FINE MILFORD MAN IN TRUCK TEST CASE

A test case involving the operation of an automobile truck route under a contested permit, which may eventually reach the Court of Appeals for final decision, resulted in a fine of $10 and costs being imposed upon John D. Burris, of Milford, in Justice Olin B. Stacord's court here.

Burris was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Henry J. Plant, of Betterton, on a charge of operating a truck route between Baltimore and Kent county points as well as points outside the State on an inter-State permit, when it is claimed the law requires that he should operate on an intra-State permit.

Clarence S. Miles and Eugene Edgett, of Baltimore, who defended Burris, claimed that the inter-State permit under which Burris is operating his truck gives him the right also to operate within the State. State's Attorney Stephen R. Collins, of this county, who prosecuted the case, claimed that Burris is violating the law in that the inter-State permit gives him the right to operate only between Baltimore and out of the State points, and that he should be provided with an intra-State permit. Justice Stafford fined Burris $10 and costs, and his attorney immediately noted an appeal to the April term of the Circuit Court. The case is attracting wide interest among the operators of motor truck routes in this section, because of the effect an ultimate decision may have upon their business.
