MONTGOMERY HAS THE HIGHEST SCORE

One of the exhibits that attracted special attention at the Montgomery County Fair last week, was a tall silver vase that was presented recently to the Montgomery County Board of Health, by the National Negro Business League for the best negro health campaign carried on during the current year in any rural community in the entire country, in connection with the National Negro Health Week. In the nation-wide campaign, Ohio and Kentucky shared the honors with Maryland, Cincinnati being awarded the cup for the best work done in cities of 100,000, population or over, and Hendrickson, Kentucky a similar prize for that in cities under 100,000.

The work in Maryland was directed by Dr. W. T. Pratt, Deputy State Health Officer and full time County Health Officer for Montgomery County. Assistance in organizing communities was given by Dr. E. O. Peters, a colored physician a native of Montgomery county, now living in Washington, and by Dr. Francis a colored dentist, also of Washington.

County Health Officer Norman S. Dudley, of Church Hill, accompanied by Dr. Beachley, district health officer, went to Crumpton Friday to investigate another case of infantile paralysis, reported by Dr. C. H. McCalfe, of Sudlersville. The victim is a small child in the family of Edward Bratcher, colored. This is the second case reported in the last two weeks and, while no fears are entertained of an epidemic, physicians in all sections are keeping a viligant lookout for any signs of the disease.

Editorial

LOOK THE FACTS IN THE FACE

(By LORIE C. QUINN, JR., President
Eastern Shore Newspaper Corp.)

If the line of thought advanced by William Randolph Hearst in his signed statement last Sunday is a fair example of that gentleman's reasoning power, then as a logician Mr. Hearst is surely slipping.

That Mr. Hearst opposes the election of Governor Smith is not surprising, in view of his traditional opposition to the New York Democratic organization and everyone in that organization who refused to dance to the tune of Mr. Hearst's music. Those versed in the political history of he Empire State have no difficulty in recalling the numerous unsuccessful attempts of Mr. Hearst to ride to power and glory on the strength of the Democratic party—attempts, the failure of which have seemingly bred and nourished a bitterness, a poisonous envy in the publisher's breast for every Democrat who has succeeded where he failed. So his present opposition to Governor Smith, in the light of his past performances, is not in the least surprising. It is surprising, however, that Mr. Hearst should select the weakest, the lamest excuse which intelligent discussion of public questions could evolve, as his reason for predicting and favoring the defeat of the Democratic nominee in this campaign.

The substance of Mr. Hearst's long-distance effusion is that Governor Smith will be defeated, because he favors changes in our method of dealing with the liquor situation; not that Governor Smith's attitude on that question is wrong, argues Mr. Hearst—but because, he says, the American people do not yet fully realize the utter failure and futility of the present temperance solution, and therefore are not ready for a change. Governor Smith's attitude on the question is right, says Mr. Hearst; he declares as he has repeatedly declared in the past, that drastic changes along the very lines now advocated by Governor Smith, are essential to a proper and effective solution of the liquor situation. But, argues Mr. Hearst as he seeks an excuse for opposing the Democratic nominee, public ignorance of true conditions plus inability on the part of the public to conceive a proper solution as Governor Smith conceives it (and as Mr. Hearst himself conceives it) should and will result in Governor Smith's defeat.

When a man of the intelligence usually accredited to William Randolph Hearst can find no better or more logical reason for opposing Governor Smith than that offered by the published in his statement last Sunday, it is evident that the opposition is woefully short of real ammunition and in dire distress.

It is unquestionably true that in many sections of the country there are prohibition fanatics who close their eyes to all reason, and render themselves so blind that they simply will not see. It is likewise true that there are multitudes of intelligent, broad-minded men and women, genuine friends of the temperance cause, who have hesitated to accept any substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead Act, for fear that any change would mean a letting down of the barriers and a step backward in the cause of temperance. Though wedded to their temperance ideals these people are, first of all, intelligent, patriotic American citizens—and the very fact that they are intelligent and patriotic is ample assurance that their minds are open to reason and to conviction on the liquor issue and every other issue that occupies public thought in this campaign. It is not to the ignorant, bigoted, narrow-minded fanatic, but to the earnest intelligent, patriotic citizen to whom the nation must look in this campaign and every other campaign, for intelligent solution of the vexing problems which touch our national life.

