ORDNANCE UNIT APPROVES BAY SPAN PROJECT

A further step toward obtaining the approval of the Government to the construction of the proposed Chespeake Bay bridge, from Hart and Millers Island to Tolchester, was made Tuesday when Maj.-Gen. Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordinance of the army, told a delegation composed of Senator Millard E. Tydings Stuart S. Janney, director of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Company, and W. Roscoe Bonsal, president of the company, that the Ordinance Department would have no objection to the construction of the bridge at this point.

The conference followed a number of other conferences and hearings held in the last few months concerning the proposed bridge in an endeavor to reach an understanding as to plans and its relation to navigation.

The action of General Williams in giving approval to the project conveyed the impression to the delegation that the department fully realized the importance of the undertaking.

If the report of Maj. C. R. Pettis, War Department harbor engineer which has not been forwarded to Maj.-Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers, is approved, it will pave the way for the construction of the bridge. The only other objections that now stand in the way are those filed by shipping interests of Philadelphia and the Baltimore and Carolina Steamship Company, which object to the present plans for the bridge.

Senator Tydings was enthusiastic following the conference with General Williams and believes it will greatly advance the proposal. Senator Tydings said that if General Williams had objected "it would have been a most difficult matter to handle and would have caused endless delay."

Tydings Comments.

In commenting on the action of General Williams, Senator Tydings said;

"It is seldom that one dealing with the head of a Government department meets with the broad vision and understanding with which General Williams dealt with his question today."

Senator Tydings said that "the proposed bridge is one of the most important public improvements to be made in Maryland in a generation and pointed out the benefits to be derived from it in bringing the Eastern Shore several hours nearer to Baltimore. He referred to the advantage to transportation as well as to the matter of increased value of land on that side of the bay.

"It looks like the bridge actually will be built," the Senator added.

Trumbull in Captivity

After serving in the Revolution, John Trumbull, famous American painter, went to London. Arrested there, he announced that he had been on the staff of General Washington. This occasioned his being confined in the tower of London for about eight months. The artist's life was saved by a direct appeal to the king made by Benjamin West, with whom the artist had studied.

Biblical Quotation

The expression "Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot" occurs in Exodus chapter 21, verse 24; the same thought is also in Leviticus, chapter 24, verse 20 and Deuteronomy, chapter 19, verse 21. In the New Testament, Matthew, chapter 5, verse 38, it is quoted, with the Christian attitude toward it.
