Chestertown M. E. Church
W. F. Corkran, Pastor

At a trustee meeting held last Monday afternoon, A. H. Covey was elected to fill the vacancy made by the passing of Bro. M. A. Toulson.

The revival campaign is in its second week and there is something of spring time in the spiritual atmosphere of the church. Sunday congregations are large, week night attendance is good, the afternoon meetings are stimulating and the choir is standing by in splendid form. In nature three months of spring brings summer so it would be in grace. It takes time to break up the fallow ground, sow and cultivate; but there can be no mature fruit for harvest without it and we don't have the endurance to work and wait. This town ought to have a genuine revival campaign for three months, sustained by all the Christian people.

Tomorrow will be "Decision Day" in the Sunday school where no force-pump processes will be anticipated. The doors of church membership will be open in the public services. "Whosoever Will May Come."

St. James and Lynch M. P. Churches
L. Colvin Randall, Pastor

With the continuation of good weather there will be the usual services at St. James and Lynch M. P. Churches this coming Sabbath. Another helpful meeting will be led this week by Mrs. Lee Joiner at 7.30 p. m., Sunday evening. There will be many of the St. James Endeavorers visiting at Lynch. The order of services will be as follows:

KENT WOMEN TRADES FRUIT FOR PERMANENT HAIR WAVE

Because money is scarce despite bountiful crops, Mrs. Evelyn Harris, a delegate to the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation Convention, will return to her farm with a permanent wave—paid for in apples instead of dollars.

Mrs. Harris has revived the old art of barter. It came about through necessity, she explained, but has worked out happily for her and her five children.

Aside from the permanent curl, Mrs. Harris has planned to consult one of Baltimore's leading physicians—and his fee like that of the hairdresser—she hopes may be paid by fruit instead of checks.

She is a widow and runs a fruit and poultry farm near Betterton, on the Eastern Shore.

"Three years ago my husband died and left me the farm and my five children to support single-handed," she explained. "At first it appeared an impossible task to make ends meet. As money was so scarce. I decided to see what bartering could do.

"I wanted to keep up with the times and subscribed to the best magazines. My proposition to pay for the periodicals in apples or pears or frying chickens met with approval of the editors. Now I have 23 magazines on my list.

"At another time, my children and I need haircuts. For a load of corn cobs, the barber in a town nearby, gave me an order for 12 cuts. My daughters and I had our hair bobbed and my sons had their hair trimmed."

The bus company in whose autos Mrs. Harris' youngsters go to school are paid for in loads of gravel.

Taxes on her farm are paid in firewood. Next year when her oldest daughter goes to college, part of her tuition fee will probably be paid for in pears, for Mrs. Harris has one of the finest pear orchards in the East.

"The last time I came to Baltimore, I had a permanent wave which I paid for with six frying chickens," she continued. "This time I believe apples will be more seasonable. It may seem a strange way of doing business, but I'm not going to be buried in farm drudgery as long as I can keep bartering."—Baltimore Post.

THE DEL-MAR-VA ASSOCIATION

The meeting of those interested in the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association at Chestertown, Maryland on Friday proved of value in many ways. The accomplishments of the association during the past two years have been of inestimable benefit to this peninsula. No one who is at all familiar with what has been done can gainsay this. But no organization can operate without proper financial support, and that is what the Del-Mar-Va Association must have if it is to continue its activities.

We believe it to be the greatest forward movement that has ever been planned for this Peninsula. Its purpose is to promote and develop the resources, of every kind and character, and to awaken the people to a greater understanding and a keener appreciation of the splendid country comprising the fourteen counties between the two bays. No one interest is to be served to the exclusion of another, but the combined interests of the entire peninsula as a unit. And with the group of men back of the association, with the financial support given it the first two years of its existence, and its splendid record of accomplishments, the future, to all intents and purposes, seemed clear and hopeful.

The time has come, however, when the association must have financial support if it is to continue. There is no lack of enthusiasm throughout the fourteen counties for the association, but it requires money to operate any undertaking nowadays if it is to be successful.

It is inconceivable to us that the people of this peninsula will fail to come to the aid of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association and give it their financial as well as their moral support.

Beware of the man whose story sounds too good.

ICEBOUUD DUCK HUNTERS 9 DAYS ON BAY ISLAND

Ice-bound on Cobbler's Island in Sinepuxent Bay, for nine days, with the supply of fresh water and food running alarmingly low, was the experience of five Queen Anne's county duck-hunters, who last week, returned to their homes in Centreville and Queen Anne's, after a thrilling but successful gunning expedition.

Those in the party were William Marvin Barton and W. Edward Barton, members of the firm of Barton Brothers, Centreville; J. Hall Barton of the Superior Guano Company, of Centreville; T. Henry Furbush, Centreville representative of the Baltimore Life Insurance Company; John Palmer Smith, proprietor of the Palmer Ice Company, Centreville; Chas. Barton, of Queen Anne's, clerk in the last Maryland Legislature.

The party of hunters left for their trip Sunday, Jan. 1 and soon after reaching Cobbler's Island, in the Sinepuxent bay, found themselves marooned by vast fields of ice. After several days, they were able to get ashore and after walking eight miles reached a Coast Guard station, where they called up their families by the phone, advising that they were well and safe.

For nine days they hunted on Cobbler's and Hagan Island, bagging 130 ducks and 30 geese. Toward the end of their involuntary confinement on the Island, the supply of fresh water was completely exhausted and they were compelled to seek ponds and streams. Food also ran scarce, but by carefully rationing, the provisions they managed to escape acute distress. They arrived at their homes in good health.

Some Doubt About Him

Human nature changes so little as the years go tearing along that we suppose, when Horace Greeley, Charles A. Dana and Henry Watterson were grinding out their daily observations, middle-aged and elderly people used to sigh for the good old days when there were at least a few great editors.—Ohio State Journal. There's but one other animal more contrary than man.—Newark Advocate.
