Stock Turkeys FOR SALE

For 8 years Baker's Bronze Beauties have been bred, fed and cared for to produce the highest quality stock and show birds. Each year we are building up a stronger disease resistance and heavier egg laying strain. In any business you get no more than the quailty you pay for. You pay only a few dollars more for our stock than you do for stock that has been raised principally for slaughter.

We again have 1,000 birds to select from and we have had no epidemic or sickness in our four flocks. Neither did we lose 350 turkeys during a windstorm in the early summer, as some of the papers said we did.

Gobblers from $20, Pullets from $15, all well bronzed birds of large size. Have a few birds with poor colors in their feathers but just as large and as healthy as any for $15 per Gobbler and $12 for Pullets.

Four unrelated blood lines to select from.

Show Stock quoted on request.

CHESTERTOWN MILK BRINGS NOW $252,000

A series of dairy meetings for the purpose of stressing the dangers which are confronting the dairy industry on the Peninsula were held in various sections of the county this week.

These meetings were arranged by County Agent Derrick for the purpose of impressing upon the dairymen of this county the importance of improving the quality of milk as well as the quality of the herds from which the milk supply is produced. Meetings were held last week in Worton Hall in Kennedyville which were attended by many of the leading dairymen in the county. The series closed with a meeting held in the court house here Tuesday evening.

The speakers at each of these meetings, H. D. Allebach, of Philadelphia, president of the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association, C. I. Cohee, in charge of the quality control department of the Inter-State Dairy Council, and J. A. Conover, dairy specialist of the University of Maryland Extension Service, recited conditions pertaining to the distruction of milk from the Philadelphia milk shed which is the principal distributing point for all milk produced on the peninsula. Particular stress was laid upon the threatened serious competition of the constantly increasing supply of milk and cream being poured into Philadelphia by western producers, who are giving strict attention to the quality of milk shipped as well as its increasing supply.

County Agent Derrick has been making constant appeals to the dairymen of this county to improve the quality of their milk supply through the importation of accredited dairy cows and also through improved feeding methods, but the average farmer evidently believes that there is no immediate danger in Philadlephia authorities shutting off the receipt of milk from the Peninsula, and has been slow to accept these warnings.

The meetings, however, have served the purpose of arousing the farmers here to the necessity for definite action looking to improving both their herds and the quality of their milk supply, and efforts have already been made to buy the best producing cows from accredited stock with which to rebuild herds depleted by the recent tuberculin test.

The dangers confronting the Peninsula industry has been presented in the press which has had the effect of impressing many of the dairymen as well as Farm Bureau officials in the county with the importance of the situation, and it is believed the meetings will be the means of impressing upon the dairymen of the county the importance of producing the highest quality of milk both from the standpoint of increased profits as well as for theprotection of the industry.

George Hendrickson and Harry Nichols retired as local officers of the Chestertown association and there were named: President, Linwood A. Sutton; vice-president, J. I. Rieby; secretary, Stanley Sutton.

The Eastern Shore dairymen supplied 117,000,000 pounds of milk in 1927. Including Delaware there were shipped in 1927 the total of 176,000,000 pounds. This means that five or six million dollars went to the farmers of the Peninsula last yea rfor this commidity.

Chestertown farmers alone in 1927 were paid $250,000 and had more surplus milk than any other station. This Peninsula supplies one-fourth of the milk used in Philadelphia.

BALTIMORE GETS AIR BEACONS

A 3,000,000 candle power revolving beacon has been installed by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey on the roof of their building at St. Paul Place and Franklin Street for the guidance of aviators. There has also been erected a 1,500,000 candle power fixed light to indicate the direction of the Logan Flying Feld.

These beacons are the first to be installed in Baltimore and should greatly facilitate night flying in that vicinity. They will be placed in service around November 1.

Prof. Louis C. Robinson, of Chestertown, has been appointed Christmas Seal Sale Chairman for this county. W. B. Matthews, managing director of the State Association stated that the counties have completed arrangements for the launching of the twenty-first annual drive for Seal Sale funds on Thanksgiving Day.

FARM BUILDINGS BURNED

Fire about 3 a. m. Friday of last week burned the residence and all the outbuildings, with contents, on Geo. M. Vansant's farm. This farm is located near Golt's and was tilled by the owner. The stock and poultry were saved.

Mr. Vansant carried only about $3,000 inusrance.

ALMSHOUSE FIRE DOES DAMAGE

One of the large buildings at the Kent County Almshouse, located three miles from Chestertown, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday morning. The blaze originated in the bedroom of Douglas Graves, one of the six colored inmates of the building.

The fire started at about 10.30, and was discovered by the superintendent Bayard Sutton, who with the assistance of some farm laborers succeeded in getting all of the inmates out of the building, together with whatever personal effects they had.

