestertown M. E. Church was held Friday night with the Rev. Dr. Omar E. Jones, of Middletown, Del., superintendent of the Middletown district of the Wilmington Conference, presiding. Owing to the recent reconstruction of the church, the second conference was not held and consequently the joint session of the second and third conference was on this occasion. Besides the Rev. Wilbur F. Corkran, the pastor, there were present, members of the church trustees, including John N. Bennett, Carl N. Bordley, Harry F. Jefferson, A. Howard Covey, John C. Davis, Thomas Eliason, Charles H. Jefferson, W. C. Peregoy, H. H. Klinefelter, W. B. Copper, M. E. Newsome, Rumsey Anthony, John W. Barnes, Julian Coleman, Herbert E. Perkins, Cordray Loud, Miss Elizabeth Stuart and Miss Susan Hill. Arrangements were made to conclude the financial campaign and to collect the entire fund of $65,000 to defray the expenses of remodeling the edifice. The entire fund has been pledged in large and small sums.

At Bond M. E. Conference Rev. Mr. Green's return was unanimously asked and fine reports were given Superintendent Jones.

Monday night the Bykota Club of the M. E. Church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Emory Bonwill. The hostesses were Mrs. Bonwill and Mrs. E. Bonwill Dukes. There was a program of speeches after which refreshments were served.

The Triangle Club of Christ M. P. Church was entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sides by Misses Regina Rasin and Marian Caldwell.

ADAMS FLOATING THEATRE

The James Adams Floating Theatre will open a week's engagement in Chestertown Monday.

The Adams company compares favorably with any of the city stock companys. The theatre is artistically decorated, the stage is equipped with all the scenic requirements that the plays call for, and during the intermission music is furnished by an orchestra.

One of the features of the show is the concert, which consists of vaudeville, and acts that were presented, Van Browne and his piano accordian; Heverly the magician, and Lester and Mayo, would be a credit to any first-class vaudeville house.

The Floating Treatre has become well known through publicity recently given to it in magazines and newspapers. It was the inspiration of Edna Ferber's latest novel "Show Boat," and Miss Ferber spent several weeks on board while she was writing her preliminary outline of the book.

ANOTHER KENT 4-H CLUB BOY WINS A TRIP

SALES OF FARM LAND

Considerable activity in sales of farm land on the Eastern Shore and in counties adjacent to Kent, are reported by William Luebbers, 306 St. Paul street, Baltimore, who ascribes the interest mainly to the new bridge which it is proposed to throw across the bay to the Eastern Shore. Among the counties in which interest is keen among purchasers are Caroline, Talbot and Dorchester and Mr. Leubbers looks to this interest to be manifested in Kent.

Among the recent transactions in Eastern Shore properties he reports these: 5-acre farm near Greensboro, from R. B. Staats, to Fred Weissenborn, of New York; 200-acre farm on the Honga River from Clifton Owens to O. B. Coblentz, of Baltimore; 75 acres owned by the Adams estate on Honga River to George Clavell, of Fullerton, Md.; 11 acres near Bozman, Talbot county, to William Aud, of Baltimore, from James Morris; a farm near Denton owned by Harry Collins to Mrs. Harry Leckie, New York; farm near Denton from Wm. F. Wolf, to George Peter, of New York.

Mr. Luebbers draws attention to the number of out-of-town people buying Eastern Shore property. He says that these people realize the great investment value that Eastern Shore properties offer especially at present because of the new bridge to be erected over the Bay and deplores that Marylanders themselves are letting these great opportunities for investment pass by.

Not only does the investment aspect of these properties appeal to those outside of Maryland, says Mr. Luebbers, but the purchasers realize the great climatic and other attractions of the Eastern Shore, the climate, in fact, he says, is as attractive as that of the famous Riviera. They realize, indeed, that the Eastern Shore is the Garden Spot of Maryland, he says.

Mrs. Isaac H. Dixon, of this county, prominent farm owner of the Eastern Shore, who recently returned from a tour of the West where she made an intensive study of co-operative marketing methods, has invited local farmers and their families to attend a basket picnic at her estate "Bloomfield," in Talbot county on October 25. The farm bureaus of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot counties will be represented by speakers and members as will the extension service of the University of Maryland and various granges. Mrs. Harry Williams, of Kent, is to be one of the speakers.
