OLD DAYS IN PRINCESS ANNE—The above picture of the court-house green at the County Seat of Somerset, was made before the days of the automobile and before the new court-house was built. The old Clerk's office, a landmark of the lower Eastern Shore, is seen at the left—and the old Town Pump, for years a county institution, is shown in the foreground. The storehouse occupied by the late Daniel Collins, is seen in the centre. The old pump is gone, the modern store of Frank D. Layfield occupies the site of the old Collins storehouse; and the beautiful Somerset County Court House stands on the location of the old Clerk's office. Beautiful Princess Anne, while retaining a touch of the quaint and picturesque, has kept step in the march of progress.

A WORTHY EASTERN SHORE INSTITUTION—The Edward W. McCready Memorial Hospital, at Crisfield, is one of the most modern institutions of its kind in Maryland, and has a beautiful setting on the banks of the Little Annamessex River.
