DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For President of the United States:
ALFRED E. SMITH.

For Vice-President:
JOSEPH T. ROBINSON.

For United States Senator:
WILLIAM CABELL BRUCE

For Representative in Congress:
T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH.

INTEGRITY AND ABILITY THE TEST

In one of the most forceful paragraphs of his speech of acceptance, Governor Alferd E. Smith declared:

"While this is agovernment of laws and not of men, laws do not execute themselves. We must have people of character and outstanding ability to serve the nation. To me one of the greatest elements of satisfaction in my nomination is the fact that I owe it to no one man or set of men. I can with complete honesty make the statement that my nomination was brought about by no promise given or implied by me or anyone in my behalf.

"I will not be influenced in appointments by the question of a person's wet or dry attitude, by whether he is rich or poor, by whether he comes from the north, south, east or west, or by what church he attends in the worship of God. The sole standard of my appointments will be the same as they have been in my governorship—integrity of the man or woman and his or her ability to give me the greatest possible aid in devoted service to The People."

COMES OUT FOR FARMER

Farmers who MAY have entertained some serious uncertainty concerning Governor Alfred E. Smith's attitude on farm relief, assuredly had all doubts set aside when they read the Democratic nominee's address delivered in Omaha, Nebraska.

For the FIRST time in any national campaign, a candidate for president has unhesitatingly, unqualifiedly and vigorously espoused the cause of agriculture.

For the FIRST time in the history of the American Republic the dirt farmers of the nation have a candidate for president who is outspokenly, avowedly and emphatically their FRIEND and CHAMPION.

The approaching election will decide whether or not a candidate for the presidency DARES to be a friend of the farmer.

No OTHER candidate has EVER taken the chance.

Governor Smith has embraced the opportunity FRANKLY, FEARLESSLY, GLADLY. He BELIEVES-LY, GLADLY. He BELIEVES the farmer is being mistreated. And he proposed by vigorous measures to correct the injustice.

It remains to be seen whether or not the farmers will STAND BY a man who has the courage to fight their battles. And, afte rhis clear-cut Omaha speech no farmer can remain in doubt of his friendship, or loyalty.

If the farmers of the land FAIL to support the man who is courageous enough and sincere enough to champion their cause, it will be many a day before another in found who will DARE to risk his political future for a group of citizens who will not be LOYAL to him.

The future of the American farmer is more important to the future prosperity of this county and the nation-at-large, than any narrow, partisan, prejudice-created issue of religion or prohibition.

I, HOLIER THAN THOU

Under the amber sunset glow of late September, the cold outlines of the stone which hides our Unknown Soldier, soften. Loosed from the ever present tokens of love, vagrant leaves caressed by the breeze, rustle over the granite. From the Capital, drifts the murmur of the tide of life at the home-coming hour.

huffling feet of age timidly approach the stone and from beneath the Romany shawl which covers the gray hair, dark eyes filled with pain and longing strive to see beyond the sealed portals and a withered hand makes the sign of the cross.

Shadows fall across the stone and Rachel leaning on the arm of Jacob mourns, and will not be comforted.

The step of vibrant womanhood and a boy's questioning voice. Do you think he might be Daddy?" A stifled sob and the answer, "Hush, dear. Nobody knows—only God." Pure passion lays a rose upon the stone and in the last rays of the sun, its crimson warmth seems to touch the stone as gently as the first kiss of love.

Who was this Unknown Soldier? Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic? Or one of those who found life and service religion enough and the Glory of God greater than the glory of creed?

One thing we know—that he gave all he had and was and hoped to bein order that "this government of the people for the people and by the people, should not perish from the earth."

Never do the loving ones—and forgetting, who press close to his last place, raise the question, was he Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic, because love leads them there—and love is kind.

When he, whose couch now marks the trail's end for the feet of the nation, stood at attention in the ranks for the first time, did lifted eyebrows mark his declaration of religious faith? Or, when in the silent of the night, he crouched in cramped fashion with death at his elbow in the "listening post" were those he guarded doubtful because of his religion?