An alarm was turned in for the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company which responded quickly, but by the time the firemen roached the scene, the building, which is one of the oldest of the three structures, was doomed. A second call was made for hose by the use of which the other buildings were saved.

There are ten inmates of the county home who are occupying the three large buildings and the six in the building destroyed will be provided with quarters in the other buildings.

The Almshouse property is owned by the county and is conducted by a superintendent appointed by a board of almshouse trustees. It is said the fire was caused by one of the inmates smoking while lying in bed.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

The celebration planned by Frank M. Jarman Post, No. 36, American Legion, for Armistice Day began when the entire local post, led by Commander Lee Gill, marched to Wesley M. P. Chapel where the Rev. C. L. Dawson, former service man, preached an appropriate sermon. An elaborate song service was also given at the Rock Hall Church.

Monday morning the Legion marched to the Washington College campus where the members were joined by students of the college and pupils of Chestertown High School, all of whom participated in a flag-raising ceremony. Dr. Errol Fox, professor of chemistry, was the principal speaker of the morning and also led an educational program of song and recitals Wednesday night a special meeting was held in the armory at which time officers were elected and the members were tendered a banquet.

An appropriate service was held Sunday afternoon at Washington College. Special music was rendered by Prof. Livingood's trio and pianists Dr. J. S. William Jones stated, in introducting the speaker, that the college had sent 147 young men to fight in the World War of whom 107 were commissioned officers. Dr. Leonard B. Smith, a graduate of the college and now pastor of Peninsula Church, made a most delightful address to the fine audience.

The Legion had a turkey supper at the Del-Mar-Va restaurant, Chestertown, on Wednesday evening, in charge of Commander Jesse Maxwell. About 65 were present.

STANDARD OIL EDUCATIONAL WORK

A complete four-year course covering every important phase of the petroleum industry is the feature of the educational program of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which is carried on at 26 Broadway, New York. In addition to general and special classes given in the building, all of which are free, the company has provided correspondence courses for men in the field. There is also an educational refund plan whereby employees completing certain approved courses in outside institutions are refunded half of their tuition fee.

J. Ramsey Speer, one of Talbot County's most prosperous agriculturists, advises farmers of the county to turn their attention to the raising of tobacco rather than to raising so much wheat. He says that the soil of Talbot county is adaptable to the growing of tobacco, and that it will net the farmers more than $160 per acre. Many farmers are going to take his advice and plant many acres in tobacco, that heretofore they have seeded in wheat.

CONTESTS IN THE KENT WOODLAND

Two Woodland Thinning Contests will be held in Kent Wednesday, Nov. 21st, County Agent Derrick announces. One will be held at 10 a. m. in Noland's woods on State road between Fairlee and Rock Hall, just below the Tolchester road. In the afternoon the other thinning contest will be held on the farm of H. W. Dunlap, near Still Pond Station, at 2 p. m.

At each of these contests an axe and a hatchet are to be awarded to the two farmers who can best choose the trees which should be taken out of a certain small tract of woodland, in order to secure the best growth from that woodland.

The plan of the contests involves judging and culling trees in a woodland tract, in much the same manner that a flock of poultry might be culled, and for the same purpose, namely, greater production. All contestants will be given score cards, on which all tagged and numbered trees in the small tract of woodland are judged on the basis of their productive value. The Extension Forester from the University of Maryland,Mr. F. B. Trenk, will conduct the contest, and grade the score cards, following which, the holders of the two highest scores will be awarded the prizes.

A forestry exhibit featuring the essentials of woodland management which are to be the basis for these contests is being shown in the show windows of Wm. M. Culp Hardware, Chestertown.

Together with the exhibits are being shown the prizes to be awarded at these woodland improvement contests.

The County Agent ,H. B. Derrick, is encouraging the farmers of the county to take advantage of one or the other of these demonstration contests, to learn in a practical way how the productiveness of their woodlands may be greatly increased, not only from the standpoint of quantity but quality. Every one is eligible for the contest. Score cards will be graded by Mr. Trenk immediately following the demonstration and the prizes will then be awarded.

FALL WEDDINGS

The marriage of Miss Mary Virginia Records, daughter if Mr. and Mrs. Edwards Mortimer Records, of Middletown, and John L. Clough, of Massey, Md., will be solemnized in St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Middletown, by the Rev. P. L. Donaghay, rector, Saturday at 6 p. m.

The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will be attended by her sister, Mrs. John L. Nicholson, Jr., of Washington, D. C., as matron of honor. Mr. Nicholson will be Mr. Clough's best man. Miss Margaret Pleasanton will play the wedding music, and Mrs. Josiah Bacon, an aunt of the bride, will sing "At Dawning" and "Oh Promise me."