Among his other splendid qualities, your average American citizen is practical—he meets difficult situations with practical measures. He deals in realities and not in fancies. He alters his plans to meet changed conditions whenever it is necessary—and his mental precision is about as keen as that of any nationality in the world. In short, your average American is no rain-bow chaser, but an intelligent, level-headed, patriotic citizen, interested in all that promotes public welfare, open to reasonable discussion and conviction on the issues of the day.

There is, perhaps, a greater division of opinion on the so-called "wet" and "dry" issue than there has been on any public question since the abolition of slavery. It is a question of so many ramifications that widespread differences of opinion are a natural consequence; but happily, the time has passed when the sincerity of those differences, or the honesty of the motives which inspire them, can be questioned. It would be no more reasonable to assume that the man who favors changes in our method of solving the liquor problem, is a vassal of the rum traffic or an exponent of the saloon interests, than to assume that those who oppose the advocated changes, are tyrants and imbeciles. And the encouraging thing about the whole situation is the widespread indication that the intelligent, sober-minded men and women of this country are reasoning the matter out and are going to reach their conclusions as the result of sound thought and deliberation, instead of being coerced into emotional and illogical judgment by extremists and fanatics on either side of the question.

If the true friends of the temperance cause will take home with them the declarations of Governor Smith on the temperance question, and study those declarations with calm, sober and fair-minded reasoning in the quiet of their own firesides, they will find much food for thought. Governor Smith has not declared for a revival of the liquor traffic, but for a more rational, a more logical and a more effective method of accomplishing that which the Prohibition Amendment and the Volstead Act were intended to accomplish. Governor Smith has declared his opposition to the revival of the saloon, and has characterized the saloon as a defunct institution which must never be returned. And he has pledged himself to enforce the Prohibition Amendment and the Volstead Act, as long as they are on the statute books. At the same time Governor Smith gives voice to facts which every intelligent, fair-minded citizen must recognize—that the present method of dealing with the liquor situation has fallen far short of the good results that had been hoped for and expected; that crime, corruption, bribery and graft are thriving as never before in the history of our country; that boot-legging and lawlessness is rampant; and that after nearly ten years of trial, supported by the resources of the greatest, the richest and most powerful nation in the world, these conditions are daily growing worse instead of better.

If this be true—and is there anywhere a well-posted man or woman of sound and unbiased judgment who will deny that it is true—isn't it about time to look the facts in the face, to acknowledge the truth, and to seek some different method of control that will better meet our needs?

Large Public Sale
Of 65 Head of Purebred and Grade
Holstein Cattle
Thursday, Sept. 20, 1928
At 1 O'clock P. M.

On the "Corbit" farm, one-half mile west of Middletown, Del.

I will positively sell my entire herd of Cattle, as I am going to move on a smaller farm in the spring, and am selling them at this time, because most of them will have calves by their sides by day of sale.

35 head are milk Cows, some fresh with calves by their sides, others close springers. Most of them are two-year-olds.

30 head of Heifers, ranging in age from 4 to 12 months, some have been bred.

I have raised the most of these cattle myself, and have always kept the best. They will give from 60 to 70 pounds of milk a day.

They were all sired by a 30 pound Bull, Sir Inka Prilly Segis Burma No. 303802. This bull sold when one month old for $600, and I purchased him at Jehu Alfree's sale.

These cows stood another clean test by Dr. J. R. Porteus on August 27th, this being the third test they have gone through, the last two not showing a reactor in the herd. They are under state and government supervision and can be shipped anywhere in the United States. A certificate will be shown day of sale.

Will also sell two high-class pure-bred Bulls, one of them sired by Sir Inka Prilly Segis Burma, coming 3 years old.

Dairymen looking for real milk cows should see this herd, as there will not be a better one offered for sale on the Peninsula this season.