When the sergeant's whistle shrilled at the "zero hour" and our Unknown Soldier charged through the flames that seared in "No Man's Land" did any hesitate to lead or to follow him, because he had learned his childhood prayers in a different fashion? And when his soul had passed, on into the purple mists of glory and stood before its Creator, did God ask, "Are you Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic?"

And yet—and yet to our shame, today here in Kent County, a man's fitness for high office is being questioned, not because he is mentally unprepared or morally undesirable—but because he is a Catholic.

Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for President with an inspiring record of twnety-five years in the service of his state and people, and endowed with the God-given quality of leadership which has brought to his support the progressive men in all parties—is unfit and unsafe to guide the destiny of this nation—because he is a Catholic.

What a commentary upon our Protestantism which has existed for hundreds of years. How easily we barter the birthright Thomas Jefferson gave us—for a mess of political pottage.

Unheeding the warnings of the real leaders in the Protestant church and the guardians who would keep the shield of Freemasonry untarnished, pastors and laymen, men of learning and unlettered men demand a twentieth amendment to the constitution—"No man may be elected to the Presidency if he is a Catholic." Do they care or consider where this road will lead to?

Some, not having the courage to admit they believe a man's religious views should be a test for office, resort to evasion and weasel words. Still others, with the unction of the Pharisee, draw their ecclesiastical robes aside because this man Smith "Came from the slums of New York"—and is a Catholic. Such as these may know God when they see him, but they will pass Christ unnoticed because he was a carpenter and born in a manger.

What is more serious, if that is possible, are the ceaseless and senseless accusations made against this man Smith by women, wives and mothers, from whose lips little children must get the foundation of their knowledge of right and wrong, and all because Smith is a Catholic. Can there be any greater injustice done to childhood than to teach it to hate when the very being of a child demands love?

Let us call a halt on this crusade of calumny. The only test for that is not religious—but manhood and womanhood.

And the Unknown Soldier? It seems as though some of us, blinded by the heat of baser passions, had forgotten him resting there so quietly. Was he Jew or Gentile, Protestant or Catholic?

Be yourself—if other people will stand for it.

Experience in managing men doesn't seem to count for much in the art of managing women.

WILSON'S WIDOW ENDORSES SMITH

In a statement made on October 11th, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson announced that she would support Governor Smith in the coming election. When questioned at her hotel in Paris, Mrs. Wilson said:

"I hope to see Governor Smith elected our next president, and I am sailing home from Cherbourg next Tuesday on the Leviathan to vote for him."

"I sent a telegram congratulating Governor Smith from Houston immediately after the nomination at the Democratic convention last summer. My personal interest in the Governor's success is the same as that of any other individual citizen who has the cause of the American Democracy at heart. I am delighted to see in today's paper that Mr. Smith apparently is gaining strength rapidly."

P. S. C. ORDERS INVESTIGATION

Following an investigation by Luke Ellis, its service engineer, the Public Service Commission instituted a complaint Tuesday against the Millington Light and Power Company of general inadequacy in service.

Ordering an answer to the complaints, the commission said:

"The Public Service Commission of Maryland complaining against the Millington Light and Power Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Maryland and engaged in the business of 'electrical corporation' within the State of Maryland, says:

"That the said Millington Light and Power Company has failed and does fail to give reasonably adequate electric service to the persons, firms and corporations which it professes to supply with electric service, despite repeated efforts of the said Public Service Commission of Maryland to require the said Millington Light and Power Company to give reasonably adequate service."

Mr. Ellis' report asserted that those served by the company are decrying "frequent and complete interruptions" in service and the failure of the company to have any "responsible representative in the town."

Millington, which is in Kent county, has gone without lights for the past two Saturday and Sunday nights. Mr. Ellis pointed out that the generating plant of the company was operated by a "decrepit gasoline" engine, assisted at times by a small tractor.