Miss Records is a graduate of Linden Hall, and Mr. Clough was graduated from Washington College, and is associated with the American Briquet Company, of Lykens, Pa. They will be at home after December 1st at Lykens.

Thomas Hill, son of Mrs. Matilda Hill and the late Herman Hill, Sr., of Rock Hall, and Miss Clyda Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ashley, of that town, were quietly married in Elkton. Following a short wedding trip during which they visited relatives in New Jersey, the couple will reside in Rock Hall, where the bridegroom is engaged in business.

C. Palmer Rakes, of upper Cecil County, who was convicted in the Circuit Court at Centreville, to which court the case was removed from Elkton, of murder in the second degree for the alleged slaying of Oscar Johnson, in Whittaker's Barrens, near Theodore, in October, 1927, has been granted a new trial by the Court.

Council fo rthe defendant alleged that they had proved that the reputation of Charles Young, the State's main witness, was bad. They also contended that they proved, by substantial witnesses, that Rakes was at work in his garage near Rising Sun, the whole of the day that the murder was committed. The State contended Rakes killed Johnson over a $75 debt in a liquor deal. Young testified he drove Johnson and Rakes to the scene of the murder in the Barrens of this county.

The local telephone exchange gave excellent service election night. Miss Ella Hicks remained at the switch board all night after 10 p. m. and no one could surpass the promptness with which calls were handled.

TURKEYS BRING FIFTY CENTS ALIVE

Bell & Evans, poultrymen of Camden, N. J., have entered into a contract with Albert Jervis, of Still Pond to purchase his whole flock of turkeys at 50 cents per pound alive on the yard.

Quite a number of Mr. Jervis' flock have been sold for breeders. He had over 1500 at one time which was probably the largest flock ever raised on this Peninsula.

TURKEY TALK MOVIES

Announcement was made today at headquarters of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, that the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula will have the distinction of being the first section of the United States to exploit nationally one of its fast developing industries by use of the phototone or "talking movies."

Briefly, the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula will actually "talk turkey" to the rest of the United States in all leading motion picture houses, presenting a Thanksgiving program which will feature the great flock of more than 1,000 Mammoth Bronze turkeys on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Baker, at Quaker Neck, near Chestertown, Md., and offer exact reproductions of the great birds gobble or call through the movie talking device.

Prominence of this unusual feature is evidenced in that two of the foremost motion picture producers are handling the Del-Mar-Va turkey Thanksgiving feature. They are the Pathe and Paramount. The former will release the special reel to be known as number 90. Both will be released throughout the nation during the next two weeks.

Illustrating the development and growth of the turkey industry in Kent County, Md., where the Bakers are located, a Turkey Selling Pool is this year being organized for the first time in the East. The turkey raisers in the county estimate the production this year to be twice, if not three times as large as that of any season in the past. Supporting the plan to organize a pool which will operate similar to the Idaho Turkey Pool are the Kent County Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Directors of the Business Men's Association.

Mrs. Baker, who has given practically seven years in experimenting in turkey raising and has without remuneration carried on extension work throughout the country for the purpose of bringing about an upbuilding of this industry, will within a brief period issue through the Del-Mar-Va Association a series of articles giving in detail her methods and formulas. The value of this series may be recognized in the statement that Mrs. Baker has brought to maturity more than 90 per cent of the thousands of turkeys hatched on her farm since she perfected her methods.

From facts obtained by the Association there has been a greater growth in the turkey industry on the Peninsula during the last two or three years than that experiences in any other branch of agriculture endeavor.

The Kent County Farm Bureau led by President E. Thomas Massey, joined other county organizations of the Eastern Shore in swelling the attendance at the great home-coming staged by the national grange in Washington November 14 to 23. Among prominent Kent farm women to take an active part in the proceedings were Mrs. Harry Williams officer of the Kent county grange and lecturer for the national organization, and Mrs. Isaac Dixon, of Baltimore and Kent county. The grange was organized sixty-two years ago in the nation's capital, and four of its seven founders, including Oliver Hudson Kelley, who first conceived the idea, are now buried in Washington cemeteries. The grange now numbers upward of 1,000,000 members from Maine to California.

Charles H. Skirven found three dead rabbits in his field near Tolchester last week. Others have detected bad livers in some rabbits. It is said that where the rabbit is fat and well cooked there is no danger. The disease is said to come from imported rabbits.

Expressman John Matthews says he had his first dog corpse shipped by his company last week. It was the fine bird dog owned by Fred. S. Russell and which had been accidentally asphyxiated while on a visit to Philadelphia.

The Coleman Oil Company have sold their business to Holt & Messenger, of Federalsburg. The Coleman Company handle Tydol oil.
