ASPARAGUS SEASON HERE

Chestertown market had asparagus on sale Saturday but not from local farmers.

Special arrangements are being made by Kent county growers to ship their asparagus to Chicago by way of Dover, Del., by special trains that will carry the Del-Mar-Va crop straight to the mid-western metropolis after it has been carefully selected. This method will solve many of the problems of local growers, who, hitherto, have been concerned over the marketing question.

Several years ago, a marketing association was formed, including the asparagus growers in the county, and arrangements were made with Philadelphia buyers, whereby large trucks were sent here twice a week for the collection of the "grass."

Farmers, who intend to take advantage of the Dover idea, believe their entire crop may be disposed of in this manner.

Edward Emory, one of the largest and most experienced growers in this section, said that prospects for a good crop are encouraging.

Every American Should See "The Rough Riders"

The quaint costumes and customs of the nineties—the surge of patriotism that swept over America in behalf of the oppressed Cubans, the assembling of the most romantic body of cavalry cavaliers in history and their undying exploits in the face of death—the heart of a great brave American leader and patriot opened as you would open a golden ledger—and a love story, wistful, passionate, appealing, gloriously human—these are the strong, warming cordials that one must quaff eagerly in the swift festival of the eye, mind and soul when "The Rough Riders" are hosts of the screen. "The Rough Riders" will be shown at The Lyceum on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 26th, 27th and 28th.

For "The Rough Riders" is unquestionably one of the finest screen stories that Paramount has ever produced, a picture that fairly demands the use of superlatives. The Rough Riders themselves are a motley lot of men, ranging from silk stockings to jailbirds. They live and they fight like heroes, following that masterly character of American history, Theodore Roosevelt. They follow him in frolic and they follow him in the ghastly corridors of fever, stench, hate and war, where Death leads the way.

The reports on the production were highly favorable. The picture, actually seen, is a revelation of what a real scroll of war and love can be with the proper supervision, infinite labor, and the genuine ability of players brought out to the fullest.

There is small need to mention what excellent portrayals are given by Charles Emmett Mack, Charles Farrell, George Bancroft, Noah Beery and Fred Kohler. You must see for yourselves the power they have infused into their roles. When Jesse L. Lasky, Paramount's first vice-president, and B. P. Schulberg, associate producer, chose Frank Hopper out of a list of nearly seven hundreds contestants for the role of Roosevelt, they were possessed both of good fortune and good judgment. He is the nearest thing to T. R. in appearance and mannerism that we shall probably ever see. Leonard Wood, who was colonel of the Rough Riders, will no doubt be pleased at the impersonation given him by Col. Fred Lindsay.

"The Rough Riders" was directed by Victor Fleming, whose star is in its ascendancy through his several recent successes. The actual story on which the film is based is the work of Hermann Hagedorn.

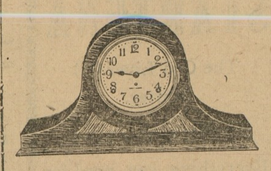

Go and see "The Rough Riders."

Humble Beginning of York's Great Minster

York minster, erected 1,300 years ago, owes its conception to the passion of an early English king. It was Edwin, the king of Northumbria, whose ardent love for a Christian princess caused him to erect the first minster. Edwin was a pagan then, and Eadbald, king of Kent, refused to sanction a marriage between his sister Ethelburga and Edwin, holding it unlawful for a Christian maiden to be wed to a pagan. However, Edwin's love for the princess ruled his every action and he resolved to become a Christian. History records that they were married while Edwin was still a pagan. Bishop Paulinus, who held great sway at Eadbald's court, did not hide his disapproval of the match, but he was a wise man, and instead of wasting time in idle words he set about the task, with the aid of the new queen, of converting Edwin. On Easter day, 627, Edwin was baptized in a small wooden church called St. Peter the Apostle, and this was the first minster of York. The primitive structure was later enclosed in a stone building at Edwin's request, but before it was completed, the convert was assassinated by Oswald, who became his successor. A Norman cathedral, years after, marked the spot where the first minster stood, and where the present great minster now stands.—London Tit-Bits.

WEDDINGS IN KENT COUNTY

A pretty wedding took place at noon Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hicks Tucker, near Chestertown, when their daughter Miss Dorothy Rolph Tucker, became the bride of Spencer Holton Sparks, of Centreville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Cochran, of Chestertown, in the presence of the members of the immediate families, and a number of out of the county guests.

The home was attractively decorated with pine and laurel, spring blossoms, and potted plants. The wedding march was played by Mrs. T. B. Vansant, an aunt of the bride of Ridley Park, Pa.

The bride was attired in a gown of beige crepe Romaine, with beige slippers and hose. Her bouquet was pink roses and lillies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. T. Curtis Seward, of Centreville, as matron of honor. T. Curtis Seward was Mr. Sparks' best man.

Immediately after the ceremony, a luncheon was served for the bridal party and house guests after which, they motored to Elkton, where they took a train for Washington, and other points of interest.

The bride was a student at Chestertown high school where she was an honor member of the senior class For the last four years she has been bookkeeper at the Third National Bank. Mr. Sparks is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Spencer Sparks, of Centreville, and holds a position with the Lowe Hardware Co.

Jarvis— Caldwell

As the twilight shades were softly falling over the little town of Galena very pretty wedding took place at the M. E. Church Saturday, April 14, when Miss Estella Jarvis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Jarvis, became the bride of W. Edward Caldwell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Caldwell, of Kennedyville.

The ceremony was performed at 6 p. m. by Rev. Ivanhoe Willis in the presence of many relatives and friends. At the appointed hour the sweet strains of Lohengrin's wedding march which was charmingly rendered by Mrs. Samuel W. Caldwell, sister-in-law of the groom announced the coming of the bridal party, who preceded by flower girl, little Mabel Jarvis, of Wilmington, who wore pink georgette and carried a basket of pink sweet peas and ferns, followed by the groom and best man, a brother Samuel W. Caldwell, who wore dark blue suits. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and ferns. The bride was becomingly gowned in white georgette with hat and shoes to match and carried white bride roses. The maid of honor, Miss Lillian Atwell, of Sassafras, wore orchid georgette with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

"Oh Promise Me" was played very softly during ceremony by Mrs. Samuel W. Caldwell, whose gown was beige georgette with hat and shoes to match.

The ushers were Melvin Jarvis, of Galena, and William Umflit, of Wilmington. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents immediately after. At a late hour the happy couple left amid showers of rice, confetti and good wishes for their home near Galena. Many lovely presents were received.
