LOCAL HAPPENINGS HERE AND THERE

James Joiner caught his hand in a saw at a mill near Fairlee. Dr. Frank W. Smith dressed the wound. Mr. Joiner lost the end of several fingers.

The men of St. James M. P. Church held a turkey supper in the assembly hall of the high school on Friday evening, December 2. The supper was prepared and served by the men of the church. H. Stockton Startt, president of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church, was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Don't forget the lecture next Monday evening in the Chestertown Court House by Mr. Vautier. He will speak on current events.

Abe Robinson, the well-known restaurant keeper, has removed to Baltimore.

Sometime between midnight and 6 a. m. Wednesday morning thieves entered the Chestertown Candy Kitchen here and made off with about $65 in change and several cartons of cigarettes.

Falling Plaster in a number of homes in Chestertown during the big guns that are being tested at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. A similar complaint made some time ago resulted in the government deciding that broken windows and falling plaster in this vicinity was not caused by the firing at the Aberdeen reservation.

Kennedyville school lead the list in attendance for October. Skinner's Neck, Pomona and Fairlee followed. Chestertown heads the High Schools with 93.8, Rock Hall 93.2, Millington 91.8 and Galena 88.5.

The Town Relief Society will meet at the home of Miss Mayme Thompson next Tuesday evening, December 6th. All members are urged to be present as there is business of importance.

The joint social and business meeting of the Parent and Teacher Association that was to have been held this Thursday afternoon has been postponed until Thursday, December 8th, at the Elementary School at 3.15 p. m.

While gunning for ducks from a sink-box on the Susquehanna Flats, off the shores of Cecil and Harford counties, R. P. Meigs and M. Hubbard, both of Harford county had a thrilling experience, when waves swamped their sink-box causing it to sink. The occupants were forced to wade ashore in about four feet of water. They managed to save their guns, but the balance of their paraphernalia was lost.

Chestertown will lose a faithful employ next month in the person of Charles Miller. He has resigned to take charge of Dr. H. P. Copeland's farm in Piney Neck. Clarence Fowler is spoken of for the job.

Albert C. Rawleigh has sold to Miss Annie Newton a new double house on Cannon street which has just been erected by Mr. Rawleigh. Mr. Slagle tenants one side.

Eugene C. McCoy has purchased the George Ross Veazey farm, near Earleville, containing 306 acres.

The hunting season now in progress has demonstrated rather conclusively the futility of attempting to breed ring-necked pheasants on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula. Although hundreds of these handsome birds have been liberated during the last few years, few hunters report seeing any of them at all. Conservation authorities are to be commended for their effort to introduce this new game bird into the territory, but, evidently, for some reason they do not thrive in our environment. Perhaps it would be wise to devote greater attention to the propagation of quail and rabbit and abandon the effort to develop the pheasant as a shore game bird.

A local paper published in Newark, Ohio, speaks highly of W. C. Copper, a Chestertown "boy" who went West. He is at the head of a sales service for Maytag washers and since April has sold 841 machines. While traveling in Ohio he picked up a man on the road who said he knew Charles and Thos. Kibler and M. W. Thomas. The News joins his friends here in congratulation on Mr. Copper's success.

Fairlee Farm Bureau will meet on Tuesday, December 13 instead of at the usual time.
